Raids Block Tunnel, Pass, Nazi Routes Through Alps

Crippling Blows Dealt by Airmen Striking From Africa, England

By Gladwin Hill

London, Nov. 11 (AP).—United States and British bombers apparently dammed the Nazis' strategic Brenner Pass and Mont Cenis Tunnel entrances into north Italy in crippling blows from both Britain and the Mediterranean area yesterday and last night, and today American Flying Fortresses based in Britain pounded targets in Muenster for the second time in a week.

Tonight a great force of British bombers thundered across the coast in what was apparently a continuation of the attack on the European fortress. Previously one of the greatest "radio blackouts" blanketed the continent.

In yesterday's day and night assaults, the Allied bombs were aimed at bottlenecks on those trans-Alp supply lines used by Germany to move reinforcements into Italy.

Flying Fortresses from the African command shot down two Nazi fighters and chased off 20 or 30 as they loosed a shower of high explosives on the railway center of Bolzano below Brenner Pass, and the British-based RAF did not lose a single plane in a coordinated night blow across France to the border town of Modane, at the mouth of the Mont Cenis Tunnel.

18 Nazi Planes Downed

In the Armistice Day assault on the important Nazi industrial city of Muenster, bombers of the Eighth Air Force shot down 10 enemy aircraft, while Thunderbolts and Lightnings running their interference accounted for eight more.

A communique said four heavy bombers were missing from the Muenster operation, but gave few other details.

The British air force last night used one of its greatest formations in the raid on the Mont Cenis Tunnel, which the Germans only recently opened to military traffic after a devastating British raid October 16.

In the attack on the Italian border tunnels the British and Americans worked together to develop a coordinated pincers blow.

Textile Center Hit

The Vichy French radio said Annecy, a textile and glass center in France, 20 miles below Geneva, Switzerland, was attacked this afternoon. St. Raphael, 15 miles southwest of Cannes on the Mediterranean coast, and Briancon, 100 miles north of Cannes, also were bombed, said the broadcast.

The location of these objectives suggested they probably were targets of the newly formed Fifteenth Air Force operating from Mediterranean bases. This force daily has been extending its range into southern Europe. A railway viaduct at St. Raphael on the route into Italy previously had been hit by a secondary force in the RAF's first attack on Modane September 16.

"Just like pouring water down a funnel," one RAF pilot said in describing the 1200-mile roundtrip to the Modane entrance to the 7-mile-long Mont Cenis tunnel through the Alps. "As we left the target three big explosions followed one another, and it appeared we hit an ammunition train."

Jap Claims Denied

Yanks Win 1st Round at Bougainville

By Murlin Spencer

Southwest Pacific, Allied Headquarters (Friday), Nov. 12 (AP).—American Marines, reinforced by Army troops, definitely have won the first round of the vital battle for Bougainville and attempts of the Japanese to becloud that fact by wild claims of having sunk many warships in the area are "without any basis whatsoever," Gen. Douglas MacArthur's spokesman said today.

In announcing that the 6-mile-long beachhead at Empress Augusta Bay—the opening wedge to drive the Japanese out of the last Solomon Island before Rabaul—was "firmly secured," the spokesman took cognizance of repeated Tokyo broadcasts that American warships had suffered their most crushing defeat "since Pearl Harbor."

"Japanese claims of sinking warships and of a naval battle subsequent to the naval action reported off Bougainville the night of November 1-2 are without any basis whatsoever," the spokesman said.

Japs Suffered Losses

In the naval action referred to, a Japanese cruiser and four destroyers were sunk, two cruisers and two destroyers damaged without loss of a single American warship, headquarters previously had reported. That battle prevented a

Russians Race To Split Nazis In Ukraine

Drive on Rail Line To Cleave German Forces in Half

London (Friday), Nov. 12 (AP).—The Red army ran through 100 towns and villages yesterday in its deepest westward stroke of the war, reaching a point less than 25 miles from the vital Koroosten-Berdichev railway, whose seizure effectively would split the Germans' Ukraine forces and open the way for a smash into old Poland 60 miles beyond.

A Soviet midnight bulletin said hundreds of Germans were killed as the Red army swarmed across the Teterev River to capture Radomysl, only 28 miles northwest of Zhitomir, a key junction on the railway.

Unfolding their enormous power the Russians also sprang ahead again on the Gomel front, 140 miles above Kiev, and the broadcast bulletin, recorded here by the Soviet monitor, said 2000 Germans were killed beyond the west bank of the Dnieper, and six strongpoints were captured.

This offensive was aimed at Rechitsa, 28 miles west of the imperiled White Russian citadel of Gomel, by Russian units which several weeks ago gained a big bridgehead across the Dnieper at a point 35 miles southwest of Gomel.

Nazis Give Grudging Praise

This display of Soviet power evoked grudging admiration from official Berlin military commentators on the German radio, and was a portent of still more power to be exerted by the Russians now that the first snowfalls have descended on the long front.

On the North-Central Front where the Russians have been reported 45 to 50 miles from the upper Polish and Latvian borders, the communique said, a total of 4500 Germans were killed yesterday in battles of "local importance."

Another 700 were killed as the Russians expanded their bridgehead northeast of Kerch and to the south of that eastern Crimean port, where the Germans were reported

Losing Confidence

By Edward Kennedy

Algiers, Nov. 11 (AP).—German engineers have begun demolishing the big Italian ports of Leghorn and Pescara in the face of an Allied drive which threatens to crack their latest defense line near the mountain stronghold of Mignano, the Allied command disclosed today.

[The International News Service quoted the Nazi-controlled Rome radio as saying that the Fifth Army has launched a powerful attack in the upper Volturno Valley, where a "fierce battle" is said to be raging.]

Heights Stormed

American mountain troops yesterday stormed two strategic heights near Mignano, including Mount Rotondo, a mile-and-a-half northwest of that strongly fortified enemy bastion, and took up positions overlooking the broad valley leading to Cassino, a main highway point only 73 miles from Rome.

(A broadcast by Robert Dunnet of the British Broadcasting Corp., declared the fall of Mignano was imminent. Radio France at Algiers said Cassino, eight miles north of Mignano, was encircled by Allied troops.)

Though the end of the struggle in Italy was far from being in sight to Allied troops battering forward through mud and snow this Armistice Day, aerial photographs of Nazi demolitions at Leghorn and Pescara provided a hopeful sign that the enemy was resigned to losing the peninsula at least as far as the Tuscan Mountains, which form the last barrier to the Po Valley in northern Italy.

Leghorn, largest port between Naples and Genoa, is nearly 250 miles up the western Italian coast from the present fighting front, while Pescara is some 25 miles up the Adriatic coast from the Eighth Army's position along the Sangro River.

The demolitions demonstrated either that the Nazis have very little faith in their present "winter line" or have active fears that Allied amphibious operations will take them from the rear and split their Italian forces.

Photographs showed the Germans had scuttled the obsolete Italian cruiser Quacto and several merchant ships in the entrance to Leghorn harbor, effectively blocking the big port. At Pescara the enemy has destroyed one quay by blasting and has prepared another for similar demolition. Destruction at both ports resembled that

Coal Strike Aftermath

WLB Industry Group Asks New Labor Curbs

By Ben W. Gilbert

War Labor Board industry members yesterday appealed to Congress to amend labor legislation now on the books "in order to require responsibility of unions and to provide additional protection for workers, employers and the public against those who misuse the power presently permitted."

Writing in a similar vein, three public members stated in a formal opinion on the coal case:

"The weeks which lie ahead will be a crucial period for organized labor. Legislative sanctions more thorough-going than now exist may be required unless organized labor itself demonstrates from now on its determination to accept the bitter with the sweet, and to comply with the orderly processes of Government which have been set up to cope with wartime conditions."

The War Labor Board thus raised the possibility that Lewis, who provoked an angry Congress to pass the Smith-Connally antistrike law over the President's veto, might stimulate the enactment of even more drastic restrictive labor legislation.

Commenting on the "shock experienced by the whole country as a result of the United Mine Workers' defiance of the no-strike pledge," the public group stated, "the whole question of the responsibility of unions for antisocial acts and of the capacity of government as at present constituted to prevent such acts," must be brought "into the forefront of consideration and discussion."

A WLB spokesman said the three public members—William H. Davis, George Taylor and Frank P. Graham—were commenting only on the present powers of the War Labor Board, not on the administration as a whole.

The trio had joined with industry and labor members six days ago to approve the agreement which Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes and UMW President John L. Lewis negotiated during the fourth general coal strike this year.

Hero Posthumously Rewarded For Stirring Advance on Attu

By John G. Norris

Honor was paid by the Army yesterday to 51 privates for deeds of heroism of widely differing character, one in battle with the Japs and the others in combat against an equally potent foe—malaria.

To Pvt. Joe P. Martinez, 23, of Ault, Colo., went the Nation's highest honor—the Congressional Medal of Honor. It was awarded postmumously, for Martinez, a former farm laborer, was killed in leading an American battalion to victory in a charge up the snow-covered mountains of Attu Island.

The other 50 men were given the Legion of Merit for deliberately exposing themselves to malaria in the jungles of New Guinea. They took part in a test reminiscent of the Army men under Maj. Walter Reed, who exposed themselves to yellow fever in Cuba 42 years ago.

Martinez was a member of a battalion which had been trying for several days to drive the Japs from a key defensive position on Attu, but the attacks bogged down in the face of heavy machine gun, rifle and mortar fire.

"In the face of the severe hostile fire," declared the citation with the Medal of Honor, "Private Martinez arose to his feet and alone resumed his advance. Occasionally he stopped to urge his comrades on and his example inspired the others to follow."

He reached a plateau and cleaned out several Jap foxholes with hand grenades and his automatic rifle. The troops accompanying him drove on but again the attack bogged down under heavy Jap fire from protected positions.

"Then," his battalion commander reported, "one lone figure rose and started up the snow slope that led to the pass. Again it was Martinez. Again the other men followed."

Moving across open ground under heavy fire, the young soldier wiped out the Japs in one trench

Executive Order Would Force Agencies to Use Capital Garage

By Linton Burkett

An executive order compelling Federal agencies to make use of the facilities of the Capital Garage, now under Federal Works Agency management, has been prepared by the Bureau of the Budget and is ready for submission to President Roosevelt, it was learned yesterday.

This order does not go as far as the Byrd bill, now before Congress, which would force the use of a general car pool among agencies.

The executive order would merely compel agencies, where it is practicable, to use the garage for storing cars at night, servicing with gasoline and oil, washing and repairs.

In a report filed with Representative Randolph (Democrat) of West Virginia last week, Gen. Philip Fleming, FWA administrator, said the total cost of operating the garage was $181,555 a year and there were then 268 cars housed in the garage at night.

What will be done with the order in the event the Byrd bill is enacted into law could not be learned, except that it would appear obvious that such an order would not be needed if the car pool were set up.

The plan to use an executive order to fill the garage to its estimated 520-car capacity grew out of the reluctance of bureaus to relinquish control, even when not in use, of the cars under their custody.

However, a spokesman for the FWA asserted it was not the desire of the FWA to assume control in any manner of the cars stored in the garage.

Group Selects Four Nominees For Bishop of Washington

DUN ALDRICH STARK SWEET

By Robert Tate Allan

Selection of four nominees for the position of new Bishop of Washington were announced yesterday by the nominating committee, of which Justice Owen J. Roberts is chairman.

While other names may be submitted from the floor of a special Washington Diocesan Convention November 23, at the Episcopal Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, the following are the choice of the committee charged with the selection of nominees for the position:

In order of their choice, they are: Dr. Angus Dun, dean and professor of systematic theology at the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass.

Dr. Donald B. Aldrich, rector of the Church of the Ascension, New York City, and now on leave as United States Navy chaplain.

Dr. Dudley Scott Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's Church, Chicago.

Dr. Sidney Edward Sweet, dean of Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis.

House Group Agrees on New Tax Bill

2 Billion of Extra Revenue Provided Is Only Fifth of What Treasury Asked

By Samuel W. Bell

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

The House Ways and Means Committee reached agreement last night on what its members hoped will constitute their version of the tax bill to be reported to the House next week. As agreed upon, the measure carries income, corporation and excise tax levies providing for $2,149,900,000 in additional revenue, or about one-fifth of the $10,500,000,000 recommended by the Roosevelt Administration.

The final tentative action of the committee was signalized by another change of mind on a tax for distilled spirits, the fourth since the committee began working in executive session on the tax measures. The committee decided to increase the existing tax of $6 a gallon to $9, compromise with the $10 voted a week ago after the committee previously had fluctuated between $8 and $10.

Doughton to Ask "Gag" Rule

Another last-minute action was to reverse a former decision to impose a 10 per cent manufacturer's sales tax on tooth paste and mouth washes, and to eliminate a previous attempt to penalize personally-held business corporations formed for the purpose of losing money and thus providing deductions from individual taxes on incomes derived from trusts or inheritances.

On the basis of the action taken yesterday, which included important changes in the controversial War Contracts Renegotiation Act, Chairman Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, said that the tax bill had been ordered drafted and sent to the printer. It will be reviewed by the committee Monday, with a view to possible introduction in the House on that day.

Doughton said he expected to ask for a special rule of consideration, or the "gag" procedure which a group of labor organizations already has warned the committee against.

Selective Sales Tax List Grows

As it stands, the bill calls for 616 million dollars additional from increases and changes in the excess profits tax and an estimated 12 million dollars from "integration" of the victory tax with the regular individual income tax and the remainder from a long list of new and increased selective sales taxes and advances in postal rates, including an in-city rate of 3 cents.

No changes were made in the previously announced scheme for

Winant's Son Now Reported Prisoner of Nazis

First Lieut. John G. Winant, jr., 22-year-old son of the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, who was reported missing in air action over Germany a month ago, is a prisoner of the Nazis, it was learned yesterday.

The message was received from London by Rivington Winant, a brother, who is a student at Princeton University, and he notified friends in Washington by telephone.

Lieutenant Winant, a Flying Fortress pilot, participated in the historic shuttle raid between Britain and North Africa that blasted Regensburg on August 17 and was reported missing on his thirteenth mission, which took his formation over Muenster.

Compromise Believed Only Subsidy Hope

Congress Probably Will Pass Repealer, Roosevelt Is Told

By Robert C. Albright

President Roosevelt has been advised by his legislative leaders that both Houses of Congress probably will vote for repeal of consumer subsidies unless an acceptable compromise basis can be found.

This was learned last night, as independent negotiations went forward at the Capitol toward a subsidy middle ground that would avoid a veto and thus spare the life of farmer-loved CCC.

Despite the spread of the congressional subsidy rebellion, the Administration was reported ready to wield a veto, if necessary, to hold the price line, even if it kills CCC along with the subsidy repealer.

Seek to Avoid Impasse

The compromise move was still without official Administration backing, and some ranking House Banking Committeemen predicted the President would accept nothing less than the full amounts and authority necessary to hold a firm lid on consumer prices. Nonetheless, some influential legislators, seeking to avoid a year-end impasse, were attempting on their own responsibility to find a compromise plan that will pass.

One of many plans now under discussion would extend the life of CCC one year, but authorize only sufficient funds to carry consumer subsidies through the first three months of next year.

The Steagall antisubsidy bill, slated to go before the House Rules Committee for a go-ahead signal on Monday, may be held up until the House acts on taxes to allow time for further exploration of the compromise field.

The Republican Banking committee minority, predominantly opposed to consumer subsidies, was reported unwilling even to consider a compromise until a subsidy repealer is vetoed by the President, and then only if it is the only means of saving CCC.

Move to Eliminate Ban Due

Representative Jesse P. Wolcott of Michigan, ranking Republican on the committee, said even the threat of CCC expiration after a veto might not thaw the subsidy opposition. He said there was a possibility Congress might allow CCC to expire, "to see how well we get along without it for awhile."

Equally opposed to any compromise was the leading House exponent of consumer subsidies as the only Administration means of avoiding uncontrolled inflation.

Quick Verdict Finds Count Innocent By 9-3 Vote

Bench Summation Had Cited Flaws In the Evidence Presented by Crown

Nassau, Nov. 11 (AP).—Alfred de Marigny was freed of a murder charge in the Bahamas Supreme Court tonight, and hurried immediately to the arms of his faithful wife, Nancy, the daughter of the fabulously rich man he had been accused of killing.

The uproar in the jammed court chamber drowned out Jury Foreman James Sands' voice after he said the vote was 9 to 3 for acquittal, and De Marigny left the room before he heard the further word that the jury voted unanimously a recommendation that he be deported from Nassau.

The jury deliberated approximately an hour and forty minutes after hearing a five and one-half hour charge by Chief Justice Sir Oscar Bedford Daly, who pointed out many weakneses in the evidence with which the prosecution sought to convict De Marigny of the murder of Sir Harry Oakes.

De Marigny had waited at the police station, his wife in a nearby office, while jurors carried on their deliberations in the law library on the second floor of the courthouse.

Jury Signifies Readiness

At 7:10 p. m. the jury sent word it was ready and De Marigny was returned to the barred prisoner's cell in which he had sat throughout most of the 22 sessions of testimony about the bludgeoning and burning of Sir Harry, one of the world's wealthiest men, in a bedroom of his estate, Westbourne, early the morning of July 8.

Nancy took her seat near a door.

The courtroom was in an uproar as the jurors filed back in at 7:15 p. m.

Guards called for silence and finally the noise subsided.

Sands arose to make his announcement.

De Marigny stood in the cell, a serious look on his face. Nancy seemed overwhelmed.

"Not guilty, 9 to 3 . . ." Sands began.

There was a tremendous cheer.

Orders Defendant Released

Sir Oscar immediately ordered De Marigny released, and the tall, handsome defendant walked straight to his wife. They embraced, then left the courtroom amid the bedlam.

They hurried outside and entered an automobile.

Once order was restored in the courtroom, Sands continued: ". . . but with unanimous vote for immediate deportation."

The chief justice said he would refer the recommendation to the proper authorities.

Attorneys said the recommendation has no legal standing, except

3 Chiefs' Parley Still Forecast as Hull Gives Report

Amid persistent and undenied reports that President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin will meet soon to plan new blows against the Axis for the climactic year of 1944, the President himself received yesterday from Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, a two-hour account of the momentous three-power conference at Moscow from which Mr. Hull returned yesterday.

Secretary Hull, after resting overnight from his long journey to the Soviet capital, went to the White House at noon and stayed on for luncheon with the President, Harry Hopkins, the President's special assistant, and Edward R. Stettinius, jr., Undersecretary of State, joined the meeting for a time and listened to Mr. Hull's detailed report on the Moscow conference and its secret decisions for hastening victory and insuring world peace afterward.

The President canceled his usual Friday morning press conference today.

UAW Official Lays Brewster's Failure to Labor Mishandling

By Mary Spargo

The House Naval Affairs Subcommittee investigating failure of the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. to produce planes for the Navy yesterday heard representatives from all three sides involved, Navy, management and labor.

Maj. Reuben H. Fleet, founder of the Consolidated Aircraft Co., now Consolidated-Vultee, representing a Brewster management for which he said he was largely responsible, jumped from his seat to shout angry denunciations of Thomas De Lorenzo, leader of the Brewster local. The Wagner Act must be changed, he claimed.

Lieut. Leo W. Hoffman, son of Representative Hoffman (Republican) of Michigan told of his attempts and those of others to catch Brewster employes loafing. He was armed with sheaves of reports.

Paul Krebs, secretary of Local 365, UAW-CIO, blamed production failure on labor hoarding, attempted union "busting" and general inefficiency on the part of two managements installed after the Navy had taken over the plant, and then restored it to private management.

Krebs said that C. A. Van Dusen, whom Fleet had said he personally had urged the Navy to install at Brewster, was good at production but incapable either of dealing with labor or of letting his labor relations men do the job for him.

Under questioning of Fleet, Representative Hebert (Democrat) of Louisiana developed the fact that Van Dusen, who had been assistant to him when he was Consolidated

Arrest of Lebanese Leaders By French Arouses Arab World

By William McGaffin

Cairo, Nov. 11 (AP).—Shooting broke out in Lebanon today after representatives of the French Committee of National Liberation declared martial law, imposed a strict curfew, and arrested the Arab state's President, Premier and other governmental leaders in a dispute over the country's assertions of independence.

Sir Edward Spears, British Minister to Lebanon and Syria, protested in the name of the British government "as guarantors of Lebanese independence" to Jean Helleu, French Committee representative in the Levant. There were reports of repercussions in other parts of the Arab world.

Demonstrations of sympathy for Lebanon were reported from Damascus, capital of the sister republic of Syria, while Egyptian Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha cabled a protest to the French Committee against the treatment of the Lebanese government.

Dispatches received here said French Senegalese troops fired on demonstrators at Beirut, Lebanese capital, and at Tripoli, in the northern part of the country, after Lebanese police refused to obey French orders to suppress protests against the arrest of President Shoukri El Kuwalti Bey, Premier Riad El Solh and all but one of the Arab state's cabinet ministers.

The newly elected President was reported under house arrest, with Senegalese guards surrounding his

Moscow Pact Foiled Nazis, Eden Says

War Sidelights

Russia Hails Song About American Aid

Moscow, Nov. 11 (AP).—A new sentimental ballad, "A Mother's Prayer," which deals with American and British aid to Russia, is being warmly acclaimed in Moscow.

The song first describes an American mother on her knees in prayer that the gifts she sends to Russia will reach a little boy like her own.

The second verse describes a British mother also in prayer, hoping her gifts will make some Russian lad happy.

Then the third verse tells of a Russian boy, who knows little of the United States or of Britain, but who sings his thanks just the same.

"I know of Chicago," he sings, "because I've eaten sausages from Chicago packing houses, and I know New York because I wear a pair of warm stockings from New York."

The song ends with a Red Army soldier singing of American, British and Russian mothers praying for Russia and working for victory.

Postwar Period Cited

London, Nov. 11 (AP).—The Archbishop of York, in a presidential address to the Diocesan Conference, warned today that there is "grave danger of almost the complete collapse of all we look upon as civilization" in much of Europe and the Middle East.

Britain, Russia and the United States must "take great responsibilities in the first years of peace if we are to do our duty," he declared.

"We shall be unable to withdraw from the Continent," he added. "We must be ready to accept continued restrictions of our supplies of food and goods so that destitute nations may have some chance at recovery."

Admits Conferees Did Not Agree On All Proposals

London, Nov. 11 (AP).—Smiling and confident, Anthony Eden in his first report to Commons on the Moscow Conference declared today that the three-power parley reassured the world and wrecked "completely" a German attempt to create disunity among the Allies.

Speaking significantly on Armistice Day—a day fraught for the Germans with bitter memories of the 1918 collapse—the British Foreign Minister said that the results of the conference had exceeded his hopes and established a basis of good will and confidence justifying the belief that "even the most stubborn" of Europe's problems can be solved with British-American-Soviet cooperation.

No major political question troubling Europe was side-stepped at Moscow, Eden emphasized, and there was a "useful exchange of views" also on economic questions.

Difference of Opinion

"I am not going to pretend for a moment," he added, "that we agreed on every point. That would be the international millennium. But we do know now each other's point of view on all these subjects."

Eden did not mention specifically the question of Polish-Russian relations, but the stubbornness of this problem was again indicated today when the deputy prime minister of the Polish government-in-exile, Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, declared his government's desire to collaborate with Russia but renewed its proposal for a postwar federation of European states which authoritative Soviet sources have condemned as "anti-Soviet."

Pole Talks of Ideals

Mikolajczyk, who addressed a luncheon commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of Poland's independence, said that Europe must be protected from "Germany's economic hegemony because it inevitably will lead to her political domination." He hailed the Moscow conference decisions as "a useful reinforcement of the ideals for which the United Nations are waging this war."

Eden said that the European advisory commission authorized by the conference would be established at once in London and would provide machinery for a continuing exchange of views. He stressed the advisory nature of the commission which he said was charged with studying "any question which the three governments agree to refer to it" and thereafter making a joint recommendation.

Indirectly addressing the French and Poles, disappointed over the non-inclusion of France and Poland in the Moscow talks, Eden denied that the three powers aimed to dominate others, but added:

"The truth must be faced that it is upon these three powers principally that will lie the responsibility for insuring that this war is followed by a lasting peace."

Brenner Pass, hit yards, buildings, and locomotive sheds, and photographs indicated the artery had been blocked at least temporarily, and that the raid was more serious than a previous attack on the railway which runs through the pass to Innsbruck in Austria.

The four-engined American planes, escorted by Lightnings also bombed the Villa Perosa ball-bearing works southwest of Turin for the second time in two days in a campaign to knock out that vital mechanism of war machinery. The Villa Perosa plant's importance has multiplied because of the previous costly American attack on the Schweinfurt ball-bearing works in Germany.

British Wellingtons of the Northwest African Force also attacked the railway viaduct at Recco, 20 miles east of Genoa, last night.

Pass, Tunnel Vulnerable

The Brenner Pass and Mount Cenis Tunnel entrances into Italy are highly vulnerable to Allied efforts to smash the German army's supply lines in northern Italy. The Simplon and St. Gotthard Tunnels from neutral Switzerland into Italy are barred to military traffic, but the Germans also have channels entering northeastern Italy from Austria. All these lines now are within Allied bomber range.

As the RAF hit Modane last night, British-based Mosquitos raided western Germany for the second successive night and other forces made a number of attacks on northern French air bases, transport and shipping. Mines were sown in enemy waters also, and in all the night's extensive operations from Britain the casualties were limited to two fighter command planes.

Simultaneously with the Muensster raid, military objectives on the Cherbourg peninsula were hit by Marauders escorted by British and Allied Spitfires. Three of the fighters were reported missing and two enemy fighters shot down.

Collaborating with the Marauders were formations of British and Allied Mitchells, Bostons and Typhoons which also slashed at Pas de Calais in northern France in operations which started at dawn and continued almost without letup through the day.

done at Naples by the retreating Nazis.

While Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American Fifth Army fighters clawed their way onto the heights near Mignano, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army pushed 5 miles through snowstorms in the Apennines to capture Rionero, 10 miles northeast of Isernia, and near the Adriatic pushed up to the south bank of the Sangro at numerous points.

Casalanguida, 15 miles inland from the Adriatic, and Roccasicura were taken in the advance.

An Allied communique emphasized that all advances were made in the face of extremely bad weather and against increasingly stiff German resistance. The Germans burned Rionero before evacuating to the British.

Gen. Clark's Americans seized Mount Rotondo in hard fighting after they had broken up preparations for another heavy Nazi counterattack such as the nine that were thrown against them in that sector the previous day. Mortar and artillery fire broke up the Nazi infantry concentrations.

Captive Reds Made to Fight, Tito Reports

Cairo, Nov. 11 (AP).—Advices today from the Partisan headquarters of Gen. Josip Broz (Drug Tito) said the Germans were conscripting Russian prisoners of war for active service in the Balkans and explained the presence of these troops by calling them Japanese volunteers.

Yugoslav guerillas were pictured in independent reports as having so damaged vital communication lines that the Germans have been obliged to call a three-day blockage on all nonmilitary traffic along Croatian highways and railroads.

Rail routes from Italy and Austria into Yugoslavia were said to have been seriously interrupted when the line from Villach, Austria, to Gorizia, Italy, was disabled for three weeks. No sooner had the Germans repaired the line on October 29 than the Partisans were reported to have again disabled it by blowing up a 65-foot bridge.

The Partisans also were declared to have repelled three German attempts to land on the Dalmatian Island of Brack, while Partisan shore batteries damaged a Quisling Croat ship and a 12,000-ton German ship in this region.

Taking notice of charges that forces under Gen. Draja Mihailovic, Yugoslav war minister, were collaborating with the Axis, the Yugoslav information office here said collaborationist Chetniks fighting alongside the Germans had injured Mihailovic's reputation by proclaiming themselves "soldiers of King Peter."

The bureau added that these forces, although they claimed to be fighting in western Yugoslavia under Mihailovic's orders, actually were not in contact with the Yugoslav general.

(Fresh charges of collaboration by Mihoilovic's forces were made by the Free Yugoslav radio, mouthpiece of Tito's National Army of Liberation, which claimed to have documentary proof that Mikailovic has sought Bulgarian aid against Tito's guerillas.)

Officer Promoted; Sank Two Subs

Lieut. Charles H. Hutchins, commander of the destroyer Borie which went down in the North Atlantic recently after sinking two Nazi U-boats within three hours, was promoted yesterday to lieutenant commander for "meritorious service."

The 31-year-old Hosier led his crew in an hour-long surface battle with one of the enemy subs at ranges up to 10 feet.

The promotion was recommended by Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet, and personally presented to the young officer by Vice Admiral Frederick J. Horne, vice chief of naval operations.

U.S. Fliers Help Chinese Stem Jap Drive

Chungking, Nov. 11 (AP).—Supported by American fighter-bomber sweeps in which 18 Japanese river craft were destroyed, Chinese troops fought bitterly along a 90-mile front between the Yangtze and Tungting Lake yesterday and brought the Japanese invasion of the "rice bowl" nearly to a stop, a Chinese communique said today.

Because of heavy losses, the 30,000 Japanese engaged in a three-pointed offensive were only able to advance and occupy Chikiang, 35 miles southeast of Ichang, Yangtze River port.

The Japanese left wing at Ansiang on the northern shore of Tungting Lake was briskly engaged and more than 30 of the enemy's boats were destroyed in the network of waterways there. In the center of the line the Japanese entered Tsingshin, 50 miles southeast of Chikiang but were thrown out.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's communique said that in American air sweeps 18 sampans, barges and motorboats were sunk and 8 Japanese fighters warded off in a 100-mile battle. All the American planes returned.

Burma Base Raided

New Delhi, India, Nov. 11 (AP).—RAF medium bombers raided the Heho airfield in Burma for the second night in succession, sprinkling bombs on hangars, barracks and runways and leaving numerous fires, a British joint air and ground communique announced today. A pontoon bridge near Kalemyo was hit directly by dive-bombers, it added.

British Rulers Lead Observance

London, Nov. 11 (AP).—Britain marked Armistice Day with a spiritual commemoration led by the King and Queen, but otherwise today was much like any other in this wartime capital.

The King and Queen, who had asked that the day be observed with simplicity and an extra measure of war effort, placed a wreath of poppies on the cenotaph in memory of the glorious dead, as did Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers on behalf of the U.S. armed forces. In bomb-scarred Westminster Abbey, a prayer was intoned over the candle-lighted tomb of the Unknown Soldier at 11 a. m.

to have thrown 50,000 men into futile counterattacks.

Zhitomir was menaced directly by two other Russian columns in addition to the one which seized Radomysl. Farther south one unit entered Brusilov, 36 miles east of Zhitomer, and another captured Kornin, 38 miles to the southwest. Kornin also is only 44 miles from Berdichev, junction for railways leading into Poland and Rumania.

Russian units swinging northwest of Kiev sped through Zarude, only 40 miles from the important German-held junction of Korosten.

Acknowledging retreats on the Kiev Front, one German military commentator said the Red army was trying "to force a turning point of the entire war."

The steady stride toward Zhitomir represented a 14-mile gain during the day, and the Russians were threatening to outflank the Nazi Bug River line.

Seizure of the Korosten-Berdichev railway would facilitate greatly the developing disaster for the Germans in southern Russia. It is the most direct link still holding the sagging enemy line together, although there is another railway between it and the Polish border, the devious Korosten-Shepetovka-Berdichev line.

Other Russian columns were reported battling German reinforcements hurled into action to stem the Soviet southwestward swing toward Rumania which, if unhalted, would seal the fate of more than 200,000 Germans presently fighting frontal attacks in the Krivoi Rog, Nikopol and Kherson areas far to the east.

The German high command acknowledged Russian advances in the Kiev sector, declaring that numerically "far superior" Red army forces were involved.

Heavy fighting also was reported by Berlin in the sector below Gomel, and northwest of Smolensk on the Central Front.

A Berlin radio commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, marveled at Russia's power, evident in the Red army's ability to keep so many offensives going.

"Only a vast numerical superiority can explain it," he said.

Germans' New 'Rocket Bomb' Chases, Then Dives on Target

New York, Nov. 11 (AP).—Germany's fantastic new rocket bomb, employed against Allied ships in several theaters of war recently, is an engineering and mechanical marvel that flies through the air with the greatest of ease, chases its targets and often behaves as if it had a built-in brain.

Definite announcement that such a weapon existed was first made by Prime Minister Churchill in a speech on September 21. Details of the bomb's operation were not given, but persons who have seen the bomb in action give the following weird but true data on its performance:

Actually there are two types of rocket bomb. One apparently is a straight-away rocket fired directly from the aircraft simply to give it greater accuracy and speed than the usual gravity propelled bomb.

A "Buck Rogers" Device

The other is a real "Buck Rogers" sort of device. It is armor-piercing, with a delayed-action fuse end, and is estimated to weigh 3000 to 3500 pounds.

Its body is like a torpedo, about 25 inches in diameter and a dozen feet long. It has an 8-foot wingspan and a tail assembly which make it look like a midget airplane.

In flight it emits whitish smoke from its tail, and a fiery glow. Seagoing lookouts who saw the first ones identified them as burning aircraft.

The bomb is released from a high flying plane. Ten thousand feet is the lowest reported level, and many have been detected above 20,000. This seemingly is in order to give the releasing plane greater safety from antiaircraft fire and to allow the bomb-aimer more time to line up his target. Apparently the aimer must have both bomb and target ship in clear view if he is to succeed.

Once released, the bomb glides in the same direction as the parent aircraft at a speed estimated in the neighborhood of 400 miles per hour.

Its flight is almost horizontal, with a slight downward glide. Over the target it suddenly dips into a vertical dive and hurtles downward with the aid both of gravity and rocket impetus. Its force and penetrating power are gigantic.

On striking a hard object, the wings, tail fins and sometimes the rocket rear section shatter off.

The vertical dive apparently is controlled by the operator via radio, although magnetic attraction may also play a part in the later stages of its descent.

So far as is known it has only been used against ships.

While on the horizontal the bomb can alter course to any point of the compass, pursuing an evasive target ship. However, once it goes into its dive it cannot apparently be controlled further. Also it apparently is preferably employed only against lone ships. When several ships are close together and moving in various directions the bomb's accuracy seems to fall off, apparently due to the conflicting magnetic fields set up by the ships.

The control method is not clear but apparently it is by radio impulses on the little-used frequencies where they are unlikely to be detected.

Pilot Pleads Ignorance

Efforts have been made to jam these frequencies.

The bomb is discharged from various types of aircraft, including Junkers 88, Heinkel 111 and Dornier 217. The plane apparently must be especially equippd, for it is always at high altitudes and is specially guarded by other aircraft.

Nevertheless, at least one has been shot down after firing its bomb. Only the pilot was rescued. He pleaded ignorance, saying only that he was told he was flying an experimental mission and was ordered to make a normal bombing "run," then put his plane into a steep, straight climb and hold it thus until the bomb-aimer told him which way to turn.

The aimer apparently must bring ship and bomb and plane into line before sending the bomb into its dive. The captured pilot is reported to have said there were brass-hat observers in other planes, leading to a supposition that the bomb, at least at that time, was a highly-regarded experiment.

Some Allied fighting men express belief the Germans unveiled it before they were really ready, since far fewer have been used than would be the case if it were in full production.

Japanese task force from getting closer than 40 miles to the marine beachhead, established several hours earlier.

(The only comparatively recent American warship losses in the Pacific to be announced by the Navy were two destroyers.

(Tokyo radio has been flooding the air lanes with reports of 95 Allied war vessels sunk by naval and air action within a period of less than two weeks.)

In the first hint of the military strategy dictated in the northern Solomons invasion, General MacArthur's headquarters announced that paratroop Marines who went ashore from ships October 28 on Choiseul, southeast of Bougainville, now have been withdrawn inasmuch as they were intended only to divert the enemy from the impending operation at Empress Augusta.

However, it appeared that the Americans and New Zealanders who landed October 27 on Treasury Island, 30 miles south of Bougainville, intend to remain. Today's communique told of light enemy air raids there.

Jap Failure Cited

The securing of the Bougainville beachhead meant definite failure of the Japanese to pinch it off by putting several hundred troops ashore from barges on the north end to exert a squeeze with the help of other Japanese bypassed to the south.

The spokesman said the Americans now are firmly in the rear of Japanese positions at Buin on Bougainville's south shore and in the nearby Shortlands. The secured beachhead also places the Americans directly athwart the Japanese line of supply to the Buin-Shortland area, he pointed out.

Today's communique told of new air attacks on Rabaul during which an air torpedo hit probably was scored on a cruiser.

The communique also reported the sinking of a Japanese destroyer off Kavieng, New Ireland, by a reconnaissance bomber.

"The Nazis are treacherous, often trying after midnight in the barracks to lynch their comrades who are not Nazis," he was quoted in an interview.

Legion Commander Addresses Throng At Ceremonies

Speaking at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier yesterday at services in observance of the twenty-fifth Armistice Day, Warren H. Atherton, national commander of the American Legion, urged America to make the next armistice stick by maintaining a strong Army and Navy in the future.

His speech followed President Roosevelt's appearance to observe rites in which his naval aide, Admiral Wilson Brown, placed a wreath of chrysanthemums on the tomb.

The services were the highlight of Washington's Armistice celebrations, which included a ball sponsored by Veterans of Foreign Wars, a flag service for American War Mothers and rites at Woodrow Wilson's tomb.

"The war must not end with just peace, but a just peace," Atherton declared. "We as a Nation should begin now to draw the blueprints for the world in which we wish to make our storehouse for the fruits of victory and harvests of peace."

The American Legion, he said, believes that the way to peace for the world can be found in honest agreements between free and sovereign nations to maintain order and to repress aggression or the threat of aggression.

He warned the Nation's enemies that "it's later than you think—prepare, for the day of judgment draws nigh."

"We know that we shall have victory, for it is alread; in our grasp," Atherton said. "We cannot say when this victory will be achieved. But those of us who fought in the last war are not inclined to agree with those who are gloomiest among our prophets. We have had an opportunity to see our Nation mobilize and spring into action in this war, and we know that there is no comparison between the two.

"The legion holds this truth to be self-evident: That the flower of America's manhood now fighting this war can also become, after this war is over, the dominant force in leading this Nation along the paths of peace to a happy future."

Mrs. Lawrence Smith, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, in a preceeding speech, said:

"There is no room for hypenated Americans. We are now welded into one out of many, and the many of the world are dependent upon us."

Miss Lynn Allison, Capitol Theater vocalist, was crowned queen of the Armistice Ball, sponsored at the Willard Hotel last night by the Department of the District of Columbia, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In special services at the Capitol at 11 a. m., the flag of the American War Mothers was raised over the building under the Stars and Stripes. Representative Raymond S. Springer of Indiana and Mrs. E. May Hahn, new national president of the American War Mothers, spoke.

The District of Columbia Branch of the Second Division Association held services at the Second Division Monument at 17th st. and Constitution ave. nw. in the early afternoon. The Marine Band played.

In behalf of USO club operated by the National Catholic Community Service, a committee of hostesses placed a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Huston Thompson, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States, was the principal speaker at a service in commemoration of Woodrow Wilson at the late President's tomb in the Washington Cathedral at 3:15 p. m.

Thompson said he believed he could hear the late President speaking from the tomb, and "I believe I hear him say, 'finish the task to which our arms are dedicated. Then draw a veil over the mistakes of the past. Begin again at your beginning with charity for all and malice toward none. Let security founded upon friendship be the password.'

Wreaths were placed on the tomb by Edward Slaughter, grandson of former Chief Justice William Alexander Hoke; Charles Warren and Janet Abernathy, representing Woodrow Wilson High School, and Jennings Price, representing the Woodrow Wilson Foundation.

Woolton Gets Reconstruction Post in Britain

By E. C. Daniel

London (Friday), Nov. 12 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill has created a Ministry of Reconstruction with the task of rebuilding Britain after the peace, it was announced today. Lord Woolton has been shifted from the Food Ministry to direct the vast program.

LLEWELLIN

Lord Woolton, a self-made business baron whose administration of Britain's wartime food rationing has been one of the outstanding successes of the Churchill government, will, as Reconstruction Minister, have supreme control of the rebuilding program and a degree of authority not before given a member of the government.

The man who taught Britons to eat dried eggs with a smile and to accept a concoction of vegetables known as "Woolton pie," will have a seat in the war cabinet as a result of the shift.

WOOLTON

Creation of this over-all reconstruction post, which had been forecast for several weeks, is Churchill's answer to long-continuing criticism that he was neglecting postwar planning.

The selection of Woolton was a political surprise, but it was almost certain to receive public applause.

Col. J. J. Llewellin will be brought home from his post as minister resident in Washington to become the new Minister of Food.

Ben Smith Coming Here

Llewellin, who left London when replaced by Sir Stafford Cripps as Minister of Aircraft Production, will be succeeded in Washington by Ben Smith, parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Aircraft Production and a typical plain-speaking Laborite of a type not often seen in missions abroad. A former taxi driver and one-time navy boxing champion, Smith becomes a member of the cabinet at a salary of $20,000 a year to tackle the Washington problems of supply.

Other cabinet changes include the appointment of Henry U. Willink to succeed Ernest Brown as minister of health. Brown gets the nominal cabinet post of chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. He recently has been under heavy fire from critics charging slowness and inefficiency in handling the nation's housing problem. In his new post he succeeds Alfred Duff Cooper, who resigned his chancellorship and who will be sent to a high post abroad.

Willink is a lawyer who gave up one of the richest practices in London to become special commissioner for the care and rehousing of the city's air-raid victims in 1940.

Smith's post in the aircraft production ministry will be filled by Lieut. A. T. Lenox-Boyd of the Royal Navy Reserve, a 6-foot-6 member of Parliament, who resigned his office in the government at the beginning of the war and became the commander of a torpedoboat in 1942.

The appointment of Woolton suggested that the nation's food supply, once one of the most critical problems, was well assured until the end of the war now that the U-boats have been brought under control.

While his position as a member of the House of Lords usually is considered a disadvantage to a minister in a major post, since the peers have little actual lawmaking power, he will have a spokesman in Commons in the person of Sir William Jowitt, Laborite minister without portfolio who previously was charged with coordinating postwar planning.

Roosevelt Visits Unknown Soldier's Tomb

By Edward T. Folliard

President Roosevelt made a solemn pilgrimage to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier yesterday, as the Nation observed its second Armistice Day since Pearl Harbor.

The President rode to Arlington National Cemetery in an open car, an admiral's cape thrown over his shoulders to keep out the sharp November air. In contrast with prewar years, no crowds lined the street. The only persons along the route were policemen and detectives, reinforced by an occasional pedestrian.

A 21-gun salute boomed out over the Potomac as the White House caravan moved into the cemetery and started up the hill toward the Unknown Soldier's Tomb.

Other High Officials There

Arrived at that shrine, the President removed his hat and stood in reverent contemplation. The U. S. Army Band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and an honor guard of soldiers, sailors and marines snapped to "present arms."

Then came the traditional minute of silence. The President looked straight ahead, his eyes on a line with the famous inscription: "Here Rests in Honored Glory an American Soldier Known But to God." The sun, which momentarily had flashed on the Tomb and brought out the autumnal colors around it, glided behind a dark cloud.

No Armistice Day Speech

In back of the President stood Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, who had started from the White House with him. Also in the group were Lieut. Gen. Thomas W. Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps; Maj. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, Army Deputy Chief of Staff, and Vice Admiral R. S. Edwards, chief of staff to Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States Fleet.

A flourish and a ruffle of drums was a signal for Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, the President's naval aide, to move forward with a huge wreath of yellow crysanthemums. In the President's name, he placed this at the base of the Tomb as a bugler sounded the warrior's requiem, Taps.

President Roosevelt delivered no Armistice Day oration this year. Last year, and the year before that, he spoke before a crowd in the Arlington Amphitheater, and in each case wound up with a cold.

The President, it was learned, invited Gen. John J. Pershing to go to Arlington with him yesterday, but the venerable General of the Armies was not able to attend. Also absent were Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff; Admiral King, Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces, and Admiral William Leahy, the President's chief of staff.

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas.

Patman said he would move in the House to strike out the Steagall hill subsidy ban, and fight it out on that line. Said Patman: "I don't think the Administration will be willing to compromise either. You can't compromise with inflation."

Patman said Congress certainly would sustain a veto: "It's one thing to talk about a price rise and another thing to vote one."

Lebanese Defy French Crackdown

home, while the other members of the government who were arrested were reported taken to an undisclosed destination. Communications between Lebanon and Syria also were severed.

Helleu said over the Beirut radio that the French measures were brought about by a "plot against France" in the Lebanese Parliament's unanimous action in voting changes in the republic's constitution on November 8. It was reported that all 48 deputies who voted for the constitutional amendment also had been arrested.

Despite French opposition, the Parliament, elected several weeks ago, adopted constitutional changes providing that only Lebanese citizens should occupy government posts, the electoral law should be revised, Arabic should be the sole official language and negotiations should be undertaken with the Syrian government for the joint handling of their mutual interests.

The French view expressed in Algiers was that the Lebanon differences arose from the Lebanese demands concerning the French agreement for independence of the country, which the French regard at present as being incompatible with the necessities of war. A spokesman for the French Committee of National Liberation said the committee, headed by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, fully supports Helleu in the present crisis.

It was further explained in Algiers that Lebanon is at present not a French colony nor a mandate but is in the process of attaining the new status of an independent state linked to France by treaty.

The Lebanon parliament's stand was based on the fact that on November 26, 1941, the independence of Lebanon was proclaimed by Gen. George Catroux, then commander of Free French forces in the Middle East. The Arab state had been under French mandate since 1920.

In his protest to the French, Egyptian Premier Nahas said unless French policy was changed and "reestablished logically" that Egypt "would be bound to consider her position vis-a-vis France in the light of events."

British Repaying Us, President Declares

President Roosevelt and Sir John Anderson, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, yesterday informed the legislatures of their two governments that lend-lease has been operating two-way in the common war effort.

The President's twelfth lend-lease report to Congress, and a white paper released simultaneously by the British government, offered "reverse lend-lease" as an answer to critics of the mutual aid program.

President Roosevelt reported aid valued at $1,171,000,000 received from the British Commonwealth of Nations through June 30, and told of plans only now materializing for the United States to receive raw materials, commodities and foodstuffs from the British colonies, without payment.

In London, a British government white paper detailed the British contribution, while Sir John told Parliament: "We ourselves are now furnishing huge supplies without payment, and indeed without calculation, to the United States, to Russia and to our European Allies."

Overwhelming Benefit

Said President Roosevelt: "The overwhelming benefit which the United States has received from its lend-lease program has of course, been the pooling of resources and the combined effort of the United Nations against the Axis countries. Each of the United Nations has contributed."

Most congressional critics of the program, who have alleged "one-way operation, withheld comment pending "further information," but Administration leaders praised the report. House Majority Leader John McCormack said it answered "a lot of these lying, sniping rumors and attacks made on lend-lease."

Of the $1,171,000,000 "reverse-lend-lease" contributed by the British Commonwealth through June 30, the President said about $871,000,000 was expended by the United Kingdom and approximately $300,000,000 by Australia, New Zealand and India. He said British aid to the U. S. armed forces has now reached an annual rate of about $1,250,000,000.

Tells of New Facilities

He told of newly constructed barracks, military airports, hospitals and other military facilities furnished our armed forces by the British, not listing facilities paid for before the U.S. entered the war.

To U.S. bomber and fighter commands, he said they had provided specially heated winter flying clothing, British-type gun sights, target photographic equipment, one-man floating rafts for parachute landings, specialized radio equipment and facilities for producing a new type of protective body armor. American bombers after crash landings are reconditioned in British mobile repair shops, he pointed out.

Listing Australian aid to the United States through June 30 at 196 million dollars, and New Zealand at 51 million dollars, the President said the two Dominions have supplied American forces in the South and Southwest Pacific with the bulk of their foodstuff requirements on a ration scale comparable to the basic allowance of the American Army, in addition to clothing and other services and supplies.

Help From India

From India, he said, had come some $56,900,000 of aid, including aviation and motor gasoline and lubricating oil. While Canada pays in cash for supplies obtained here, the President said Canada already has extended a billion dollars in help to the United Kingdom, and is now arranging another billion aid for United Nations Allies.

Both the British white paper and the President's report told of plans now nearing fruition for free supply to the United States of items formerly purchased from the British colonies. The President said these would include such materials as rubber from Ceylon, Trinidad, British Guiana and British Honduras, cocoa from British West Africa, and asbestos and chrome from Southern Rhodesia.

London White Paper

The London white paper itemized the 871 million dollars in reciprocal United Kingdom aid broadly covered in the President's report, but said it was impossible to estimate the total assistance rendered since British goods and services are being supplied United States armed forces at every base and battlefront in the world.

Unestimated, said the white paper, was the information and experience gained in battle and in research on the strong and weak points of both enemy and Allied tactics: "This is not a service which can be valued in money, but it has cost more in blood and effort than most aid."

The white paper told also of British aid supplied Russia, China and other United Nations allies. It said Russian aid had totaled 716 million dollars through June 30, including 372 million dollars in vehicles and tanks. By the end of May, 1943, it said 4690 planes had been sent to Russia together with supplies and spare parts.

Aid to China has been handicapped by transport difficulties, but Chinese forces in China were supplied on lend-lease terms, the paper said. Credits to other allies through December 31, 1942, was estimated at about 744 million dollars.

General, Only 30, Led Kiev Victory

Moscow, Nov. 12 (AP).—Front dispatches disclosed today that the Red army's youngest general, 30-year-old Lieut. Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky, was the warrior in the field who led the Russians to victory over the German General Dettling in the battle for Kiev.

New War Veteran Employment Plan Adopted by Plant

New York, Nov. 11 (AP).—The General Aircraft Corp. announced this Armistice Day that henceforth it would employ only discharged veterans of the present war as hourly workers.

"This new policy," said H. J. Maynard, jr., president of the firm, "is a deliberate attempt to help in softening the impact of adjusting millions of men to civilian employment after they leave military service.

"If it works in a war plant like ours now and produces evidence that it will assist in our future conversion to peacetime products, it will be something worth copying by thousands of companies throughout the Nation."

Twenty men have already been hired on this basis.

"He doesn't dare miss—those are Whiskey Sours made with Calvert Reserve."

It's really no feat at all to make wonderful Whiskey Sours—IF you use Calvert Reserve. For this whiskey's magnificent "soft" flavor has an exceedingly clever knack of blending with—rather than overpowering—the other ingredients in mixed drinks. Remember, too, that every drop of this whiskey is now being parceled out of precious, limited,* irreplaceable stocks—so, even more so than before, Calvert Reserve is "the choicest whiskey you can drink or serve"!

*Calvert, like every other distiller, is distilling only war alcohol.

'18 Army Might Now Doubled, Stimson Says

By the Associated Press

In an Armistice Day statement, Secretary of War Stimson yesterday said "the United States is once again on the road to victory, with almost double the military might that brought victory on November 11, 1918," and gave reporters these comparisons between the Army 25 years ago and the Army today:

In 1918, the Army had 4,057,101 officers and men, with 2,086,000 overseas; today, the Army is nearing 7,700,000 and by the end of the year 2,500,000 will be overseas.

Casualties in the 19 months of the World War totaled 240,496, with 35,560 killed, 14,720 died of wounds, 205,690 wounded, 46 missing in action, 4480 prisoners.

In the 24 months of this war, Army casualties total 89,650, including 12,841 killed in action or died of wounds, 30,263 wounded, 23,954 missing and 22,592 prisoners.

The Army casualties in this war to date bring to 120,967 the total number of American servicemen killed, wounded, missing or prisoners.

Navy personnel killed or died of wounds since December 7, 1941, total 10,131, wounded 2892, missing 8323, prinoners 2279; marines killed or died of wounds 2101, wounded 2573, missing 635, prisoners 1948; Coast Guard killed or died of wounds 316, wounded 77, missing 41, prisoner 1

Stimson reported yesterday that Army casualties in Italy since the landings at Salerno September 9, total 8556, with 1295 killed, 4764 wounded and 2497 missing.

The losses of British forces in Italy during the same period have been somewhat greater, Stimson said at a press conference, but the exact British figures were not available.

Glancing back over 12 months of Mediterranean operations Stimson estimated 3058 enemy planes shot down in air combat or by Allied antiaircraft fire, 740 probably shot down, and 2453 destroyed on the ground during the year in the area, against a total of 1545 British and American planes lost.

P-CA Asks Routes To Caribbean

Connection of Washington with Central America and the Caribbean islands by air is forecast in a new set of applications for extension of Pennsylvania-Central Airlines' routes, filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday.

P-CA's projected air network covering 8000 miles, would use as continental terminal points New Orleans and Miami which, with other proposed extensions of P-CA routes, would bring our neighbors to the South in direct connection with the Nation's Capital and the industrial sections of the East.

Senate Group Upholds Ship Deals Despite Warren Criticism

The House Merchant Marine Committee yesterday upheld a Maritime Commission transaction, criticized by Comptroller General Lindsay Warren, in which the Commission bought five ships from the Baltimore Mail Steamship Co. for the Navy.

After a long investigation, which began five months ago, the committee, reported it found no irregularities in the transaction and could not, "upon the facts, sustain the conclusion" of the Comptroller General that the deal cost the American taxpayers two million dollars in excessive charges.

The committee approved a report covering another transaction, also criticized by Warren, in which the Commission sold five old vessels to the Waterman Steamship Co. of Mobile, Ala., for $596,000, with option to repurchase at the same price, and later purchased from Waterman five other and older vesels for $3.374,000, instead of exercising its option.

The committee explained, however, that since the comptroller general's report, two of the original five ships were lost and the commission had exercised its option to reacquire the remaining three.

Therefore, the committee concluded, "it appears that the commission has incurred no loss by reason of the transactions under discussion here, except to the extent that operation of the ships in question by the Waterman Steamship Corp. from the end of 1941 to the dates of repurchase, under charter to the WSA, resulted in a profit."

Representative Welch (Republican) of California, ranking minority member of the committee, reserved the right to file minority views on both reports.

Kentucky Results Laid To Poll-Tax Proposal

Warning the Democratic leadership to "remember Kentucky," Representative Colmer (Democrat), Mississippi, told the House yesterday that repeal of the poll tax would not be attempted if the South were not regarded as being "in the bag" for the Democratic ticket next year.

"'Surely this proposed action on the part of the Democratic leadership is not appreciated by a segment of our people who have nurtured and sustained the Democratic Party throughout the years," he said.

2 Marine Officers Win Promotion

Promotion of Brig. Gen. Henry L. Larsen to the rank of major general and of Col. Graves B. Erskine to brigadier general was announced by the Marine Corps yesterday.

Larsen, 52, veteran of 30 years service in the Marines, has been commanding general of Camp Lejeune, New River, N. C., since June. Erskine, 46, a native of Columbia, La., now is serving in the field.

Grand Jury Calls 13 to Testify in Probe of Gallinger

Dr. Edgar A. Bocock and 12 others will be called today to testify before the District grand jury investigating charges of criminal irregularities at Gallinger Hospital, Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly said yesterday.

Bocock and several of the others will be asked to sign waivers of immunity so that the grand jury might indict if it finds valid cases against them.

The other witnesses to testify are Charles C. West, the hospital pharmacist; James R. Gardner, property and supply officer; Arthur E. Files, laundry foreman; Benjamin R. Sims, Philip Bailey, David Fleming, Archie Young, Vauda P. Pickett, Harry Suit, David R. Gorman, Edward E. Williams, all hospital employes, and Clarence Campbell and Kenneth Orr, former employes.

Detour to John Ward "Mastershoes"

It is walk-friction that wears out all shoe soles, inexorably, bit by bit, with each of your thousands of daily steps. "Nothing can be done about it", everyone thought—but that was before John Ward "Mastershoes" were patented.

"Mastershoes" are made by a unique new process. They are so fluently flexible that they walk with you. Instead of grinding along you almost glide along. And, with friction minimized, you get much longer wear—besides saving lots of valuable energy. Don't just take my word for it—try on a pair of "Mastershoes". A dozen delighted steps will convince you that your wartime shoe worries are ended.

44 Nations Plan For Postwar Relief

By Christine Sadler

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 11.—On an Armistice Day 25 years after end of World War I, 44 United Nations today prepared for the end of another and greater struggle by completing organizational framework of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, the agency which will dispense relief and rehabilitation in the wake of World War II.

Signifying the leading role which the United States will have in this, the first international postwar venture, was the unanimous selection of Herbert H. Lehman, former Governor of New York, as director general.

His name was placed in nomination by Tingu F. Tsiang, delegate from China, one of the countries which has suffered most from Axis aggression. Seconds came from Norwegian and Yugoslav delegates, also speaking for the suffering populations of occupied countries, and from Brazil and New Zealand.

In his acceptance speech tonight Lehman called for a recognition of "the fact that any enduring peace" and the promise of a stable world economy depends on wholehearted cooperation in restoring the liberated peoples as rapidly as possible to a self-sustaining basis.

"We have been called upon twice within the span of a lifetime to devise a peace in which all men can live in freedom from fear and want," he declared. "We failed once. We cannot fail again."

It is imperative, he said, that the supplying nations begin immediately to build up stockpiles with which to aid suffering allies as soon as they are liberated. "But if in the initial stages we fail to help people help themselves," he declared, "the opportunity for sound permanent reconstruction may be lost."

Earlier, Assistant Secretary of State Acheson was elected unanimously to be permanent chairman of the council meeting, giving the United States both offices. His selection was made over what he said was the "no secret" desire of this country that another delegate should be accorded the honor.

Three vice chairmen were selected as follows: Sir Owen Dixon, Australian Minister; P. A. Kerstens of the Netherlands and Rafael De La Colina of Mexico.

Closing date of the conference was set for November 27, on basis of a suggestion by Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, that all business be handled as speedily as possible.

The council voted to admit to its meetings the Minister of Denmark, Henrik De Kauffman, and two advisers as special observers, bringing the number of participating countries back to 44. Colombia, which was expected to send observers, decided at the last minute not to do so.

Acheson at a press meeting, indicated the report of the interallied committee on postwar requirements which has been working in London since 1941 would be used as the foundation from which UNRBA will begin work. This report will be presented tomorrow, giving the needs of occupied countries during the first 18 months after their freeing as nearly as it is possible to get estimates before military operations cease.

Among difficulties facing the conference, Acheson listed three:

1. The scope of UNRRA's ventures must be made clear, he said, and set somewhere in between "the soup kitchen" idea and the work needed for permanent reconstruction of the devastated countries.

2. Some sound basis must be reached, he said, "on which legislative bodies can be asked to make contributions" to UNRRA work and a system of finance worked out.

3. Specific problems such as how distribution of relief is to be carried out and how relief and welfare programs are to be administered must be solved, he said.

Acheson declared distribution would be left as much as possible to governments of the countries receiving aid.

The real crisis will come in Europe when German control is ended and other control has not been established, he said. "There will be literally millions of people away from home. Some will want to go home and some will want to go elsewhere. Twenty to thirty million people on the move at once would be a health menace," he declared.

If UNRRA operates effectively, he said, stockpiles of food, medicine and other materials should be "in sight by the end of this winter."

Extemporaneous suggestions at the meeting today were made by the Netherlands delegate, who moved 24 hours be granted for "speeches and decisions covering important matters," and from the Ambassador from Honduras, Julian R. Caceres, that the council send a message of "welcome home and congratulations on his successful mission" to Secretary of State Cordell Hull. Both ideas were adopted.

In accepting his election as a vice chairman, the Australian Minister expressed the hope that rehabilitation in Asia can be started "in the wake of victorious armies" even before the relief job in Europe is completed.

"There has been no lamentation about capital losses suffered in this war," he said. "The masses of men engaged in this struggle do not aim for material wealth, but for peace, security and stability."

He urged against over-optimism about an early end of the war, but said UNRRA should speed up its program on the possibility its services would be needed "in a few months, even a few weeks."

Kiwanis Hears Fulbright on World Peace

Representative Fulbright (Democrat) of Arkansas asserted yesterday that the greatest obstacle to world peace now is the psychological anti-British feeling of a great many Americans, plus the fear of the "unknown," especially where Russia is concerned.

Speaking before a luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Mayflower, Fulbright termed the recently concluded Moscow conference the greatest contribution toward future peace in the past 25 years.

He said it was the initial step of the dominant group (the United States, Britain and Russia) to form a coalition which later will include the smaller nations and eventually will formulate the postwar policies of the entire world.

In the international field, he said, the present piecemeal steps taken were all to the good and that they would form the nucleus of the postwar international machinery. He named specifically the International Advisory Council, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Commission, the remnants of the League of Nations, and the continued cooperation of the various Allied chiefs of staff.

He said that "now, more than ever," Americans must realize the importance of solving international problems. He advocated that legislation be passed through joint resolutions of both the House and Senate. He termed this process much more representative of the desires of the Nation as a whole.

that it brings to the attention of authorities the jurors' suggestion.

They said the only place to which he could be sent would be his native Indian Ocean island of Mauritius, where his titled family settled about the time of the French revolution.

Sands also added that jurors regretted that Lieut. Col. R. A. Erskine-Lindop, commissioner of police at the time of the slaying, was permitted to leave the colony before he testified.

Lindop has been transferred to Trinidad.

The official time of the verdict was 7:20 p. m.

Trouble Maintaining Order

Police had difficulty maintaining order both in the courtroom and outside, where hundreds had awaited the verdict.

Lady Eunice Oakes, the widow, who testified against her son-in-law, left Nassau by plane for Miami this afternoon. She traveled alone.

Instead of going straight to their home, where a big crowd waited outside, De Marigny and Nancy drove first to the home of Chief Defense Counsel Godfrey Higgs.

They planned to go from there to visit Baron Georg at Trolle and his wife, Marie, who is a close friend of Nancy's and has comforted her throughout the trial.

De Marigny was freed with one vote to spare. British procedure permits acquittal on an 8 to 4 vote. Only by a unanimous vote may a defendant be convicted.

De Marigny actually has been in the shadow of the gallows ever since he was committed to the supreme court for jury trial after a preliminary hearing in magistrate's court.

The only two verdicts are guilty or not guilty. On a verdict of conviction, the chief justice would have no alternative other than to pass a sentence of death by hanging.

The Duke of Windsor, Governor of the Bahamas, alone could have granted clemency.

Nancy, who testified in her husband's behalf, looked stunned by the news.

Nobody was permitted to leave the courtroom until the happy couple had gone. Outside was De Marigny's big automobile. A chauffeur had parked it and waited while the blue ribbon jury made its fateful decision.

Jurors had announced at 7:10 that they were ready, and they filed back into the courtroom at 7:15 p. m.

De Marigny was recalled from the police station, where he had been taken.

Police Cry "Silence"

The chief justice returned from his chambers, and entered the jammed courtroom.

Police cried "silence."

As jury foreman Sands announced the verdict, De Marigny looked very serious as he stood in the cage, and Nancy, who took a seat near the door, seemed almost overwhelmed by the drama of the moment.

Sir Oscar thanked the jurors for their service, and excused them from further service for eight years.

A crowd stood in front of De Marigny's Victoria ave. cottage, where Nancy has lived alone since her husband's arrest July 9. The newly-freed man did not appear immediately, but the crowd still awaited.

The end came on the twenty-second day of a trial without precedent in this small British colony.

Never before had the Crown asked for the conviction of a man accused of murder on the basis of fingerprint evidence.

Never before had the burden of testimony in a murder case been borne by American experts retained by each side.

Bludgeoned to Death

Oakes, one of the world's wealthiest men, was bludgeoned to death and his body set on fire at Westbourne, his seaside villa on the night of July 7-8. De Marigny was arrested the following day.

The trial saw Nancy Oakes de Marigny, wife of the defendant and daughter of the victim, and her mother, Lady Eunice Oakes, aligned against each other.

Lady Oakes appeared for the prosecution, describing as a family tragedy the marriage of her daughter, then 18 years old, to the twice-divorced defendant, 16 years older.

Nancy was her husband's final witness and tearfully related the refusal of her family to receive him and told of her decision to remain by his side.

De Marginy, scion of a titled French family, went to the stand to assert his innocence and for almost a day parried a searching cross examination to emerge unshaken.

Fingerprint Swivel Point

The fingerprint was the crux of the case for both sides. The Crown contended it was left by De Marigny on a bedscreen in the room where Sir Harry was slain. The defense countered by asserting the print was faked by detectives brought in by His Majesty's government to assist in the investigation.

Two Miami detectives, Capt. James O. Barker and E. W. Melchen, and a New York police expert, Frank Conway, testified on the point for the Crown. Barker, who said he lifted the print from the screen, spent three days on the stand.

The defense fingerprint experts were Capt. Maurice B. O'Neil of the New Orleans Identification Bureau and Leonarde Keeler, former head of the crime laboratory at Northwestern University.

The statements of the contending experts were in direct conflict and formed the principal issue for the jury to decide.

The chief justice in his charge to the jury pointed to weaknesses in the testimony with which the Crown sought to link De Marigny with the death of his father-in-law last July, but said he could find nothing to support a defense charge of faked evidence.

"There is no halfway measure in this case," he told the picked jurors before sending them to the law library on the second floor of the courthouse to begin their deliberations.

"Your duty is to find the accused guilty or not. There is no evidence here of manslaughter or killing in self-defense.

"If the evidence shows the accused committed the crime, you must find him guilty.

"Likewise, it is your solemn duty to give him the benefit of the doubt."

The chief justice ripped into the testimony of Capt. James C. Barker, the Miami police captain who introduced the fingerprint which was the keystone of the case against De Marigny.

Lifted Print on Rubber

Barker declared he found the print—entered as Exhibit J—on a bedscreen in the room where Sir Harry was struck four times on the head and left to die on a blazing bed. He lifted the print onto a piece of adhesive rubber, he explained, because he feared it would deteriorate in Nassau's humidity and because he had no fingerprint camera with which to photograph it.

Sir Oscar sharply rejected a suggestion by Chief Defense Counsel Godfrey Higgs that the print was faked by Barker and his Miami colleague, Capt. E. W. Melchen.

"I say as presiding judge," he declared, "that to my mind there is no evidence whatsoever to justify allegations made during the trial or to justify any charge of fabricating or falsifying evidence."

The statement was made early in his charge, and he proceeded then to review other aspects at length, but finally he returned to the fingerprint near the end of his discussion—which he carried on with hardly a look at the notes on his desk.

The justice said Barker made "a most extraordinary mistake" in his testimony. At the preliminary hearing, Sir Oscar recalled, Barker marked an area on the screen and swore that he lifted the print from there. But in Supreme Court he admitted he could not point to the exact spot where he found the impression of De Marigny's right little finger.

"I am depending on my memory to tell where the exhibit came from," he said, quoting Barker. Then Sir Oscar detailed lapses of memory which he said caused the officer to make a number of errors.

WLB Group Asks More Labor Curbs

The industry members issuing the call to Congress: George H. Mead, Reuben B. Robertson, James Tanham and Walter T. Margetts.

The public members stated flatly that they would never have bargained with Lewis while the strike was in progress, but failed to reject the compact on that ground because "the majority concluded that the damage had already been done." However, they reaffirmed their policy of not dealing with strikers, thus indicating that other labor leaders would not be granted the same privilege that Lewis received from Ickes.

Meanwhile, the labor scene revealed the following developments:

1. Coal miners refused to work in scattered sections of the country in protest against Government refusal to pay time and a half for Armistice Day.

2. Labor, official voice of the Railroad Brotherhoods, which are now taking a Nation-wide strike vote in protest against Administration rail-wage rulings, stated that early returns from both the operating and nonoperating groups "show the workers are voting close to 100 per cent for strike action."

"The response from these employes demonstrates beyond a doubt how bitterly the men feel over the way they have been treated," David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, was quted as saying.

3. Charging that the Government was following "haphazard and contradictory policies," the AFL Weely News stated that "the only course labor can take is to seek revision of the formula for adjusting wages." The cost of living has risen 15 per cent beyond the Little Steel level, it was asserted.

4. An unauthorized strike which started Tuesday night at the Lehigh Structural Steel Co. plant in Allentown, Pa., continued in spite of pleas from Government and union officials. The strike was caused by adoption of a new wage incentive system which the workers claimed amounted to a pay cut.

The three public members said that it was an "erroneous impression" that the wage stabilization line was breached when the board yielded to Lewis.

Public Members Explain

With respect to the fact that the agreement was strike-borne, they said:

"It was felt that the national interest in time of war would not be served by a rejection of the agreement on the ground that another agency of the Government had done what the board itself would not have done in negotiating a contract while the men were out on strike . . .

"The board reaffirms its policy of declining to treat with strikers. The board is satisfied that the leaders of organized labor who, with one exception, have patriotically kept the no-strike pledge, will continue its policy of not acting on the merits of disputes while strikes are in progress . . .

"These tactics do not warrant a hasty conclusion that the compliance program of the War Labor Board has broken down. . . . There are no indications that the remainder of organized labor will follow this course, which would be so harmful to the best interests of both organized labor and the Nation."

Fleet, Brewster Witness, Angered

president, was without a job when asked to take Brewster presidency and was given a $60,000-a-year salary. He had earned $30,000 when he was Consolidated vice president, Fleet admitted.

Chief charges of mismanagement were reserved by the union official for Frederick Riebel, jr., who directly preceded Henry J. Kaiser, new Brewster president.

"Mr. Riebel, along with so many other labor hoarders operating at Government expense—who have contributed so greatly to our present manpower muddle—failed to remember two basic facts," Krebs told the committee.

"If you have too large a labor force, men get in each other's way and reduce production.

"If you have too large a labor force, some have to loaf. These mismanagement messes must necessarily impair morale and workers' productivity."

The union secretary, who brought in a carefully prepared statement and testified in quiet even tones, told the committee that Riebel's own documents were evidence that the union had begged him to stop hiring until he had found work for employes "literally pleading for work," who were already on the payroll.

Krebs testified that material shortages contributed to production difficulties at the plant. Hoffman denied there yere material shortages, but under questioning admitted there were shortages of parts. He told of production being held up for two days because of a shortage of a certain kind of pins used in assemblage of planes. The delay was eventually traced to a stenographer's failure to route the orders to the stockroom promptly.

Detailing many of the negotiations with Riebel, including charges of "union busting," Krebs said:

"Mr. Riebel was utterly unable to comprehend the many difficulties confronting Brewster, and because of his inability to grasp the situation, he tried to make labor the scapegoat for Brewster's complex production shortcomings. I repeat, I sincerely believe it was not only unfair to our Nation, but also unfair to Mr. Riebel to put him in this position."

Kress Presents Table

To the repeated introduction into the record by Chairman Drewry (Democrat) of Virginia of charges that strikes and slowdowns had caused the loss of 33 planes for the Navy, Kregs introduced a table, using the same theoretical basis, to show that for every plane theoretically lost by a strike or slowdown, 70 were lost by inefficient management.

His table indicated that if 33 planes were lost by labor, 2130 were lost by the management in the 17 months subsequent to the Navy's seizure of the plant, but, he warned, the whole basis of both figures was false and it was as unfair to charge management with that loss as it was unfair to charge labor. He discussed the multitude of engineering problems which had held up production.

Fleet cleared Consolidated of any complicity in the $65,000 "slush fund" raised by Brewster and two other companies to secure a change in the Revenue Act of 1940.

About $65,000 Fund

This issue, strictly an aside in the Brewster investigation, has developed that the amendment was introduced by Clyde Herring, then Democratic Senator from Iowa, after $65,000 had been paid out chiefly to W. D. Jamieson, Washington attorney, former Democratic Representative from Iowa, and Frank J. Comfort, Democratic National Committeeman from Iowa.

Fleet said he had been approached in the matter of contributing to the fund, had told James Work, first Brewster president, he would ask his attorneys, and had done absolutely nothing about the affair at all. The amendment was, he said, of no benefit to Consolidated.

and moved on forward up the slope, still under fire, to a second trench which he also cleared of the enemy. Then he went on up the mountains in the face of the barrage and reached the strategic pass.

"Standing up on the ridge overlooking the pass leading into Chichagof Harbor, he emptied his rifle into the Japanese positions just below and beyond the pass," the War Department said. "He was mortally wounded with his rifle still at his shoulder, absorbing all enemy fire and permitting all units to move up behind him and successfully take and hold the pass."

The capture of this pass, said the Army, was "an important preliminary to the end of organized hostile resistance" on the Island of Attu.

Exposed to Disease

The 50 privates who volunteered to expose themselves to malaria were quartered in a swampy cocoanut grove near a native village which was filled with malaria-infected natives.

For six weeks, the soldiers spent their working hours at hard physical labor, and no steps were taken to protect them from the deadly anopheles mosquito. An unknown number contracted malaria and received prompt treatment, but only after they had become victims of the disease.

Two other groups of soldiers took part in the test. One group was given atabrine as a malaria suppressive and the other a new type of drug.

Complete reports have not been received on the condition of the men in the first group who contracted malaria, but as far as the records show here, none have died.

Ballou to Get Check for $1400

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, who retired as superintendent of schools last month after 23 years' service, will be presented with a $1400 check by representatives of the District school personnel today at 11 a. m. in the Franklin School. The presentation will climax observance of National Education Week here.

Presidents of local educational organizations will participate in the ceremony. The money was contributed by school employes and education officials to finance a trip for Dr. and Mrs. Ballou.

Committee Agrees On New Tax Bill

integrating the victory tax with the regular income levy by increasing the normal rate from 6 to 10 per cent, retaining the present personal exemptions for the regular income tax, suspending the existing earned income credit for the duration, and providing that no personal income tax shall be less than 3 per cent of the net income in excess of a personal exemption of $500 for a single person, $700 for married persons and $100 as an exemption for each dependent.

This last provision amounted to final rejection of the Treasury's proposals to remove from the tax rolls 9 to 12 million persons brought in under the victory tax.

The committee plan, Chairman Doughton explained, would require certain changes in existing surtax rates. He added that they would "make no difference in the overall income tax yield." Detailed tables, made public by the committee, however, tended to show a slight downward provision in the surtax brackets from $6000 to $12,000 and slight increases in the brackets from $38,000 upward.

Approved changes in the present law were announced as follows:

The bill reduces the area of renegotiation as follows:

1. By increasing the existing exemption of $100,000 to $500,000.

2. By exempting agricultural products.

3. By narrowing the definition of subcontracts to include only those articles to become a component part of the final product.

4. By exempting all subcontracts under exempt prime contracts and subcontracts.

5. By providing for the discretionary exemption of standard commercial articles, as defined in the bill in cases where competitive conditions have been restored.

The bill establishes a new war contracts price adjustment board of five members representing the Treasury, War and Navy Departments, the Maritime Commission and the Reconstruction Finance Corp. This board will review, on petition of the contractor, decisions of the departmental boards.

Mrs. Roosevelt Lectures Tonight

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will lecture on her five-week tour of the Southwest Pacific to members of the National Geographic Society at Constitution Hall tonight. Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president, who will introduce the speaker, said that the lecture had been sold out.

In her address, "My Day in the Southwest Pacific," Mrs. Roosevelt will tell what the boys are doing.

Four Nominees Selected for Bishop

Dr. Franklin J. Bohanan, president of the special convention, chairman of the diocesan standing committee, and formerly rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Parish.

Special committees headed by Dr. Armand T. Eyler, rector of St. Margaret's Church and president of the Washington Ministerial Union, and Henry P. Blair, well-known layman from St. Mark's Church, considered 52 names as possible candidates, including well-known local and nearby Episcopal clergymen.

Dr. Dun is a native of New York City, where he was born May 4, 1892. He received his bachelor of arts from Yale University in 1914. He then attended the Episcopal Theological Seminary, where he now is the dean. There he also received his bachelor of divinity degree in 1917. The dean married Miss Catherine Whipple Pew in 1916. They have two children. He served the school with which he now is affiliated as professor in the department of theology until his election as dean in 1940.

Dr. Aldrich was born in Fall River, Mass., in 1892. He was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1917. He also attended the Episcopal Theological School from which he graduated in 1922. In 1919 he was married to Miss Frances W. Learned. They have two children. In 1920 he joined the Cathedral Church of St. Paul staff in Boston, after his ordination in the diaconate, and remained there until 1925. He then left to assume his present pastorate which he built up to one of the strongest in the diocese. He has been chairman of the church congress since 1935.

Dr. Stark was born in Waverly, N. Y., in 1894, and was graduated from Trinity College in 1917 with the B. A. degree. He attended the Episcopal Theological Seminary from which he received the B. D. degree. He was married to Miss Mary Addie Leith in 1920 and they have four children. He became curate of St. Mark's Church, Mauch Chunk, Pa., in 1920 after his ordination to the diaconate. In 1926 he became vicar of Holy Trinity Church, St. James Parish, New York City. He went to his present post in 1932. During the last World War he served as an ensign in the Navy.

Doctor Sweet was born in Michigan in 1883. He obtained his B.A. from Yale in 1905 and the B.D. in 1908 from the Episcopal Theological Seminary. He married Miss Elta Mae Armstrong of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, in 1907. They have one child. He was curate of St. John's Church, Jersey City, N. J., from 1908 until 1910 when he went to St. Stephen's in Jersey City as rector. He remained there until 1918 when he went to St. Paul's Church, Columbus, Ohio, where he remained until he became the dean of St. Louis Cathedral in 1931.

Among them were C. Leslie Glenn, on as Navy chaplain from St. John's Church, Lafayette Square; the Rev. F. Bland Tucker, rector of St. John's Church, Georgetown, and brother of Bishop Henry St. George Tucker, Episcopal Presiding Bishop; Dr. Charles W. Sheerin of Epiphany Church; the Rev. Edward E. R. Welles, rector of Christ Church, Alexandria; Dr. Charles T. Warner of St. Alban's Church; Dr. Theodore O. Wedel, canon chancellor of the Cathedral; the Rev. Clyde Brown, diocesan missioner; Canon W. Curtis Draper of the Cathedral; Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, formerly of the Washington Cathedral, and now retired; Dr. Howard S. Wilkinson, rector of St. Thomas' Church; the Rev. Albert J. DuBois, rector of St. Agnes' Church, now an Army chaplain; the Rev. Edward Gabler, rector of Christ Church, Navy Yard.

Wanted by Fleischmann!
Good Judges of Good Whiskey To Try a Great New Brand!

TASTE! BODY! AROMA! These are the three qualities of a superb whiskey—and in Fleischmann's PREFERRED you find all three! The taste is rich, delicious! The body round, and full! The aroma, delicate!
Wouldn't You Like to Serve a Whiskey that has the Full, Ripe Richness of the World's Finest, Most Limited Brands? If you would, now you can! Read why!
● This invitation is written for the few men who are really good judges of good whiskey . . . who can appreciate a whiskey that is as gloriously rich, creamy and delicious as the world's finest, most limited brands—and who do not need a high price to confirm them in their judgment.
We set out several years ago to see if we could make such a whiskey. We spared no expense. We experimented. We drew from the world's choicest reserves. We selected the finest grains, and backed them up with the world's most delicate skill.
The result is—Fleischmann's PREFERRED, one of the world's most remarkable whiskies. Velvety! Creamy! Full! Delicious! We are sorry that we can offer Fleischmann's PREFERRED only in limited amounts as all our distilling facilities are devoted 100% to the war effort. If your dealer has Fleischmann's PREFERRED, try it! You'll always be glad you did!

THE WORLD'S GREATEST "MANHATTAN"? We say so! Take 1 dash of Angostura Bitters, ¾ oz. sweet vermouth, and 1½ oz. of Fleischmann's PREFERRED! Stir with ice, strain into 4-oz. glass, add one Maraschino cherry!
FOR AN "OLD FASHIONED" that tastes like cream — to ½ level teaspoon granulated sugar, 2 or 3 dashes of bitters in an Old Fashioned glass, add just enough water to dissolve sugar. Muddle! Add ice cubes, 1½ oz. of Fleischmann's PREFERRED. Garnish with cherry, twisted lemon peel, or orange and pineapple!
FLEISCHMANN'S PREFERRED BLENDED WHISKEY
FLEISCHMANN'S PREFERRED Blended Whiskey. The straight whiskies in this product are 4 years or more old; 35% straight whiskies, 65% neutral spirits distilled from grain. 90 Proof.

Mr. Hull

It is given to few men in our public life to achieve their greatest success on the further side of 70. Secretary Stimson is in that select company. Now Secretary Hull, for the part he played in the Moscow agreements, has joined it. Many circumstances and many persons conspired to bring about a meeting of minds on the part of the four powers meeting in Moscow. There was, for instance, the recognition of the dynamic and decisive reality of Russia. No plan for the security of postwar Europe could hope to succeed without the wholehearted cooperation of the Soviet Union. And that cooperation could be obtained only by acquiescing in the leadership asserted by the Russians in eastern Europe. It is in this context that the new solidarity must be judged.

Mr. Hull's great contribution to the result, however, was much more than that of a missioner. In him the Russians recognized a man who was prepared to back agreement with his reputation for sincerity and high-mindedness. That accounts for the cordiality attending the birth of the four-power modus and for the pledge of its development. Certainly the rapport would have lacked something in both warmth and mutual trust without Mr. Hull's participation. The Russians know, as we know, that the agreements are assured of the support of the American people in great part because Mr. Hull put his name to them.

It must be a matter of singular satisfaction to the Secretary of State that he should thus find out in Moscow how much strength has been imparted to his diplomacy by the confidence which is reposed in him by his own people. In truth, he has become a symbol as a man of conviction. That that symbol has become the instrument for steering our country along a path that can lead only to peace and concord is cause for general gratification. We welcome Mr. Hull back from his triumph. He is already among our historical figures. In the annals of our continental story he is assured of a niche among our outstanding statesmen. By riveting our association with the three powers into a grand coalition, he has done a general's job in bringing about the downfall of Hitler, and, before he is mustered out, he will have been regarded as an artificer of an ampler life for all mankind.

Reforming Congress

Of all the recent moves to reform Congress, we believe the Maloney-Monroney resolution has the best chance of success. For Senator Maloney and Representative Monroney are not attempting to tell Congress offhand how its business should be conducted. They propose a 12-man joint committee drawn from both parties to investigate congressional procedure in the light of modern demands upon Congress and then to report its findings and recommendations to the House and Senate. We have suggested such a committee many times in the last few years in the belief that Congress can be reformed only by Congress itself.

The need for modernization of our legislative machinery of government is no longer open to question. That is evident in many actions of both the House and Senate as well as in their failure to act on some vital issues. The simple fact is that neither house is properly organized to handle the staggering questions of policy that crowd in upon it. Power over legislation is carelessly diffused among too many committees with no central cohesiveness to keep Congress as a whole operating in the national interest. Congress does an enormous amount of work, but much of its effort is wasted because of this loose organization.

One other difficulty is that Congress tries to do too much work without expert assistance. Recently it has begun to hire more investigators and research men. This practice probably ought to be greatly expanded and regularized, as it has been in the case of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation. If Congress is to remain a great legislative body in this complicated age, it must have the tools to work with and the expert assistance that is accorded every administrative bureau as a matter of course.

Which reforms should be undertaken and which are impracticable, however, must be left for Congress to decide. Reform from within will not be easy because of the vested interests of committee chairmen in their present or prospective jobs and because of the general inertia that works against change. Yet it is obvious that only a program of modernization sponsored by a strong joint committee has any real chance of being accepted. The political scientists behind this move can do their best work after a congressional study group has taken the leadership. Friends of congressional reform may well turn their wholehearted support, therefore, to the Maloney-Monroney resolution.

Philippine Presidency

Senator Tydings' resolution to continue President Quezon of the Philippine Commonwealth in office gave Congress a difficult choice of evils. From the military viewpoint it is obviously desirable to keep at the head of the Filipino government in exile the man who symbolizes resistance in the islands to the Japanese invaders. To do so, however, requires a breach in the Philippine constitution that makes an unfortunate precedent for any new popular government. Only that fact accounts for the sizable vote against the resolution in the House. The opposition does not in any way suggest lack of sympathy with the Filipino cause.

Probably the most potent influence behind the approval of the resolution in both houses of Congress was the agreement between the two Filipino officials whose personal careers were at stake. If no action had been taken, Mr. Quezon would have been out of office next Monday and Vice President Osmena would have taken his place. Yet they presented a united front in asking Congress to continue them in the offices they now hold. Congress could not have done otherwise without letting down the Filipino government in exile. Passage of the resolution at least puts the United States in the position of following the leadership of the only Philippine government that is not upheld by Japanese bayonets.

Before there was agreement among Filipino officials on this issue, The Post spoke in opposition to a move then afoot to have President Roosevelt extend Mr. Quezon's term. It is a very different matter for Congress and the President to join in granting the united request of the Philippine government in exile. The present solution of the dilemma is not ideal, but it is probably the best that can be made in the circumstances. Certainly the avoidance of a fight among the exiled Filipino officials is a real achievement and a tribute to the statesmanship of Vice President Osmena. We hope that President Quezon, who is held in the highest esteem by the American people, will recover his health and be able to take full advantage of the new opportunity that has been given him to inspire his people to resistance. For every hope for freedom and constitutional government in the Philippines is contingent upon driving the Jap invaders out.

Lend-Lease

The newspapers, unwittingly no doubt, gave the public at home and abroad a very distorted impression of the tone, temper and contents of the Truman Committee report on postwar conversion problems. It was regarded as a document on lend-lease problems. In point of fact, only brief reference was made to the connection between the lend-lease program and the principal issue under discussion. But emphasis on that one section combined with provocative newspaper headlines, conveyed the idea that the Truman Committee members are bitterly critical of the system as it is now operated and convinced we are getting a "raw deal."

To be sure, the committee did refer to the rubber monopoly that forced us to pay exorbitant prices for prewar British-owned rubber while we were being called Shylocks for requesting repayments of World War 1 war loans. This raking up of old grievances was designed, however, to buttress suggestions that we ought to consider now the terms and conditions under which any such rubber monopoly should be continued after this war. This proposal, reasonable enough per se, though inopportune, suggested other possibilities of remuneration such as taking payment in kind for petroleum needed by England through transfer of an equivalent value of foreign petroleum reserves or of English-held securities of corporations having title to such reserves.

The Truman report declares that lease-lend was never intended as a device to shift a portion of the war costs of our Allies to us, but only as a realistic recognition that they did not have the means to pay for needed materials. In so saying it does not fairly state the issue. The real question is to what extent our war costs can properly be segregated from those of our Allies in a joint enterprise such as that on which we have embarked. That question is really unanswerable, and the reason why that is so is clearly indicated in a British White Paper published today called A Report On Mutual Aid. In that report presented by the Chancelor of the Exchequer an attempt is made for the first time to appraise in detail the value of some of the services rendered by the British in exchange for what we have advanced to them.

The summary is impressive, but what the report shows most clearly is the impossibility of ascertaining the comparative value of the mutual lend-lease aid furnished by Britain and the United States, respectively. In the first place, it is almost impossible, as the White Paper states, to obtain information from operational areas. Secondly, comparisons based on money values lead to serious underestimates of the British contribution in view of higher American price levels. Finally, the national sacrifice represented by lend-lease aid cannot be determined by comparing the value of the aid extended by Britain with the value of the goods and services supplied by us. For, as the British report well states, "The claims of war against each [of the United Nations] are the same, that is, they should give all they have." If we keep that thought in mind, we shall avoid laying up a lot of trouble for the future.

Poll Tax

A strike is even more reprehensible on the part of members of Congress than on the part of the workers. Yet the Senators are laying plans to stage a strike. We refer to the scheme to kill the anti-poll-tax measure which the Judiciary Committee hopes to report out today. Senator Bilbo, who has already shown extraordinary powers of endurance as a filibusterer, is preparing to enter the fray again. His like-minded colleagues can be counted upon to do their share in prolonging the debate.

The damage done to the prestige of Congress by a senatorial filibuster in the midst of a war that imposes tremendous responsibilities upon the legislative branch of the Government will not shake the determination of certain Southern Senators to talk the anti-poll-tax bill to death. For this is a contest in which more than States' rights and political principles are at stake. Senatorial jobs are also an issue. In the poll-tax States the percentage of otherwise qualified voters who cast ballots in Federal elections is extremely small. Hence the Congressmen and Senators from those States are elected by a small and select group of voters whom it is comparatively easy to attract and hold. Given such conditions, elective officials dread the thought of any change in the qualifications for voting that would increase the number and change the composition of the voting population.

It would be grossly unfair, of course, to suggest that every opponent of anti-poll-tax legislation from the poll-tax States is motivated solely by selfish considerations. However, the instinct of self-preservation is undoubtedly a powerful factor in buttressing resistance to the proposed legislation and increasing the chances for successful filibustering. Under existing circumstances, therefore, legislators who press for a showdown on poll-tax legislation in the midst of war are doing their country a very poor service.

Disappearing Oil

The American people have been told so often that the Nation's oil resources were fast being dissipated that they are strongly inclined to discount predictions of dearth ahead. In the past, new discoveries and new techniques have come to our aid and they may do so in the future. However, we cannot afford to ignore the current warning of Deputy Petroleum Administrator Ralph K. Davies who told the American Petroleum Institute that "we face a definite shortage of crude oil in this country in the coming year unless the unforeseen happens in a new discovery or the estimates for military requirements do not prove out."

Even more disturbing is Mr. Davies' prediction that this Nation has probably passed the peak of its productive capacity and that under current conditions it is going to be increasingly difficult and costly to locate new reserves. At the present rate of consumption, moreover, we shall within a comparatively few years completely exhaust our known oil reserves, estimated at approximately 28 billion barrels. Hence the national interest requires that we take steps now to reduce the drain upon these limited reserves by encouraging the production of synthetic oil and the extraction of gasoline from coal.

With that aim the Senate has passed a bill authorizing the spending of $30 million dollars for developmental work in this field. The proposal has been criticized on the ground that as prices of natural oil rise, private industry will go into the business of synthetic oil production without waiting for the Government to show the way. However, experience has proved that private industry cannot be relied upon to provide all of the materials needed to prosecute a war. Private industry necessarily works to obtain profits and must consider the costs of experimentation. The delay in getting the manufacture of synthetic rubber under way after our sources of supply had been cut off is a reminder that private enterprise does not always rise to the demands of a national emergency.

WHEN THE CHECK IS PAID: 1943

Which of us, among the young men, if there must be one to say "The life of laughing is over now," and we my dears, those who were gay—
Who will speak the epilogue and bow?

Who will have the heart to rise and bid the fiddlers finish, twist
the lights so it be dark, and in the last glow take mark and throw the goblet hard against the stone?
Who will say "Comrade, clench your fist on emptiness and feel your fingers closing on the dark—not even root within a grasp where the full fruit of life lay once." And who will list the leavings, as—column one for memory,
which covers mirth and all that lingers of the scent and sound, that happiness.
Then, column two for bitterness, vital, stark and strong, but whose power passes in the dark.

No one need speak, neither young nor old,
for we are told within ourselves; no one need rise to lead us out, for we will look, and light will come . . . once we are accustomed to the dark within our eyes.

Wage-Hour Law

By Mark Sullivan

Used To Raise Wages

THE WHIRLWIND—centering about the coal strike, the increase of wages granted the miners' union and Mr. John L. Lewis' victory over the Administration—died down, leaving a practically universal impression of ruin believed to have been created. The thing supposed to have been ruined was the War Labor Board's limit on wage increases, its so-called "Little Steel" formula.

It was said that with Mr. Lewis getting an increase, other labor leaders would be obliged to demand increases. This belief was promptly confirmed. After the hurricane came flood—a flood of demands for higher wages, a flood that threatened to engulf the "Little Steel" formula.

Then came an extraordinary thing. The chairman of the War Labor Board, Mr. William H. Davis, stood up against the flood. He said that the War Labor Board would stand firm on its "Little Steel" formula, that the board would resist increases in wages.

If the board does stand firm, we shall see now the decisive battle. Up to now the Administration has had a gadget by which it has been able to juggle. It has been able to say it was standing by the "Little Steel" formula—but at the same time has been able to grant material increases in wages. But the gadget by which this has been done is now at an end.

TO UNDERSTAND, bear in mind a distinction between two things. One is "wage rates"—that is, wages per hour. The other is the total wages received by a worker per week—the total he gets in his envelope Saturday night.

Wage rates per hour is what the "Little Steel" formula deals with. The War Labor Board, over a year ago, set a limit beyond which there should be no increase in wage rates, in any industry. This limit is, 15 per cent above whatever had been the wage rate in the given industry on January 1, 1941.

But the War Labor Board, and the Administration, was able to turn to its gadget, a kind of ace-in-the-hole. The gadget was a law called the wage-hour law.

The wage-hour law had been enacted during the period of great unemployment — and for the purpose of relieving unemployment, of spreading what jobs there were over a larger number of workers. The wage-hour law said that no employer should keep anybody at work more than 40 hours a week. To insure that employers abide by this limit, the wage-hour law said that if any worker was kept at work more than 40 hours, he must be paid a higher wage rate, time and a half, for the extra hours.

When labor unions asked for higher wage rates per hour, the Administration replied, in effect: "We decline to grant you a higher wage rate per hour—but we hereby decree that the work-week in your industry be increased from 40 hours to a higher figure, 48 hours or what-not; and that for the extra hours you shall receive time-and-a-half." This amounted to an increase in wages per hour. A worker who formerly got $40 a week—that is, a dollar per hour for 40 hours—now got $52 for a 48 hour week. This is an average per hour of about $1.08, an increase of about 8 cents per hour.

BY THIS device, the War Labor Board, and the Administration, has been able to maintain its stand of no wage increases beyond the "Little Steel" formula—but at the same time grant higher wages. However, this ace in the hole has now about come to an end. For in most industries the number of hours per week has been increased to the limit of what is practicable—48 hours, 52 hours, or what not.

The last squeeze that could be got out of this gadget was used to grant the increase of wages Mr. John L. Lewis got the other day. Mr. Lewis was given a wage increase, but on condition that the miners work a greater number of hours—actually, in this case, a greater number of minutes. Mr. Lewis was required to promise that the miners reduce their lunch time from 30 minutes to 15.

With the possibilities of the wage-hour law exhausted, the War Labor Board must now meet demands for wage increases head-on, without equivocation. Chairman Davis says the board will refuse to grant increases. If it does, we shall see a real battle.

"Mad Dogs"

Relative to the current "mad-dog" epidemic scare, may I speak as one who knows dogs from 25 years' experience of handling thousands of them. I have been bitten by them just twice, once by a poor thing burning up with red mange, once by a lost poodle with ragged coat matted with torturing burrs. In 12 years at our own shelter four or five agents suffered a bite apiece. Only one boded ill because carelessly neglected; the rest were bathed in hot water and antiseptic and forgotten. Of thousands, only one dog might have been suspicioned; we were cautioned. He had to be handfed carefully. After being put to sleep a chance inquiry came about a lost pet with a broken jaw. The "mad-dog" answered the description and he was out of misery without a rabies scare.

Citizen's War

By Paul Schubert

Reverse Exhortation

THIS IS the first war in which those at the top have been able to follow the citizen through every waking hour with messages calculated to keep the population in line. Newspapers, billboards, posters, leaflets, motion-picture shorts, magazine articles, mimeographed handouts—and, of course, the radio.

"Here is a message from your Government . . ."

Thousands of times a day the voice of the transcribed announcement flings its mechanical message into the air, coaxing, threatening, educating, promising, demanding, all in the name of the "war effort."

Nor do the various campaigns stop here. Commentators, script writers, newscasters, comedians—everyone on the air fits in somewhere, each is called on to "plug" for the immediate goal.

Rip out your oil burner . . . change to coal . . . Plant a victory garden . . . don't use electricity . . . buy coal now . . . don't order coal now . . . gas rationing is really mileage rationing . . . buy a bond . . . back the attack . . . back the war fund . . . share your coal . . . don't change your job . . . prevent inflation . . . insulate your home . . . order coal but don't expect to get it.

ON THE whole our citizenry, being patient, cooperative and intelligent, accepts all this high-pressure admonition as the somewhat gabby and blundering, but good-hearted effort of the fungus growth called Washington to cope with a situation chronically over the Washington head. We are used to having advertising rammed down our throats whether we like it or not. Peacetime products are sold to us during peacetime. Why not have a war sold to us during wartime—a good many people would find it quite natural to have their radios begin telling them "This is the biggest and best war this country has ever had—don't waste it."

Except that once in a while, in his occasionally sour moods, the citizen wishes that he could reverse the process.

Why should this war be one in which the mysterious people at the top always know all the answers, and treat the citizen in the street as a blundering dope who must be educated to the right way to fight a war—like a kid being educated to brush his teeth (always with Dentadont)?

A good many of our people are sorry, but they find war an acutely personal and painful experience. In part, being sensitive, they suffer from the world's pain. Besides that, they can't help worrying about their sons.

THE PARENTS who know merely that young Bucky has passed through the Panama Canal heading west in a fairly small and frail vessel—but who can't be told, for "security reasons," whether the cockleshell is bound for relatively safe and monotonous patrol duties in the Hawaiian area, or for the storms of the outer Aleutians, or for the danger of the Southwest Pacific Combat Zone—such people are sorry, but they lie awake at night, sometimes, and speculate . . . they even worry whether the cockleshell is well built, or whether it might have been slapped together on a hurry-up war contract . . . they wonder what would happen if it sprang a leak. They even wonder about such dumb things as whether it is built of wood or steel—

Citizens like these look at Washington, sometimes, with a jaundiced eye.

Why, they ask, should Washington think the war belongs to Washington? This war belongs to us, they say.

This is our war—and Washington is running it for us.

Washington better run it right, or there will be hell to pay.

The citizen wishes he could turn the radio around, and exhort the Government 24 hours a day.

This is our war—take it seriously.

You are dealing with our money—those are our war bonds, our savings. It's our coal, our national wealth, our oil, our food that you are rationing. We understand that the big and powerful unions find this a golden moment to put the pistol to your heads . . . but don't let them put it to ours. All of us know, in our own communities, many honest small-time working people, grocery clerks and such, who are still on pre-Pearl Harbor wages, no overtime, no war bonanza . . . Remember us—we are the citizens.

This war belong to the man in the street.

We are the citizens. "You can fool some of the people . . ."

Remember how it goes? It still holds true.

Farcical Procedure

If Mr. Sullivan's article in the November 8 issue of The Post, with the subtitle, "Surrender to Lewis," could be reprinted once a week for several months in every leading paper in the country, a great purpose in public education would be served. Mr. Sullivan does not weaken his statement by the use of explosive adjectives, or by any show of violent denunciation. His clear and forceful recital of the bare facts in the case is enough to portray vividly another abject surrender of the Federal Government to a labor dictator.

The absurd but frequent spectacle of two Federal agencies in conflict with each other, the repeated setting aside of the findings of one commission or special committee, and the appointment of another to go over exactly the same ground, at the behest of some pressure group controlling many votes. The outcome of the whole farcical procedure, which is obvious from the beginning, is enough to make men and women capable of independent thinking ashamed of their Government, and all at a time when we as a Nation have a great stake in winning and holding the respect of the people of other nations.

Tripartite Commission

We assume that after the present war the United States will enter a world-wide pact to insure stability, and that Britain's age-long fear of a strong combination of European states will consequently be allayed. It will, therefore, be possible to achieve genuine economic cooperation between the industrial states of Austria, Germany and the industrial part of Poland, on the one hand, and the Balkan agricultural states on the other.

One of the greatest disabilities of the central European region, however, is their lack of various raw materials, such as vegetable oils and fats, fibers, and certain minerals. However, many of these are abundantly available in the colonies of the Netherlands, Belgium, and Portugal and in the former German colonies. Arrangements should be made so that central Europe shall have assured access for the necessary development of these resources either through direct operation or through agreements with the existing colonial powers.

The above program should be put into effect by the Tripartite Commission—American, British, Russian—that has been formed to advise and carry on during the postwar transition period. While a certain economic unity and cooperation of the central European and Balkan states would thus be established, the several racial communities should be given the fullest cultural autonomy. The general political situation should be supervised, however, by an international organization.

Contract Before Country

Consider the mottoes of our armed services:

United States Naval Academy (Annapolis)—Ex Scientia Tridens (from knowledge, power).

United States Military Academy (West Point)—Duty, Honor, Country.

United States Coast Guard—Semper Paratus (always prepared).

Several million servicemen are daily measuring up in full to the high standards of their respective services, without flinching, backbiting, or deserting.

No less to be mentioned are the millions of warworkers who remain faithful to their jobs, true to their promise not to strike, and firm in their determination not to desert or let down the men who are fighting and dying for this country in all parts of the world.

What is the motto of the United Mine Workers? It has never been published in words, but has been loudly proclaimed by actions: Contract Before Country. The guns, ships, and other supplies so vitally needed by our fighting men and service of supply can cheerfully rot as far as this union is concerned. Their desertion of our fighting men, and stab in the back of their country, far exceeds in treachery Mussolini's stab in the back of mortally wounded France. At least Mussolini stabbed another country

The American people in general, and our servicemen in particular, will not be in a hurry to forget this display of weakness, cowardice, and desertion in our country's hour of peril and dire need.

Traffic Light

Recently there was installed at the intersection of Florida and Sherman aves. nw. a traffic signal. This dangerous corner had long been without a light, and was the scene of many violent and unnecessary accidents. The new light is, therefore, a great improvement. However, the authorities who devised the operation of this light have obviously not paid much attention to the construction of the intersection, nor to the flow of traffic.

At present there are two green arrows for traffic northerly bound on Florida ave. One points left for drivers continuing on Florida ave.; the other points right for traffic proceeding up Sherman ave. This is clearly unnecessary and conducive to congestion, since the east side of Florida ave. is not broken by any intersecting street, and consequently north and south bound traffic on Sherman ave. cannot possibly interfere with each other. An additional benefit, with no possibility of danger, can be provided by allowing the right arrow to remain on all the time.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Private Purkey Offers A 15-Minute Lunch

Dear Ed:

Well I been hearing more about the coal strike settlement back home and the idea of only taking fifteen minutes for lunch gave me a idea. I took it up with Sergeant Mooney and told him flat I got a lot of demands to make on the Army for better hours and more pay and that I will agree to eat for only fifteen minutes in the middle of the day if I win out.

* * * *

I do not get no place with Mooney. He points out that in my contrack with the army there is nothing which says I even get fifteen minutes for lunch. It does not say nothing about eating. The sarge points out that even if I get no lunch at all sometimes, I just got to laugh it off. And the same goes for breakfast and dinner in case a hot battle is on. I tries to get him to see that, while he may be tecknically right, a lot of trouble will be avoided if I sign up for a fifteen-minute lunch even if I don't get it.

* * * *

He will not even listen so I goes to the general. I tells him I got to have a dollar and a half a day more and better working conditions. He says I made the same demands last May and he turned me down and I explains to him that nothing a man says in May is any good in November, and I shows him a clipping about what happens in the coal strike. I make it plain to him that I want the eight-hour day, no fighting on Sundays and holidays, two weeks vacation with pay and a union army.

* * * *

He gets soar and says the decision is final but on account of I have followed the coal strike news from the start I know this is just a gag. If Roosevelt can change his mind why can't Eisenhower? Well, he tries to be firm but I tell him it can be worked out if he gives me all these things on account of I will cut down my lunch hour. Just when he is beginning to weaken a new offensive breaks out and he runs out on me.

* * ** *

But I takes it all up with my policy committee and it is holding meetings now to decide what I do next. I think I will increase my demands to include:

1. No more k. p. duty.
3. No more powdered eggs.
4. A helper to clean my gun.
5. Modern plumbing at the front.

* * * *

I will even take five minutes for lunch or even cut it out altogether if I can get the above. I will let you know how it comes out.

Yours,
OSCAR.

P. S.—My policy committee just sent down word from a hotel for me to throw down my gun and refuse to fight unless the general gives in. I threw it down. When I get out of the guard house, if I ever do, I will write you again.

It's the War

I once objected when I knew
That nearby some one cooked a stew;
Now, like a fox, who scents the air,
I've trained my senses to compare
The faintest air-borne hint of ham,
With vapors of the far distant lamb;
Inhaling now, with door ajar,
I savor steaks that broil afar.

Everything's going my way!

We think this is of tremendous significance. Taken advantage of, it can establish a trend in production methods that may stir the world. Or that all production chiefs take lessons from Frankie and then, hurrying back to the troubled plants, smoothe out everything with song.

Election Moratorium

Election campaigning in this country will put a severe strain on good relations between war allies, because of malicious, indiscreet, uninformed or stupid criticisms broadcast to the world during the heat of political struggling. What a blessing would be a simple statement from the White House that, if next year's election should be canceled, a national election would take place 12 months following the signing of an armistice, and that the present President would not be a candidate at that time.

Facts About The War

By Ernest Lindley

German Collapse Unlikely

PRIME MINISTER Churchill's sober words about the war were welcomed in official quarters in Washington. They accord with the best judgment here. Preparations have long been under way to deal the death blows to the armed might of Germany in 1944. They are now well advanced. If the plans are successfully executed, Germany should be completely defeated by the autumn of next year, possibly a few months sooner.

LINDLEY

Of course, Germany may fall apart internally and give up any time from now on. In Lord Halifax's words, the war against Germany has reached the stage "where anything may happen." If Germany collapses within the next few weeks or months, it will be a windfall, saving the lives of hundreds of thousands of American, British, Dominion, and Russian men. There are some promising symptoms of collapse, but no substantial evidence that it is just about to occur.

The Germans have retreated faster, probably, and farther, possibly, than they intended to in Russia. The Russians have made geographical gains. The German army has bled profusely in Russia. But apparently it has retreated with skill and in relatively good order. Time and again the Red armies appear to have been on the verge of trapping large numbers of German troops. As yet they have not succeeded in closing their traps before most of the Germans escaped.

NO ONE knows when or where the Germans may be able to make a firm stand against the Russians. But as they fall back, their lines get shorter—both their front lines and their supply lines—while the Russian supply lines lengthen. When the German retreat began in early summer, some observers guessed that it meant that the German high command had decided to evacuate Russia. It is possible that despite the Russian lunges, and a number of close calls, the German retreat will later prove to have been executed approximately according to plan.

The Allied invasion of Italy did not come off according to plan. It narrowly escaped a setback, amounting to a failure, in the first few days at Salerno. It is now well behind schedule, and the push up the peninsula is proving to be a slogging job.

Germany unquestionably is suffering both in physical capacity to make war and in morale, from British and American bombing attacks. If these attacks are not stopped by improved defenses, Germany's strength is bound to continue to ebb. Assume that they are not stopped, but keep on growing in force. Even so, few air strategists expect the air assaults alone to force a German surrender within six months. The ability of the British and American air forces to break a channel through the German coastal defenses for a cross-channel invasion remains to be demonstrated. The tactical employment of Allied planes in the invasion of Sicily evidently left much to be desired.

WITH THE possible exception of the U-boat force, there has been no noticeable deterioration in the morale of German fighting men. And, in spite of heavy losses and a low percentage of successes, the U-boat force still roams the Atlantic in immense numbers.

In the Pacific, Bougainville has turned into a very stiff fight; and the larger Allied offensives, expected during the next six months, have not yet met the crucial tests of action.

There is ground for the hope that Germany will fold up before Europe has been invaded from the west and her armies have been beaten and cut to pieces in the field. But at this writing it is no more than ground for hope.

The wishful thinkers are somewhat comparable to the spectators at a race. They see that one runner is well ahead and running strongly. They see that the other is straining and beginning to wobble. They assume that the race is over and begin to lose interest in it, forgetting that the prospective winner still has to run the last and most exhausting lap and that there is always a chance that it is he rather than his flagging competitor, who will stumble before he has crossed the tape. They forget also, some of them, that in war they are not merely spectators—that they, too, are running the race, and that the penalty for losing it is death.

Red Cross Stresses Soldier Comfort Kits

Comfort kit bags for men going overseas have been given preference over all other articles made by the Red Cross Production Corps. The output of the D. C. chapter is expected to exceed 25,000 by early next year, it was announced yesterday.

Each kit will contain writing paper, pencil, shoe cloth, laces, pocket size book, needles and thread, razor blades, life savers, boxed soap and cigarettes.

Warship for French Floated in Delaware

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 11 (AP)—The destroyer escort Senegalais for the French navy was launched in a snowstorm here today as French and American admirals hailed the ship as a symbol of a resurgent France.

Christened by the wife of Vice Admiral Raymond Fenard, head of the French naval mission in Washington, the Senegalais was described by the Fourth Naval District as the first combat ship built in the United States for the French during this war.

Capital Gains and Losses Long Cause for Controversy

By Lovell H. Parker

Tax consultant; former Chief of Staff, Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation; former Field Supervisor and Head of Inventory and Appraisal Section, U. S. Shipping Board; former Chief Engineer for U. S. Senate Committee Investigating Bureau of Internal Revenue.

No fundamental question which has arisen in connection with the Federal income tax laws has been the subject of more controversy than the question of the proper treatment of capital gains and losses.

Some argue that capital gains and losses should be disregarded for income-tax purposes; some argue that capital gains should be taxed in full and losses allowed in full; some argue that capital gains should be taxed at a rate lower than the standard rate and capital losses should not be allowed in full but in a reduced amount consistent with the reduced rate of tax on the gains; some argue that capital gains should be taxed at lower and lower rates in proportion to the length of time for which the asset has been held and capital losses allowed in reduced amounts in proportion to such length of time, some argue that capital gains should be taxed at rates lower than the standard rate but that capital losses should not be allowed at all against ordinary income but only to reduce the net capital gain.

All of the above-mentioned methods (with variations) have been tried out in our Federal income tax law since its inception in 1913, except the method first mentioned. The British income tax law, however, has always adopted the first method and disregarded capital gains and losses for the purposes of computing taxable net income.

To discuss this subject, it is necessary to have some practical definition of the term "capital assets" upon the sale or exchange of which capital gains and losses are realized. For the purpose of this discussion, the term "capital asset" will be defined as any property owned by the taxpayer, except stock in trade or other property of a kind properly includible in the inventory of the taxpayer; and except property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the course of his trade or business, and except stock and bonds held by a taxpayer whose primary business is speculation on the stock market.

It seems clear that the capital gains arising from the sale or exchange of capital assets are very different in character from ordinary annual income. In the first place, when a capital gain is realized it usually has resulted from an appreciation in value over a period of years. On the other hand, ordinary income, derived from wages, salaries, business operations, interest, dividends, and rents is annual in character, and no question of appreciation in value over a period of years is involved. In the second place, ordinary annual income, in general, must be accepted by the recipient, we might say, involuntarily. On the other hand, in the usual case, the taxpayer is not forced to realize capital gains; that is to say, the realization of such gains is usually voluntary on his part.

In view of the difference in character of capital gains and ordinary income, it seems clear that if capital gains are to be recognized as income and taxed at all, such gains should receive special tax treatment. It is obviously unfair to tax all the gain which has accrued over a period of years all in one year as long as we have graduated rates of tax. When this is done the total tax is much greater on the gain than would have been the case if the gain had been taxed annually as the gain accrued. As will be later pointed out, it is very doubtful, in view of the successful operation of the British system, whether capital gains should be included in taxable income at all.

Individuals are more affected by the tax treatment of capital gains and losses than are corporations, although the subject is not unimportant to the latter. Some statistics on the capital gains and losses realized by individuals in past years will be helpful.

From 1918 to 1921, inclusive, capital gains were taxed in full as ordinary income and capital losses were allowed in full as ordinary deductions from income. During this four-year period, capital gains and losses realized by individuals were as follows:

Losses	5,259,554,919
Excess of losses over gains	2,485,603,536

In this four-year period, therefore, losses exceeded gains by approximately two and one-half billion dollars, and it is known that in every one of the four years included in the period losses also exceeded gains.

Making due allowance for changing economic conditions, it cannot be reasonably doubted that in this period many gains were not taken because of the high tax rates, and many losses were taken because such losses were deductible from ordinary income. It is certain that as far as this period is concerned, the revenue of the Government would have been much greater if capital gains and losses had not been taken into account in computing taxable income.

In the six-year period 1924 to 1929, capital gains were taxed at a maximum of 12½ per cent and capital losses were not allowed to reduce the tax by more than 12½ per cent of such losses. The statistics on this period are as follows:

Gains	$19,211,549,705
Excess of gains over losses	15,918,949,373

Thus, in this period of great business activity, capital gains exceeded capital losses by nearly 16 billion dollars. It is believed clear that, if the reduced rate of tax on capital gains had not been provided for, the gains would have been very much less, and that if a limitation had not been put on the deductibility of losses, the losses taken would have been greater.

Space does not permit of giving statistics for the years after 1929 because they require extensive analysis on account of rapidly changing economic conditions and rapidly changing methods of treating capital gains and losses in the tax laws.

The writer is convinced, from the examination of voluminous statistics on this subject, only a very few of which have been given here, and from a study of the history of our tax laws, that gains and losses realized from the sale of capital assets should not be treated like ordinary income or ordinary deductions. The data for the years 1918 to 1921, inclusive, shows that such a system—

1. Costs the Government money.
2. Prevents the normal taking of capital gains.
3. Stimulates the taking of capital losses.

At the other extreme is the British system which does not take into account the gains and losses realized on the sale of capital assets (as defined for the purposes of this discussion). There is much to be said for such a system as the British use. It has two great advantages:

(1) It allows the taxpayer to make normal business transactions without interference by taxing statutes.

(2) It stabilizes the revenue over the years, and over the years costs the Government little, if anything, in revenue. (Note that in the 11-year period, 1923 to 1933, inclusive, the maximum annual British revenue from income tax was only 35 per cent above the minimum annual revenue, while in this country the maximum annual revenue was 280 per cent above the minimum.)

Telegraph Union Asks Control Of 70,000 Merged Employes

The AFL Commercial Telegraphers Union was disclosed yesterday to have filed with the National Labor Relations Board a bid for jurisdiction over 70,000 employes of the Western Union Telegraph Co.—an action growing out of the company's recent merger with the Postal Telegraph Corp., completely absorbing Postal.

A hearing will be held December 6 in Washington to determine whether the NLRB should hold a representation election covering Western Union's 19,000 offices throughout the country. Twenty other labor organizations—AFL, CIO and independent—also were invited to participate along with the company.

Congress Protection

If the election is held, it is likely to be one of the largest ever conducted by the NLRB. Plans already are being drawn to poll offices in smaller cities by registered mail, setting up polling places only in metropolitan areas.

In authorizing the two companies to merge, Congress made the NLRB responsible for protecting the representation rights of the workers involved.

One of the main questions facing the NLRB is whether it regards the vast telegraph organization as an appropriate bargaining unit, or whether representation should be broken up along regional and craft lines. The commercial telegraphers requested jurisdiction over all employes of Western Union, except supervisory employes.

Unions Involved

The list of other unions involved follow:

Federal Labor Unions, Washington, D. C.; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Washington, D. C.; American Communications Association, New York, N. Y.; Telegraph Employes Independent Union, Detroit, Mich.; Telegraph Employes Union, Atlanta, Ga.; Association of Western Union Employes, Indianapolis, Ind.; Telegraph Workers Independent Union, Chicago, Ill.; Telegraph Workers Union, Dallas, Tex.; Independent Communications Union, Helena, Mont.; the Communications Guild, Boston, Mass.; United Western Union Employes of Buffalo, N. Y.; United Western Union Employes Independent Organization, Buffalo, N. Y.; Independent Communications Union of Spokane, Wash.; United Cable and Radio Employes Association, No. 3, New York, N. Y.; Western Union Employes, Detroit, Mich.; the Communications Guild, New York, N. Y.; United Telegraphical Union, Omaha, Nebr.; Detroit Messengers Union, Detroit, Mich.; Master Workmen of America, Assembly No. 52, Charleston, W. Va., and Western Union Five, Brunswick, Ga.

Makes Planes Fly where it is Colder than Cold

One of the most fascinating reports of the war tells how American ingenuity has been able to overcome cold in Alaska so severe that high test gasoline wouldn't burn and rubber hose shattered like glass . . . how American boys are now able to fly where temperatures fall to 65 degrees below zero. This triumph over the bitterest cold nature can produce was solved by the Army Air Corps with the winterization of aircraft and equipment of personnel. Important in this accomplishment was the development of The Herman Nelson Portable Self-Powered Heater which is used to preheat aircraft engines, instruments, cockpits, heating of maintenance shelters, hangars, etc.; in fact, wherever a source of quick, self-powered heat is required.

It is natural that The Herman Nelson Corporation should be entrusted with this war production assignment, inasmuch as for nearly forty years The Herman Nelson Corporation has pioneered in the field of heating and ventilation. This work for our war effort called for the company's highest traditional skill.

The employees of The Herman Nelson Corporation are proud of the part they have played in producing equipment for our armed forces, symbolized by the Army-Navy "E" Flag which flies over their plant. They rate it higher and will fly it higher than any other flag in America—except one.

PAUL KAIN RENOUNCES MUSIC. On the eve of opening at Treasure Island, handsome Paul Kain has decided to say a long goodby to his musical career and become an airline executive. His dual motives are his interest in aviation (he's a licensed pilot) and the loss of several of his key musicians to Uncle Sam. Paul's orchestra was at Treasure Island last year, has played long engagements at the Metronome Room, Mayfair and Glen Echo, where it is also under contract to play next summer. Dance music will lose a top-notcher but Paul says, "I've been a musician for 20 years. It's time to start a new life . . . P. S. This news probably means that Rocco Terrone's fine band will stay at Treasure Island indefinitely.

The main event for tonight is Nan Blackistone's opening at Olmsted's Club. Olsen and Johnson and other principals of "Sons o' Fun" will be there for the midnight show.

A LADY WHO WEARS WELL is Evelyn Nesbit, now at the Copocabana, who has had the rare experience of becoming a legend in her own lifetime. She's lovely, lush and debonair, sings light semi-risque numbers with charm and a feathery touch. Loads of her Washington friends turned out to greet her . . . Spite of the years, Evelyn looks so darned handsome and essentially youthful that I had the crust to ask her if she'd had her face lifted. She said, "No, I'm saving that for my seventies" . . . Here's the classic story about La Nesbit who, as the center of the Thaw-Stanford White case, took as terrific a beating as ever befell mortal girl. Someone quoted to her the Biblical verse, "Whom the Lord loveth, he chasteneth." Said Evelyn, "The Lord must be nuts about me."

BILL STRICKLAND, of the Lotus. No wonder he smiles. He's just completed his tenth year as drummer-maestro-emcee of the Lotus

Johnson of Illinois is a devotee of elegant Oriental cuisine as expounded at Ruby Foo's . . . Milton J. Kronheim, who probably knows more about the liquor situation than anyone in the Government, seldom misses the opening of a new Troika show . . . Eddie Black, well known sportsman, and his chic wife think that week lost when they don't have a party at the Madrillon . . . Baukhage of the radio is always dropping into Burt's Trans-Lux after his broadcasts . . . That George Raftish looking person whom you always see ringsiding at Paul Young's is Mike Edlow . . . Mr. and Mrs. Prew Savoy regularly enjoy the informality and grand cooking at the Copocabana . . . If you want to see Maestro Jo Lombardi without going to the Earle Theater, drop into the Neptune Room any afternoon . . . Senator "Happy" Chandler visits the Mayflower Lounge so often that he's practically its master of ceremonies.

Leo of the Mayfair is planning an "Astrological Clinic." Sounds impressive. Latest news from the stars, says Leo, is that a New World Order will be started by the end of January and (Allah!) Roosevelt will be in the White House for a fourth term.

Senate Group Hears Europe Food Appeal

'Children Dying,' Kersner Says In Plea for Aid

By the Associated Press

Dr. Howard E. Kershner, who directed relief in Europe for the Quakers from 1939 to 1942, declared yesterday that the Nazis would reap no advantage if the British lifted their blockade of Europe partially, and allowed food to be shipped, under proper guarantees, to undernourished children of occupied countries.

"The children of Europe are dying," Dr. Kershner warned a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee considering a resolution calling on the United States to take the leadership in establishing a plan for feeding European children and their mothers.

(In London Wednesday, the Churchill government flatly turned down suggestions for relaxing the blockade. Dingle M. Foot, parliamentary secretary of the Ministry of Economic Warfare, said that if food were shipped in, the Germans would merely "create more starvation and shortages." He also said the impression that the "whole of occupied Europe is in a condition of famine is entirely misleading.")

Danaher Backs Proposal

Senator Danaher (Republican) of Connecticut appeared before the Senate subcommittee to deliver a strong indorsement of the proposal.

"More than any propaganda of OWI, more than any other expenditure of money," he said, "What could be more effective than to have people alive who can attribute their very lives to the generosity and foresight of Americans?"

Kershner, director of the national committee on food for the small democracies, told of futile efforts to get the necessary permission to move 350 tons of powdered milk, purchased in Switzerland, into France for the relief of hungry babies.

He said the transaction had reached the point where all that was necessary was the U. S. Treasury Department's permission to pay for the milk with blocked dollars in New York.

Blames British Embassy

"The State Department made no objection," he said. "The Treasury made no objection, but failed to issue the license. Why?

"Threading our way through the departments in Washington, we finally traced the source of the opposition to the British Embassy."

He said he wondered whether Britain "did not want America to continue to be the sole recipient of gratitude for feeding the children of France."

"I have seen the starved wrecks that women become by the time they give birth to babies of half-normal weight," he said. "The children of the occupied countries are coming to school in the morning with little or no breakfast. They sit with practically bare feet on stone floors in unheated schoolrooms. Examining their lunch baskets we found a small piece of bread and perhaps a few radishes or a boiled turnip."

Two Officers Given Army Decorations

Col. Frank L. Miller, Army chaplain who was killed in the plane crash in Ic land that took the lives of Lieut. Frank M. Andrews and Bishop Adna Wright Leonard last May, and Brig. Gen. Theodore H. Dillon, former deputy chief of transportation, have been awarded the Legion of Merit, the War Department announced yesterday.

Decorated for meritorious conduct while serving as head of the planning and training division of the Office of Chief of Chaplains from September 11, 1940, to May 3, 1943, Colonel Miller was cited for planning and supervising the preparation of technical literature and directing the reorganization of the chaplains' school. He arranged for the designing and construction of chapels, made provision for the appropriate equipment and supply of chaplains on posts and in the field.

In addition, the citation said, that he planned an award to churches giving their pastors to the chaplaincy, "a project that has contributed to a very wholesome public opinion in all parts of the United States."

Gen. Dillon, who served as deputy chief of transportation from March 9, 1942, to June 5, 1943, was decorated for research and development work on amphibious transportation that was "of vital importance to the success of subsequent military operations."

Gen. Dillon was an official of the Carnegie Institution here before drafted by Secretary Stimson to supervise Army transportation. While stationed in Washington he made his home at 2734 34th pl. nw.

Probe Sought In Orthopedic Shoe Shortage

An appeal to the Truman Committee to investigate what he described as "the failure of War Production Board and War Manpower Commission" to take notice of shortages in manufacture of medically prescribed shoes for cripples was being planned by W. B. Sharp, District orthopedic shoe specialist, last night.

Sharp, who declared that hundreds of District children were suffering because shoe manufacturers "are either unable or unwilling" to fill orders, said his appeal would be based upon two proposals:

These were, he said, for the committee to learn from WMC the extent to which skilled labor in the shoe industry have been diverted to defense plant, and for the Leather and Leather Products Division of the Office of Civilian Requirements, adjunct of WPB, to show what, if anything, it has done to encourage or permit filling of needed shoe orders, with a backlog to January of this year.

'Barely Short of Criminal'

Sharp, who said he had made vain appeals to WPB for a solution to the problem, held that "the condition in the District alone is barely short of criminal."

Franz Ritchey, District dealer in orthopedic shoes, said his company was behind in filling orders for patients.

"Moreover," Ritchey said, "I've just been informed that my quota is being cut another 10 per cent."

Answering Sharp's charges, L. B. Sheppard, chief of the Leather and Shoe Branch of WPB, said that the orthopedic shoe specialist had "misrepresented the facts."

"In every specific instance of need we have taken action," Sheppard countered, adding that the WPM "is not responsible for what manufacturing companies tell their customers."

Challenges WPB Defense

Sharp challenged Sheppard's WPB defense by saying that he had presented the matter to the board and "that nothing has happened."

"WPB just doesn't understand the situation," he declared, saying, "this is not a matter of commercial interest in the usual type of orthopedic shoe, but involves the manufacture of shoes prescribed by orthopedic physicians and surgeons."

"Furthermore," he added, "the shoe question is one in which the physical well-being and future of otherwise normal children is at stake."

Companies he said he would ask the Truman group to investigate by directive to WPB and WMC are located in Brooklyn, Atlanta and Danville, Ill.

Granting that the failure of these companies to supply the needed shoes was "substantially due to lack of skilled workers," Sharp contended that the needs of crippled children and adults was "properly a concern of Government."

He declared he would be supported in his appeal by leading orthopedic surgeons of the District. One of these, when informed of Sharp's action, said he would support him, and, asking that his name be withheld, pointed out that the Crippled Child Clinic at Children's Hospital was virtually hamstrung in its work through lack of medically required shoes.

Sharp said he was convinced that the situation in Washington was a small reflection of a more serious national condition.

The Gallup Poll

Public Misunderstanding as to Terms Of Lend-Lease Blamed on Lack of Facts

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 11.—The current "lid-lifting" on lend-lease by the Truman Committee and other investigators is being carried out in the presence of an American public which lacks vital information as to the most fundamental terms of the lend-lease program.

In spite of the billions involved in the biggest interchange of goods and services of all time, nearly nine in ever ten Americans either have an incorrect idea as to the repayment terms of the deal, or frankly admit they don't know its basic principles.

That there is such a thing as reverse lend-lease is known only to about a third of the American population.

Postwar planners in the international field may see in the public confusion registered by the poll, the seeds of an even more serious postwar misunderstanding.

The President's message to Congress and the announcement from the British government on reverse lend-lease may go far to help this situation.

The public opinion background to the lend-lease airing was studied by the Institute in a series of questions, put to a scientifically selected Nationwide cross-section of American voters. One of these questions was:

"What is your understanding of our agreement with England on lend-lease materials sent to her—is England supposed to pay us back in some way after the war, or are we supposed to give her this material?"

Here is the conception the American public has of this feature of the arrangement:

England supposed to pay	57%
U. S. supposed to give	13
Don't know	30

On the question of reverse lend-lease, public understanding seems no clearer. When asked:

"Does England furnish us with any war materials under the lend-lease program?"

Nearly half of those interviewed (47%) said they did not know. Another quarter (23%) believe that England does not furnish any war materials to the United States.

The Institute survey further shows that, regardless of how they understand (or misunderstand) lend-lease, an overwhelming majority of the American people agree with the recommendation of the Truman committee in its recent report to the Senate, and feel that England should repay, in some form or other, material obtained from United States.

The difference between "informed" opinion and national opinion as a whole showed up when this question was put to representative voters:

"Do you think England should pay us back in some way after the war for the lend-lease material we send her?"

While national opinion divides 6 to 1 for repayment, the small group of voters who indicate some knowledge of the lend-lease terms divide evenely.

Jam, Jelly 'Miniatures' Taken Off Ration List for Holidays

"Miniature" jars of jam—popular as gifts for servicemen—may be purchased without ration stamps beginning today, the Office of Price Administration announced yesterday.

The smallest size jars of jellies, preserves and fruit butters, as well as jam, weighing 5½ ounces or less, were reduced to "zero" point value. Larger sizes, but not more than 8 ounces, kept their original ration value of 3 points for jam, preserves and noncitrus marmalades, and 2 points for jellies and fruit butter

Point-free purchases of the little jars will be permitted only through the holiday season, OPA said. Consumers, it was said, who have been unwilling to use their ration points for the miniatures, now may obtain them for gifts without depleting their supply of blue and green stamps.

In line with Deputy Administrator Bryan Houston's plan to simplify operations, the OPA announced yesterday a measure to cut down the number of gasoline coupons and increase their value. The move does not mean more gas for drivers, however.

Beginning December 1, all "B" and "C" coupons issued throughout the country will be worth 5 gallons each, as compared with the present value of 2 gallons for coupons in the East and Midwest and 3 gallons in the Far West.

The new supplemental gas ration coupons, OPA said, will be issued with the designation, "B-2" and "C-2" on their face. As present "B" and "C" and "B-1" and "B-2" coupons run out, book-holders will receive the new higher-unit value coupons.

Car owners will be able to purchase fuel in 5-gallon units as they customarily did before rationing and will have fewer coupons to indorse, OPA said.

The new system will mean less clerical work for service station operators and save local ration boards thousands of man hours used in issuing books, it was said.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

FCC Chief Assails Radio 'Soap Operas'

Fly Continues Attack on Chains Before Senators

By the Associated Press

Chairman James L. Fly of the Federal Communications Commission fired new and picturesque blasts at the big radio networks yesterday for their soap operas and alleged attempts "to scare Congress" by "fantastic cries of threatened dictatorship."

Asserting that William S. Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, had testified the commission could influence program changes by "lifting an eyebrow," the lanky FCC chief declared:

"Talk about changing a program by a raised eyebrow—why you couldn't move some of these soap operas off the air with a crowbar."

Fly's Third Appearance

In his third appearance before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee considering the Wheeler-White bill to limit the commission's control over the radio industry, Fly spoke of his aversion to "soap operas" and other programs that "fill the long daytime hours with highly emotional, cheap forms of droolery."

Despite his criticism of some of these programs, including the "money-give away" and "lottery variety," he declared, "there are more of the damned things on the air now than there ever were."

Some cases were referred to the Department of Justice for investigation under "lottery" statutes, he said, but the department has "done nothing."

Paley and the National Broadcasting Co., the other big network, Fly declared, didn't want any regulation that would interfere with "going back to their old monopoly."

"If they have to have regulation," he added, "they want it put where it will be least effective."

"If you can't trust the commission you've got, abolish it and get a crowd you can trust, but don't break the system down.

"That's what this shooting is all about. May as well get it out in the open. They want to run all the stations from New York and Hollywood."

In response to a question from Senator Brooks (Republican) of Illinis, he said the commission had investigated the question of newspaper ownership of radio stations, but had made "no definite recommendations," although it is "contemplating a decision."

Postlude

Hindemith Impresses Audience

By Ray C. B. Brown

Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation in the Library of Congress presents the Budapest String Quartet (Josef Roismann, Alexander Schneider, Boris Kroyt and Mischa Schneider) on Thursday night in Coolidge Auditodium. Program: Quartet in G major, Op. 54, No. 1 (Haydn). Quartet No. 5 in E flat major (Hindemith). Quartet in F major, Op. 59, No. 1 (Beethoven).

Paul Hindemith's fifth string quartet, composed this year and dedicated to the Budapest String Quartet, was given its first performance by that excellent foursome last evening at a concert in the Library of Congress, sponsored by the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation. Perhaps a time will come when a new work of such engrossing content as this one can be played twice at its premiere instead of being sandwiched between two classics which are supposed to absorb the shock of novelty. Haydn and Beethoven were the shock-absorbers on this occasion and did their duty so well that the auditors, whether or not they approved of Hindemith, applauded his music (or the performance of it) as cordially as that of his program associates.

Nineteen years have elapsed between Hindemith's fourth and fifth string quartets, a gap that means only that he has been working in other forms and not pondering in silence.

In my opinion this new quartet is an admirable work, stimulating in its ideas, expert in structure and surcharged with the composer's vital temeperament. The first movement has a calm and strongly emotional atmosphere, and leads without break into the energetic and vivacious second movement. The third moveement, in the form of theme and variations, is lit by a prankish humor, and there is the twinkle of laughter also in the finale which seems about to close with three solemen chords, and then ends in a delightful pizzicato passage.

As a preface to the Hindemith work, Josef Roismann appropriately chose a Haydn quartet—the G major from Opus 54—that also ends unexpecetedly, like the breaking off of a conversation. The Beethoven selection was the F major quartet, the first of the Rasumovski set.

Mrs. Dorsey presents Jeanette McDonald, soprano, in Constitution Hall on Thursday evening. Program of songs by Carey, Weil, Rakmaninov, Raymond, Haeeman, Charpentier, Debussy, Fourdrain, Bachelet, Wolfe, Engel, Warren, Von Flotow, Herbert and anonymous.

Every seat in Constitution Hall was filled for Jeannette McDonald's song recital last night. As might have been expected a successful career on the screen earns a host of admirers who make a most enthusiastic audience.

For her first group of songs Miss McDonald chose a Pastoral by Carey, the lovely plaintive folk air, The Bluebells of Scotland, included to advantage, and Spring Song by O. Weil. As an encore Miss MacDonald added Coming Thru the Rye. Here as elswhere there was a tendency to allow acting to take precedence over musical projection.

Her second group was made up of two songs by Rackmaninov, Lilacs and At Night, Release, by her husband, Capt. Gene Raymond, and Richard Hangman's Miranda.

Depuis Le Jour from Charpentier's opera Louise was the program's sole excursion into ambitious song. Debussy's Beau Soir, Fourdrain's Le Papillion and Bachelet's Chere Nuit comprised another group in which Miss MacDonald did her best singing.

The final group comprised British Children's Prayer by Jacque Wolfe, Sea Shells by Carl Engel, Mr. Nobody by Elinor Remick Warren, The Last Rose of Summer by Von Flotow, and Badinage by Victor Herbert.

Throughout the concert Miss MacDonald evidenced ability to color music. She has assured stage presence.

Among the encores granted her listeners were two songs sung at her recital last season, The False Phophet and I Am Not What You Think; Smiling Through, the Romeo and Juliet Waltz and Schubert's Ave Marie.

Collins Smith was a competent accompanist. He exhibited a virile style in Chopin's E flat major Polonaise, Bolero Ritmico by Longas and in his encores, Clair de Lune by Debussy and the Chiriese Dance from Chaikovski's Nutcracker Suite. N. F.

Grandson Helps With Lodge Film

Hollywood, Nov. 11 (AP).—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (Republican) of Massachusetts is conferring here with film producers on a photoplay in which his late grandfather, of the same name and also a U. S. Senator, will be portrayed.

Senator Lodge said he had been invited by Producer Darryl Zanuck to supply background material for portions of the film which will deal with the elder Senator's battle against the League of Nations, espoused by President Wilson.

Victory Gardens Still Producing Vegetables in D. C.

With Thanksgiving just around the weekend Washington victory gardeners are still bringing in the vegetables, J. Morton Franklin, local victory garden supervisor, reported yesterday.

He told members of the victory garden committee that residents are deferring plowing schedules while they continue to harvest cabbage, broccoli, spinach and turnip greens. Some persons are still gathering tomatoes, he added.

Plowing is now going ahead on the east bank of the Anacostia, however, where 35 to 40 acres of "the best land in the District" has been used for the past two years. Franklin says he hopes OPA won't make it difficult for people to use this area next year.

Franklin also reported on canning by amateur gardeners. He said that 28 persons in the Stanton Park community gardens had put up 4486 jars. A survey of 26 victory gardens in various sections of the city showed that 5210 cans had been put up from these plots, he said.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER

War Fund Unit Helps Escape Of Anti-Nazis

More than 12,000 anti-Fascists have been rescued from Europe since the beginning of the war by Refugee Relief Trustees, a member agency of the Community War Fund, Coleman Jennings, District War Fun chairman, revealed yesterday in citing but one reason why the campaign to raise $4,800,000 must go over the top.

At the same time it was announced that the War Fund campaign here would definitely come to a close on November 19, one week from today.

Among those who have been rescued by the anti-Fascist organization slated to receive $35,112 of Washington's contributions, are Jean Perrin, French physicist and Nobel prize winner; Joseph Witten, known as Poland's greatest living poes; Valeiru Marcu, Rumanian historian; Andre Mason, French painter, and Franz Werfel, German author of "The Song of Bernadette."

Jennings warned fund workers that if foreign relief is to continue, every house and every business must be solicited and every potential giver must be reached.

Three division chiefs yesterday issued special bulletins reminding workers that all money collected over Armistice Day should be reported to headquarters immediately so that tabulated returns may be given to the public this weekend. In the meantime they ask workers to make greater efforts to secure funds.

Abbot P. Mills, chairman of the Advanced Gifts Division urged his collectors to find at least two more subscriptions for the most substantial possible amounts as a part of the $45,775 necessary to reach their quota of $550,000.

"Let nothing be undone," he said, "that can help us meet all the needs represented in this campaign. With the goal in sight we must not falter. Much local welfare is at stake. Lives are at stake. Does not that call for real sacrifice? No quota attained is victory for any of us unless the campaign wins."

Metropolitan Division solicitors were reminded by E. K. Morris, chairman of that division, that all boundaries were down, that they could procure funds from anybody, including former contributors and members of businesses and institutions. Previously Metropolitan collectors had been prohibited from soliciting from persons who were scheduled to be asked by other divisions. Metropolitan must still raise $[illegible],539 to meet its quota of $300,000.

"We've got to put this campaign over the top," Morris said. "Make a list of every possible contributor you know and get them to give enough, give more and give again if necessary."

Business and Finance Division, of which John L. Vandegrift is chairman, still has $36,354 to obtain before it reaches its quota of $1,850,000. The commercial district of the division, headed by Harvey J. Cheston, yesterday went over its quota with 102 per cent to join Service and Financial Divisions previously oversubscribed. The two remaining districts, Consumer and Industrial, are lagging behind, the first by but 4 per cent and the other by 50 per cent.

In an effort to put the Government Division over the top, the Census Bureau sponsored four simultaneous meetings yesterday at its building in Suitland, Md. Speakers were four wounded American servicemen, who are convalescing at Forest Glen, a part of Walter Reed Hospital.

Two Stores Here Also Victimized By 'Foster Smith'

While police continued their search for the elusive "Foster Smith," alias David Walsh, alias David Ross, it was learned that two of Washington's largest department stores were victimized by the impostor.

During his expensive stay at the Statler Hotel last weekend, the fugitive used his alleged movie connections to cash several checks at the two stores—signing them David Walsh.

FBI agents last night were conducting their own investigation. At the National Theater, Lionel Kaye, "Sons o' Fun" comedian, told the Federal men what he learned about "the guy who was so generous with everyone else's money" during three days of "practically living with him at the Statler."

Detective Sergts. John R. Luskey and Dewey Guest pursued their investigation begun when the Statler filed formal charges Wednesday.

Phila. Rousingly Observes Birthday of the Marines

TRAINS BEARING THE WASHINGTON DELEGATION, in a private Pullman, miraculously on time in both directions . . . Police escort through the red lights from the 30th Street Pennsy station to the Bellevue-Stratford, and vice versa . . . Cocktails in the "Rec Room"—which baffles the bewildered searcher a bit by being anything but that—at 7:30 . . . Banquet in the main ballroom at 8, with an invitation list of a supposed 500 swelled to 670 . . . Marine Corps uniforms, garbing everything from private to major general, all over the place, most of them heavy with service stripes, medals and oak leaf clusters won in the Guadalcanal campaign . . . Lucy Monroe singing the "Star Spangled Banner" for I don't know what millionth time, to Philadelphia Police Band accompaniment . . . Distinguished guests from all points of the compass . . . The usual milling around and handshaking with old friends and new . . . An inescapable overtone of patriotic fervor . . . Such were the atmospheric embellishments of the world premiere of the Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of Richard Tregaskis' "Guadalcanal Diary" in Philadelphia Wednesday night, in celebration of the 168th anniversary of the founding of the United States Marine Corps, in the city, appropriately enough, where the corps had its birth almost two decades more than a century and half ago.

With Judge Vincent A. Carroll, former assistant United States Attorney General, now presiding over a Philadelphia court and serving as president of the city council, as toastmaster, and Mayor Bernard Samuel, Gen. Clifton B. Cates, veteran of Guadalcanal now stationed at Quantico, and numerous others delivering post-prandial eulogies of the Marines, the Washington contingent was repeatedly assured over the public address system that the program had been carefully timed and they need not worry themselves by constantly peeking at their watches . . . They would have ample time to see the picture, their wraps would be in the lobby, cars and police escort waiting to make sure that the 11:46 to the Capital wouldn't slip out from under them . . . So at 11:15, with "Guadalcanal Diary" still approximately a reel and a half to go, the loudspeakers interrupted again to announce that we had better be on our way, unless we wanted to walk home . . . What happened in that last 15 minutes of the film will have to wait until the Washington preview . . . The preceding hour and 15 minutes, however, was enough to make plain that Twentieth Century has done an excellent job on the Tregaskis original . . . It is a picture that conforms to the general pattern of "Wake Island" more closely than any other, with victory, instead of defeat, as its motif . . . It is thickly punctuated with humorous incident and lively dialogue to relieve the tension of a factual recital of new troops going up against the supreme test of front line combat against a tricky and treacherous foe . . . There comes to the screen in this subject considerably more sound and absorbing drama of the Southwest Pacific than Twentieth Century visualized when it set out to make it.

Outgrew Its Original Dimensions

I got it straight from Lieut. James W. Hurlbut, USMC., technical adviser on the picture, that "Guadalcanal Diary" at first was planned to conform to the conventional treatment usual in such cases by Producer Bryan Foy, king of the "B" picture dominion on the Fox lot . . . So long as it registered so many laughs a minute and so many thrills a reel, that was good enough . . . Only it wasn't good enough . . . Perceiving the value of the property, the high command turned it over to Scenarist Lamar Trotti for rescripting and ran the budget up from a "B" $800,000 to an "A" $1,300,000 . . . Thereby they got themselves a picture . . . Beginning aboard the transports, carrying a new army to an unknown destination, the action leads directly to the Guadalcanal beachhead that forms the monument to the United States' assumption of the offensive in the South Pacific and the eventual doom of the Japs . . . From this point on it is a pretty nerve-tingling business that pumps up tremendous pride in the Marines . . . The story is told through the medium of familiar characters—the hard-bitten colonel, the tough top-kick, the kid not yet out of his teens, the kindly fighting priest, the taxi driver from Brooklyn and a heterogeneous enlisted personnel who lend the screen a vast variety in the reflection of their reactions . . . Wish I could have seen how it all came out for some of them . . . For many it came out in plain view at the lethal end of the enemy line of fire . . . Inspiring, but not very pretty or comforting.

The piece is splendidly played . . . Lloyd Nolan, the Bessemer steel sergeant; Preston Foster, the courageous and kindly padre of the flock; Minor Watson, the colonel; William Bendix, the Flatbush taxicabber; Lionel Stander, Anthony Quinn, Roy Roberts, former leading man, like Minor Watson, of the National Theater Players; Ralph Byrd, Eddie Acuff, Jack Luden and hosts of others see to that . . . They were applauded throughout as much of the action as we were permitted to view by former comrades of the soldiery they impersonated . . . General Cates paid high tribute to those lads who served under him on the tiny island in his intensely interesting story of what he calls "The Battle of the Marines' Birthday," because it fell exactly a year ago . . . Rousingly as he was cheered by the banqueters, it was the long line of Guadalcanal's enlisted men, seated on an elevation immediately behind the dais, that "stole the show" . . . The standing crowd gave these youthful veterans an ovation they will remember for the rest of their lives . . . Both Preston Foster, the Father Donnolly of the cast, and Phil Regan, prominently cast in "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," at the Palace, came in late and immediately were surrounded by such a mob of photographers and idolators, down at that end of the room, that no one at this end could get to them . . . Altogether something of a triumph for Phila lelphia, George Gomperts, of Twentieth Century-Fox's Philadelphia office, Jessie Pulcipher, of Loew's, who piloted the local drama desks, the Bellevue-Stratford chef and, of course, the Marines, who should be used to it by this time . . . Triumph is by way of being their habit.

Robert Donat Scores Blithely As 'Tartu' on Capitol Screen

By Marjorie Kelly

"The Adventures of Tartu," an imported English product, yesterday morning opened at Loew's Capitol along with a stage show on which Jean Parker takes top billing.

It is one of those adventure pictures which the British do so well, perhaps almost too well for American audiences. The wild adventures of Robert Donat, impersonating a British captain, who is impersonating a Czech named Tartu, will keep you on the edge of your seat with hairpin turns of plot, but now and again you're apt to think, 'Oh, come now!" as Tartu repeatedly accomplishes the impossible without batting an eye.

If it's escape you want, however, this tale of Nazi-occupied Czechoslovakia has more than its share, despite an interlude or two of gloom.

The versatile Donat is superb in his double role of the earnest British captain and the reckless Tartu, ladies' man and fop, who disarms suspicion by sheer foolishness, and proceeds to carry out his mission under the very noses of the Nazis, who take him for what he seems to be, a harmless rake, with nothing on his mind but women.

A Triple Mission

Under this disguise, he is really attempting to find the location of a plant which is manufacturing poison gas, to learn the formula for the gas and destroy the plant. This triple mission sounds like a big order, but you know Donat. He not only fulfills it, but also bags himself a pretty girl from the Czech underground.

Donat's will be the only name in the cast familiar to most audiences here, and he carries most of the action, but he has excellent support in Valerie Hobson, playing the girl in the underground, and Glynis Johns, a small girl with a plain, intense face who carries the most somberly dramatic scene in the film.

Jean Parker, headlining the stage show, looks so exquisite in a white dress and filmy scarf that you can almost forget the ineptness of her skit. The always difficult job of finding something for an actress to do for a stage appearance has not been done well for Miss Parker.

"Bolero" Is Spectacular

Skaters Gaynor and Ross accomplish some difficult feats very gracefully. The radio comedians, Shaw and Lee, surprisingly, turn out to be most effective, not when they're talking but in an elaborate bit of pantomime which lasts perhaps 3 minutes with no words at all.

Finally there is Singer Ilomay Bailey, accompanied at the piano by her husband, Lee Simms. They present four songs, "Tea for Two," "Donkey Serenade," "Sunday, Monday, or Always," and "Bolero." Yellow-haired Miss Bailey makes of the difficult "Bolero" a very effective number. Tricky lights playing on the stage as she sings, make it a spectacularly beautiful one.

LEONARD LYONS

Loose-Leaf Notebook

New York, Nov. 11.

Donald M. Nelson, Chairman of the War Production Board, is back from Russia, and was in New York the other night, en route to Washington. Nelson spent five weeks in the Soviet Union, where Stalin assured him that he could see anything he wanted to see, and go any place he wanted to go. Nelson visited all the places he wanted to inspect, with no restrictions. He presented a personal gift to Stalin—a pipe and American tobacco . . . Colonel Coleman, who was reduced to a captaincy after a court-martial for having shot a Negro soldier at his camp, will receive additional punishment, by order of Secretary of War Stimson . . . George McLaughlin, the Brooklyn banker and Dodger official, will enter the lists for the United States Senatorship.

DONALD M. NELSON

Col. Carlos P. Romulo, author of the new book, "Mother America," is giving up most of his lecture tour to work as Minister of Information in Quezon's cabinet . . . President Roosevelt said: "There's only one lobby to which no one in Washington can say 'No'—and that's the National Conference of Mayors." The next conference will be held in January . . . Now that "North Star" has been launched, Sam Goldwyn is preparing his next production—"Treasure Chest," in which Bob Hope will play the role of a pirate . . . Louis Untermeyer, the poet, is on leave from OWI. He's with the Limited Editions Club, and is doing a book on American humor.

Grace Finley of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve, went to Camp Lejeune, New River, as a student. The instructor noticed that Miss Finley had fallen asleep in the classroom. He walked up to her and shouted into her ear: "Well, it's time to wake up." She woke up—and looked into the eyes of Lieut. Bradley Schwartz. Result: Marriage—the first formal military wedding between two officers ever held at the chapel in New River. It also was the first formal military wedding in which an officer had authorization to wear a wedding gown.

Charles Evans Hughes, who vehemently opposed Wilson's League of Nations after the last war, now holds a different view about postwar cooperation with the other nations . . . The New Yorker will do a profile on Louie, the Waiter, who coined the couplet, "Send a Salami to Your Boy in the Army," and who alone sold $2,060,000 in war bonds at the delicatessen in the Fifties where he is employed . . . John Gunther has two working titles for his new book about his last trip to Africa and Italy. They're "Outside Europe" and "Don't Read This" . . . Howard Lindsay, coauthor and "Father" in "Life With Father," said at the anniversary party: "Dog is an extremely tasty dish in a business where it's dog eat dog."

Although the critics who went to Philadelphia to see Billy Rose's production of Oscar Hammerstein's "Carmen Jones" gave the show highest praise and could offer no suggestions on how it possibly can be improved, Rose is revising the first-act finale. The producer by now has learned every trick of the trade . . . Once, some years ago, he met Henry Ringling, then head of the Ringling Circus, and asked: "Why do you spot your best act, the animal act, at the opening? Why don't you spot it at the closing?" . . . "Because it takes 20 minutes to assemble the cages," Ringling explained. "No one ever has been able to do it in less time" . . . "Rose then produced "Jumbo." He had an animal act in the finale. The cages were set up in 20 seconds.

Sylvan Joseph, who resigned as head of the OPA in New York, will not return to Wall st. for a while, but is opening a new office . . . LaGuardia, incidentally, is having difficulty in getting Chester Bowles to permit him to name Joseph's successor.

The Washington

Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

THOUGH THE PRESIDENT was highly pleased at the results of the Moscow meeting, there was one point which surprised him. In fact he expressed surprise and slight displeasure at a recent cabinet meeting.

This was the fact that Secretary Hull agreed to hold the meetings of the Big 4 in London rather than in Washington.

This council will become the most important international body in the world. It will mould vital decisions affecting the Allies and future peace. Therefore, it had been originally understood, before Mr. Hull left for Moscow, that this council would function in Washington, not London.

In London, it was figured, the council would be too much under the thumb of Old World diplomacy, would be dominated by the British and Russians. F. D. R. has always remembered the way in which his old chief, Woodrow Wilson, had trouble when he went to Europe. So he wanted these initial maneuvers kept in a fresher New World atmosphere.

Little Nations Out

NOTHING WAS SAID about it at the White House, but another original United States proposal, planned for the Moscow meeting, was altered by Secretary Hull after he got over there.

This was the plan to have smaller nations sit in with the Big 4 on the newly created Diplomatic Council. Behind this were two ideas: (1) It is only fair to permit cooperation by smaller nations; (2) Smaller nations, especially Latin Americans, are usually to be found on the more idealistic side and backing up the U. S. A. In order to mould public opinion and permanent peace machinery we may need a lot of small nation support.

Inside fact is that United States plans for Moscow were taken up in detail by Churchill and Roosevelt at the Quebec Conference and okayed. Several months previously, Sumner Welles, then Undersecretary of State, had drafted the plan later adopted at Moscow for an organization for world peace. He had also drafted the pledge adopted at Moscow that no nation shall use its army in the territories of other nations without joint consultation.

When Welles showed these to Secretary Hull several weeks before Quebec, Hull didn't like them. But at Quebec both Churchill and Roosevelt gave them their blessings and they have now been officially adopted by the Moscow Conference.

Hull Says No

A revealing insight as to how far Mr. Hull and the State Deparement have moved toward world cooperation in recent weeks is in the files of Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, who one year ago wrote Hull urging that steps be taken now to prevent a deadlock between the Senate and the executive over permanent peace. Wiley asked Hull for his views on world cooperation.

Hull replied, October 21, 1942, that the founding fathers had arranged a balance among the three branches of Government and the executive was charged with the sole conduct of foreign affairs. "It seems better to follow that practice," Hull concluded. He declined to give Wiley his views on future world cooperation.

Senator Wiley persisted, wrote another letter pointing out the disaster to the world after the last war when the State Department presented a finished treaty to the Senate which the Senate would not ratify. He urged that the Senate get Hull's views and cooperation in advance.

But the Secretary of State, according to Wiley, refused to budge an inch. One year later, in September, 1943, Hull was still pretty much of the same opinion and discouraged members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee from passing the "world cooperation" resolution.

Capital Chaff

THE QUESTION of whether or not he should have a naval aide is bothering platinum-haired Ed Stettinius, newly appointed Undersecretary of State. New York Times' Arthur Krock thinks it is all right for him to have one. That should settle it . . . If Stettinius wants further precedent, Henry L. Stimson had a military aide, dashing Col. Eugene Regnier, when Stimson was Secretary of State . . . At that time Fiorello LaGuardia, then a Congressman, inserted a clause in the Army appropriation bill barring a military aide for Stimson. It nearly caused the old gentleman to have a fit . . . Today, Stimson, as Secretary of War, is greeted every morning outside the Pentagon Building by a sergeant attired in dress blue uniform who leaps to the car and carefully carries Stimson's briefcase (weight 2 pounds). Three sergeants rotate this duty, one from the infantry, one from the cavalry, one from the artillery. The Air Corps is not represented . . . It makes a pretty picture, but doesn't help manpower . . . New York Lawyer Morris Ernst, White House adviser on many things, has left on another confidential trip to England . . . The Navy is buying 2 million acres in California and Oregon for an aerial gunnery range. It will be the largest land purchase in naval history.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

"By sin, I didn't imagine Spud Chandler was 34 years old, but that's what it says here." Clark Griffith was reading a biographical sketch of the Yankee pitcher who this week was voted the American League's most valuable player. The papers were full of Chandler stories.

POVICH

He thought Chandler was just a young feller, Griffith said. "We never heard much about him until a couple of years ago, but it says here he's been pitching for 12 seasons. "Wa-al,"—and a gleam came into the eye of the 72-year-old owner of the Nats, who used to be a pitcher himself—"I allus did say it takes a long time to learn how to pitch."

"You don't get to be a good pitcher until you get to be smart," said Griffith. "Pitchers like Johnson and Bob Feller who made good right away are the exception. They had so durn much stuff they couldn't miss. But it took Herb Pennock years to be a good pitcher, and Charley Ruffing was a bad pitcher for a long time before he became a good pitcher."

Griffith declared "a pitcher is just a thrower, until he gets smart. You're not smart until you know how to outwit that guy up at the plate with a bat in his hand. It took Chandler ten years to make good use of his stuff. Some of 'em learn quicker, but you don't learn it overnight. Chandler will tell you right now that his fast ball isn't as fast as it used to be, but he's learned enough tricks to be a better pitcher."

It's a fact about Pennock and Ruffing. It was a long haul for them, as it was for Chandler. There was nothing meteoric about Carl Hubbell's rise to fame, either. Pennock didn't win as many as 20 games a season until he was with the Yankees in his twelfth year in the majors. He was a better pitcher in his thirties than in his twenties.

Ruffing broke in with the Red Sox in 1924, but he never had a winning season until six years later when he joined the Yankees. The Red Sox weren't much of a club, to be sure, but Ruffing was no great success individually. In five seasons with Boston he had a pretty awful record of 98 defeats against 39 wins. He lost 25 games in one season. But apparently he was learning how to pitch. He won 18 in his first full year with the Yanks.

Hubbell had his greatest year in the majors at the age of 30. He won 23 games in 1933 for the Giants, his best season, after he had been in organized baseball for ten years. He didn't start to perfect his screwball until he had been in the league a half dozen seasons. It was a lucky excursion into the realms of a new pitch for Hubbell. With his added savvy and his screwball, he prolonged his big league paydays by more than a decade.

Dizzy Dean didn't take long to excel as a big league pitcher, but he did have to take one trip back to the minors before he could stick. Dean, though, had a native shrewdness to start with. He might have been an illiterate soul but he could appraise a hitter and explore his weaknesses, if any, with quite some dispatch. Even when his fast ball would have bounced back off a window pane, he held the Yankees to seven hits and held a 3-2 lead going into the eighth inning of a 1938 World Series game before they licked him.

Buck Newsom didn't have a winning year in the majors until nine seasons after he first came up. He did all right in the minors, but with all his speed he was a flop in the big leagues until he learned how to throw the ball over the corners and otherwise smarten up. Newsom, who had three twenty-victory seasons in the big leagues, didn't achieve his first until he was 29.

Sid Hudson was some kind of an exception, though. When he came to the Nats in 1940 it was from a minor league of the lowest classification, the Class D Central Florida League. But he won 17 games in his first season with the Nats, and was the rookie sensation of that season. Hudson had his troubles, though. He was telling us about it, after he had lost his first nine starts.

"I didn't ever think I was going to win in this league," Sid said. "The same pitches I was getting 'em out on in the Florida league they were knocking over the fences. I was scared to let a ball go. The fourth-place hitters didn't bother me any more than the fellows down in seventh and eighth place in the batting order. They were all cowtailing my pitches.

"Then I started to get a little bit smart. I told myself if they were going to keep hitting me, they'd have to hit my best pitch, with everything I had on it. I stopped throwing down the middle and tried for the corners. Those home runs stopped, and I won a couple of games. Then pretty soon I noticed they weren't taking those toe holds. They began to act as if I were getting pretty tough, and to wonder what I was going to throw. I had them a little bit anxious up there, the same guys who used to have me worried. From then on, it was a lot easier."

Four Terp Gridmen in Doubt As Bainbridge Game Nears

Four University of Maryland stalwarts yesterday remained on the "doubtful" list for playing against the undefeated Commodores of Bainbridge Naval Training Station Saturday at Bainbridge.

Ed Hurson, who was kicked in the mouth on the very first play of last week's 39-0 trouncing by Virginia, received 12 stitches when his teeth were driven through his lower lip. Mike Zetts, tackle; Bill Hickman, halfback, and relief Quarterback Bill Morris, a late addition to the squad who is showing more promise with each game, are all nursing injured legs. All, however, may play at least part of the time Saturday, although Coach Clarence W. (Doc) Spears will not know definitely until late tonight or early tomorrow.

The remainder of the squad, outside of a slight battering and a few miscellaneous bumps and bruises, came out of the game in good shape.

6000 Watch Interhigh Night Game

By Tom Moore McBride

The Calvin Coolidge Colts won themselves another ball game at Griffith Stadium last night with John Shullenbarger's passing the outstanding weapon used against Roosevelt's Rough Riders, 26-0.

A crowd of 6000 watched the first interhigh night game this season. The sixth interhigh victory for the Colts made Coolidge round robin winners over every local high school except Western.

All of the Colts' four touchdowns were made in the third period, and what's more, Bassin, the Colts' big scoring ace, only made one of them.

Coolidge All the Way

The first two periods and the last one didn't really count, for though Roosevelt did a nice job of holding and threatened in the second period, it was Coolidge's all the way. Coach Gil Conn's boys just outplayed the Riders.

It all started early in the third period when John Shullengbarger took it from the 50 on a long run around end to the 34. Johnnie then passed one to Addie Bassin on the 14, and tossed another to Dudley Dean, who was tackled just over the goal line. Bob Webb came in to kick the first conversion.

The Bassin intercepted Drazin's pass, who was shifting between end and passing back. The nevt play was a sweet one. Bassin shot off left tackle for 35-yards and the second touchdown. Webb's kick was blocked for a change.

Cannon Intercepts Pass

It wasn't long after that that Roosevelt's Louis Limber's pass was intercepted by Bill Cannon on the 35 for the third rally. Cannon was clear and so was Webb's kick. A series of passes by Roosevelt brought it no gains and Coolidge took over on tthe 38, where Bassin ran off right tackle shifting from right end to the left side of the line for 14 yards. Coolidge lost it there on downs, but Harrison intercepted one of Morris' passes and went over from the 22. Webb did it again.

Roosevelt tried hard in the final quarter, but it was no go, and Coolidge didn't have any heart in another score, even with the third string in there.

First quarter was all Coolidge's by virtue of Shullenbarger's kicking. The Riders never got out of their own territory on the exchange of punts and one of the Colts' halfback's kicks went to the 6, where Roosevelt found itself in dire trouble which the line wasn't able to get it out of. Shullenbarger faked a field goal but threw a pass instead that was no good. The Riders' kick was downed on the 37 by Bassin, just before the period eneded. Earlier Coolidge had made it to the Roosevelt 15 on passes from Shullenbarger to Dudley Dean, but was stymied there.

Dean Recovers Fumble

It looked like a repetition early in the second period, when Dean recovered a fumble by Irving Morris on the 45 and Shullenbarger, after fining his passes no good, quick kicked to the Roosevelt 4-yard line. The Riders kicked out and Jim Browning took it on the 39, returning it to the Roosevelt 28. But Jake Plotkin intercepted Shullenbarger's pass on the 20.

Roosevelt kicked again after a failure at line plunges and Laing fumbled it on the Cooldige 37, for a recovery by the Riders' Don Swan. Limber's flat passes were good for a first down, first to Dodge then to Moore. Then Limber tried a long one to Sid Drazin on the 5-yard line, but a slew of Coolidge players broke it up.

Morris tried for a field goal on fourth down but it was no good and Coolidge took it as the half ended.

It Was a Big Night for Addie Bassin—and Coolidge

Sporting Washington's most famous football number, Sammy Baugh's (33), Coolidge High School's Addie Bassin makes a 15-yard end run with the help of Basinger's blocking. Two plays later Bassin went 35 yards for a touchdown. Coolidge scored all its points in the third quarter to win, 26-0.

Middies End Hard Practice For Columbia

Annapolis, Nov. 11 (AP).—The Navy football squad tapered off a heavy practice today with exhaustive scrimmages and thorough drills on both offensive and defensive drills and the Midshipmen squared away to meet Columbia in New York Saturday.

This will be the Tars' last appearance on the gridiron before the annual classic with Army at West Point on November 27.

Although Capt. John E. Whelchel, head football coach at the Naval Academy, expressed no concern over his Middies' chances against the Lions, yet he saw to it that the Midshipmen didn't treat today's heavy practice lightly.

For his offensive tactics, Whelchel said he would follow somewhat the same ideas which worked so nicely against Pennsylvania last week, when the Tars combined aerial and running attacks to decisively whip the Quakers, 24 to 7.

Too, he is planning to start the same backfield that took the field against Penn—Stewart Nelson at quarterback, Hal Hamberg, the passing ace at left half, Ben Martin at right half, and Hillis Hume at fullback.

Backs and linesmen, meanwhile, were drilled in meeting a pass offensive which the Lions were expected to use against the sailors.

Break for Hunters! Deadline Extended For Shell Purchase

Extension of the time limit for the purchase of shotgun shells and cartridges for the killing of predatory animals and birds from November 15 to December 31 was announced yesterday by the War Production Board.

The extension, the WPB said, was necessary because only a small portion of the quota allowed manufacturers for distribution for civilian use has been manufactured or distributed. The original order at the instigation of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service permits the manufacture and distribution of 100 million rounds of shotgun ammunition and 10 million rounds of .22-caliber rifle ammunition.

For the District 100,000 rounds of shotgun and 5000 rounds of rifle ammunition were to be released, with one million rounds of shotgun and 10,000 rounds of rifle ammunition for Maryland and 1,500,000 rounds of shotgun ammunition and 20,000 cartridges for Virginia.

All persons who obtain ammunition from dealers must sign certificates stating that they are purchasing the shells or cartridges for their personal use for shooting predatory and destructive animals and birds and that personal stock on hand, including that purchased, does not exceed 100 cartridges or 50 shotgun shells.

12th St. 'Y' Fights

'Skins Hope Dorais Will Spur Farkas to Big Things Sunday

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The Redskins are hoping Andy Farkas' desire to outdo himself against his college coach Sunday will make the former Detroit University flash forget his trick knee and give the 'Skins a running attack to combat the power drives of Lion Frankie Sinkwich.

Farkas missed all but a few minutes of the Phil-Pitt game last week and the Redskins were held to one of their lowest yards-gained-rushing totals in years, 62 yards. The week before, against Brooklyn, Farkas was out of the game in the first half and against the league's second weakest team the Redskins were trailing, 10-7, after 27 minutes of play.

In six years as a Redskin fullback, Farkas has gained nearly 4 yards a try, in addition to his pass-catching ability and the fact he is a constant threat on a kickoff or puht return. This year, when the Redskins were counting on Sammy Baugh and Farkas as the best one-two punch in the league, Farkas has come up with a succession of injuries to his powerful legs, centering around a bad knee.

If the Redskins win the toss and elect to receive against Detroit Sunday in Griffith Stadium, Farkas may start. If the Lions receive, Bob Seymour will probably start at the fullback spot. Coach Dutch Bergman is particularly anxious to save Seymour for his pass defending ability as relief for Farkas and Wilbur Moore, plus Big Bob's knack in picking up first down yardage in a tough spot. Seymour played excellent offensive and defensive football against the Eagles last week, including a brilliant 57-yard run which was called back. The Oklahoman needs rest, however, and is at his best working in with Farkas and Moore.

Sinkwich Is Marked Man

Farkas played three varsity years at Detroit under Gus Dorais, who switched allegiance from the university to the pro team of the same name this season. In Farkas' last year he led the Nation's college scorers. It is only natural Andy should want to play his best ball game against his ex-coach, but he must forget the heat treatments, pads, trainer's table, etc., in order to produce.

Sinkwich, the Lions' leading ball carrier and passer, with another rookie, UCLA's Chuck Fenenbock, second in both departments, also gives Harry Hopp a hand in the kicking. Sinkwich has averaged nearly 3 yards a try on the ground, completed 4 of every 10 passes and his kicks have averaged 48 yards, despite the pressure on him as the most publicized All-American to play in the pro league in many years.

While Farkas has continued to favor his knee in practice sessions this week and has been hobbling on the sidelines, Sinkwich is in perfect condition although he has been a marked man in the Lions' eight league games to date. Sinkwich will start at left halfback.

Only 200 tickets marked "Behind Post" remained for the Lion game as the Redskin ticket office closed last night. The 35,540 seats for the Chicago Bear game next week have been gone for several days.

Cornell Squad Named

Boys Town Gets Check For $13,094

Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, chairman of the Boys Town (Nebr.) committee of Washington, D. C., last night announced that a check of $13,094.42 is being forwarded Father E. J. Flanagan as Boys Town's share in the benefit football game with Gonzaga High School at Griffith Stadium last Sunday.

The gross gate for last Sunday's game, after taxes were deducted, was $15,629.53. A contribution of $1000 was made to Gonzaga's athletic fund.

Senator Thomas yesterday received the check from Clark Griffith, Washington Baseball Club president, who made the presentation at the Senate Office Building. Griffith, Secretary Edward B. Eynon, jr., and Washington club officials donated the stadium and its set-up for the occasion.

"We were shown magnificent cooperation and generosity by Messrs. Griffith, Eynon and the Washington Club," Senator Thomas emphasized upon accepting the check. "We also wish to acknowledge the support of the Touchdown Club, Nebraksa State Society and the newspapers and radios who cooperated with us splendidly."

Father Flanagan has expressed his heartfelt appreciation of the reception extended Boys Town here, and definitely has agreed to bring Boys Town football teams back to Griffith Stadium annually for a similar game.

Zivic, LaMotta To Meet Tonight

New York, Nov. 11 (INS).—Fritzie Zivic, veteran welterweight, may be fighting his last ring battle tomorrow night when he meets New York middleweight Jake LaMotta in a ten-round Madison Square Garden main event. Zivic is due to report to his Pittsburgh draft board next Sunday for a physical examination.

This will be the rubber match between Zivic and LaMotta. Fritzie lost a decision to LaMotta in Pittsburgh on June 10, and won a rematch there on July 12.

Frank, Race Official, Dies Suddenly

New York, Nov. 11 (AP).—Herman M. Frank, a native of Baltimore and manager of mutuel betting machines at eight of the Nation's leading race tracks, died today in his home after an illness of only an hour.

He worked yesterday at the Jamaica oval and began preparations for moving to Miami, where he was to have been in charge of the machines at Tropical Park this winter.

Cubs Retain Jimmy Wilson As Manager

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP).—Jimmy Wilson, manager of the Chicago Cubs since 1940, will be retained through 1944 with no official "resigning" of his contract expiring December 31.

Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, made that positive today when he said, in reply to a direct question:

"No arrangements have been made for a managerial change next year. We have been going along, working with that thought in mind."

Wilson, summoned here to attend the Major League draft meeting ten days ago, remained a week conferring with James Gallagher, general manager of the Cubs, and Owner Wrigley regarding plans and prospects for next season. From time to time, successors to the former coach of the Cincinnati Reds have been suggested, but at no time have the Cubs offered even unofficial comment on a change in leadership.

There will be no official re-signing of Wilson, since the Cubs' business office still regards him as "continuing to fill out an unlimited engagement."

A's Great Hurler, Bender, Called Back by Mr. Mack

Philadelphia, Nov. 11 (AP).—Connie Mack said today that Chief Bender, his great Indian pitcher of former years, is coming back to the Athletics.

Mack did not say what Bender will do, but presumably he will coach young pitchers as he did for the New York Yankees two years ago.

Bender has been working for a Philadelphia clothing establishment.

The Athletics' manager discounted reports that Al Simmons might return as a coach next year. He said Simmons wrote him from Milwaukee recently that he wants to make 3000 hits before hanging up his glove.

Simmons was released by the Boston Red Sox several weeks ago.

Mount Vernon Starts Hockey Play Today

Mount Vernon Seminary's Yellow Hockey Team, captained by Jane McCauley, will play its first game of the season this afternoon with the first team of the National Cathedral School for Girls at 3:15 on the new Mount Vernon hockey field adjoining the resident house at 4020 Fordham rd.

Mount Vernon's White team, Dorothy Legge, captain, will meet the National Cathedral School's second team on their home grounds at Mount St. Albans this afternoon at the same hour.

Irish Mere 2 to 3 Over N'western

By Caswell Adams

New York, Nov. 11 (INS).—Notre Dame, top team of the current football season, will tackle Northwestern this weekend, and Notre Dame, on paper, ought to pass through this obstacle and go on to the last two games of the season, undefeated and untied. But there are so many fellows around town who believe that Notre Dame can't be as good as it was against Navy and Army that the price on Notre Dame in New York tonight is a mere 2 to 3.

The boys who know are basing their odds on the proved excellence of Otto Graham, Northwestern star. They figure, also, that the ordeal of beating Navy, Army and Michigan has taken a toll of the marvelous teamwork so far displayed by Frank Leahy's team. And they also figure that the accolades of greatness will make the Notre Damers think that they are supermen and they will slacken up a bit.

Sampson Maybe "Sleeper"

The week's sleeper is Lieut. Comdr. Mal Stevens' Sampson Naval Station outfit to whip the Army in their game at West Point. The Army football team has been getting progressively worse the last two weekends, being tied in the closing moments by Pennsylvania and then succumbing to Notre Dame in the last six minutes. Stevens has a professional powerhouse up at Sampson, and will use all his skill and all his manpower against Red Blaik's team.

At the classic, which was, between Princeton and Yale at New Haven, there will be about 8000 persons, hardened old Blues and old Oranges, and Princeton will win.

Georgia Tech Favored

Down South, Georgia Tech is the rather unorthodox pick over Tulane, and Clemson is picked to beat the Sailors from Georgia Preflight. Indiana's civilians look strong enough to beat a Great Lakes team which is waiting for Notre Dame, and the Iowa Preflights, with Dick Todd performing, will smother Camp Grant.

The complete list of selections:

EAST
Navy over Columbia.
Sampson Naval over Army.
Bainbridge Naval over Maryland.
Brown over Coast Guard.
Cane over Bucknell.
Colgate over RPI.
Dartmouth over Cornell.
Franklin and Marshall over Willow Grove.
Harvard over Tufts.
Rutgers over Lehigh.
Pennsylvania over North Carolina.
Swarthmore over Muhlenberg.
Penn State over Temple.

WEST
Notre Dame over Northwestern.
Indiana over Great Lakes.
Michigan over Wisconsin.
Ohio State over Illinois.
Iowa Preflight over Camp Grant.
Kansas over Warrensburg.
Minnesota over Iowa.
Oklahoma over Missouri.

SOUTHWEST
North Texas Aggies over Texas Tech.
Arkansas over SMU.

Wildcats Ready 'As Can Be' for Irish—Waldorf

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 11 (AP).—Lynn Waldorf put a high polish on Northwestern's defense and offense today and declared "we're as ready as we can ever be for Notre Dame."

The passing and running of Otto Graham featured the offensive drill, while Herb Hein and Bob Wallis stood out in defensive practices which stressed meaneuvers against passes. Only light limbering up exercises are scheduled tomorrow.

IRISH TO "WATCH GRAHAM"

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 11 (AP).—"Watch Graham" was the word at Notre Dame again today as the football team strove to perfect a defense against the passing of Otto Graham, Northwestern's backfield ace, who almost upset Notre Dame last year.

Julie Rykovich learned that his stomach ailment of last week may have cost him his job. Bob Kelly, 18-year-old freshman, who filled in for Rykovich against Army last week, sparkled again today in practice, and it looked as if he would be certain of at least sharing the right halfback job with Rykovich Saturday.

Augie Lio Faces Stadium Jinx Here Sunday

The Redskins squad is back to 27, one below the league maximum, as Angelo Paternoster, the former Georgetown guard, and now a naval student in the G. U. Dental School, was forced to ask for his release due to a misunderstanding . . . the Boston Redskins lost five straight games to the Detroit Lions but the Washington Redskins have won four in a row from Detroit since the franchise was moved in 1937 . . . Lion Coach Gus Dorais coached Sammy Baugh on the College All-Star squad in 1937 when the collegians beat the Packers, 6-0. Steve Juzwik, who played two games with the Redskins last year, scored only two touchdowns for Great Lakes as a starting back in six games but as a substitute for Emil Sitko, Notre Dame's freshman back of last year. Juzwik has scored four touchdowns and three extra points in three games . . . Augie Lio, Georgetown's all-American guard now in his third year with the Lions, will be playing in his jinx stadium Sunday. Lio played his best ball out of town with the Hoyas and when G. U. alumni presented former Hoyas in the pro league with gifts here three years ago, Lio did not accept his gift personally, although he was in the stadium. He was quoted as saying he was unjustly booed by Washington fans in G. U. games here and was not asking for any late recognition as a pro . . . Redskin team mates have dubbed guard Al Fiorentino as "the Little Flower" . . . Pictures of the Redskin-Eagle game of last Sunday show Redskin Ken Hayden was knocked flat on the Eagles' touchdown pass play and the play should have been called back and Phil-Pitt penalized 15 yards . . . Fans without tickets for the next two Redskin home games have been asked to stay clear of the park to discourage illegal scalping.

Challamore Takes Ritchie Handicap by Nose

Adulator Second; 3d To Quien Es

By Walter Haight

Pimlico, Nov. 11.—There's an old turf adage—"horses for courses"—and Pimlico definitely is Challamore's race track. The 6-year-old came through with a gallant stretch run today to win the seventh running of the $7500 added Ritchie Handicap in a thrilling three-way photo finish.

Racing in the familiar green and red of E. S. Eastwood, Challamore repeated his victory in the same stake last year and hunk a nose defeat on the Woolford Farm's Adulator. Another nose back came the Calumet Farm's Quien Es, favorite in the field of seven. A crowd of 16,000 came out for the first of three days for the National War Fund.

Knack for Winning

Challamore has a knack for winning his stake races in pairs. Last year he won the James Thornton Handicap at Narragansett and the Ritchie and Heiser Handicaps here.

This season he has accounted for the same races. He performed today under good handling by Jackey Herb Claggett and was clocked in 1:13.3-5, slow time for the stake, but creditable over a dull track. He paid $8.

The son of Challenger II and Con Amore now has won five big races over this track and is undefeated here in the last two years. Three seasons ago, Challamore broke down here.

The feature today was a sizzler. Sollure, representing H. G. Bedwell, was away in front and set a strong pace while Challamore was rated in second position and Quien Es was settling into stride within striking distance. Adulator, the lightweight of the field, was virtually left at the post.

Challamore Takes Lead

Approaching the stretch, Sollure weakened and Challamore took a slight lead. Quien Es then moved on the inside of Challamore and Adulator, running like a wild horse and skimming the rail, came up sharply. In the final drive it was anybody's race with the three heads nodding along. Quien Es was in close quarters between horses at the end.

Alsab was on the track today between races and turned in a useful workout for Saturday's Bryan-O'Hara Handicap. . . . The son of Good Goods breezed and appeared fit and ready while going a mile and an eighth in 152 1/5 . . . Trainer Sarge Swenke is beginning to look around for real action for "Sab," as he calls him. . . . If Alsab wins Saturday, he may be shipped to Rockingham for a race and from there to New Orleans and later Florida. . . . Maurice Oliver will pass up Marlboro and head for Miami. . . . M. B. Goss, Winchester, Va., is ill and will miss the Prince Georges County racing. . . . We wish him a speedy recovery. . . . I had a good thing yesterday in the thirteenth race at Rockingham. . . . And he blew. . . . Bee Mack, the filly cut down here, was not sufficiently recovered to be shipped to Kentucky with the other Bradley horses. . . . Instead she was shipped to Sagamore Farm and probably will be bred to Bahram next spring. . . . Jack Healey will winter the Christiana Stable horses here at Pimlico. . . . After one of yesterday's races one of the press box boys began singing, "I'd Rather Have a Paper Jockey."

Two-dollar mutuels paid—APPEAL AGENT, $5.30, $3.70, $3.20; GRAND TOY, $26.10, $13.50; OUR DAMSEL, $8.00.

APPEAL AGENT took commanding lead early, held on gamely when challenged midway of turn, again drew out slightly inside eighth pole and was all out to just last. GRAND TOY, within striking distance from start, came with a rush on the outside in final eighth and would have won in another stride. OUR DAMSEL moved to leader on turn, appeared headed for victory, but hung right at the end.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 12:46½. Off at 12:47. Winner, R. C. Austin's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AUGUSTINA, $6.00, $4.50, $3.90; SANDY TRAIL, $13.50, $8.50; LATE SLIP, $38.80.

AUGUSTINA went to front at once, opened good lead and won with speed in reserve. SANDY TRAIL was always closest to pace and showed good effort. LATE SLIP was sluggish early and closed with bold rush.

Daily Double, APPEAL AGENT and AUGUSTINA, Paid $20.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 1:15. Off at 1:15¾. Winner, Mrs. D. P. Barrett's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLUE TWINK, $71.50, $38.40, $16.20; GALLANT WITCH, $34.50, $17.10; LOVELY ONE, $10.90.

BLUE TWINK assumed command at once, was under strong handling and held on gamely in final drive. GALLANT WITCH saved ground, got through on inside and closed willingly. LOVELY ONE was closest to pace, moved up menacingly in stretch and weakened right at end.

TRACK GOOD.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $2300. For 3-year-olds and upward; fillies and mares. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:15½. Off at 2:16. Winner, C. T. Strother's b. f. (4), by High Quest—Tiddlewink. Trained by A. P. East. Value to winner, $1650; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $100. Time, 1:48⅗.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PORT HARMONY, $8.90, $4.60, $2.80; HIGH BIT, $6.80, $2.80; BABY DARLING, $2.60.

PORT HARMONY, first away, set steady pace while kept away from inside rail, was not seriously threatened and won easily. HIGH BIT was rated while close up, responded to strong handling and closed willingly. BABY DARLING was steadied early and rallied mildly in closing test.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $7500 added; the Ritchie Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:46. Off at 3:46. Winner E. C. Eastwood's b. g. (6), by Challenger II—Con Amore. Trained by E. C. Eastwood. Net value to winner, $6900; second, $1500; third, $750; fourth, $350. Time, 1:13⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHALLAMORE, $8.00, $4.20, $3.20; ADULATOR, $10.20, $4.80; QUIEN ES, $3.00.

CHALLAMORE was rated while close up to stretch, responded when placed to pressure and won in concluding strides. ADULATOR was off very slowly, saved ground throughout and closed willingly along rail. QUIEN ES was rated in first flight, moved up gamely, but lacked racing room between horses at end. SOLLURE set early pace and weakened gradually. BEST REWARD could not reach serious contention. CAPE COD was well placed early on outside, but flattened out when placed to pressure. DEFENSE was through after showing early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:16. Off at 3:16. Winner, Mrs. E. Smith's dk. br. g. Malaria Control Projected In U. S. Hospital, Camp Areas

By Walter Wood

The United States Public Health Service, it was disclosed yesterday, has been quietly working since July to prevent the spread of malaria to civilians from Axis prisoners of war and American soldiers returning from overseas.

An increased number of cases of malaria—the No. 1 disease of World War II—have been reported by Army hospitals in this country, and the health service has been asked to extend its malaria-control program to more than 100 areas in the West and Midwest.

Many Ill With Disease

Both the Army and Navy are bringing back men sick with malarial fever, and residents of areas around military hospitals to which they are taken are concerned lest new epidemics start, it was said.

The same is true of communities bordering on prison camps, it was said. Many war prisoners, especially those coming from southern Europe, are suffering from malaria.

The public health service, which has asked Congress for $500,000 to carry on the work already started, plans to extend malaria control methods to cover the areas around 99 Army and Navy hospitals and 73 internment camps.

Around Camps, Hospitals

Dr. J. W. Mountain, assistant surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, said yesterday that control zones, with a radius of one mile each, would be established around camps and hospitals.

The areas will be first surveyed by engineers to determine the most effective methods of control.

In the nonendemic areas, malaria mosquito larvae will be sprayed with oil and paris green by hand, machines and airplanes.

The zones around hospitals and prison camps will be drained as well as sprayed where malaria mosquitoes are found breeding.

Dr. Mountin, under whose direction the work is being done, said that the program for malaria control in war areas, inaugurated in March, 1942, already includes 1161 areas, embracing work in 21 States, the District and Puerto Rico.

The areas surround military reservations, war industries and recreational and housing facilities.

Farmers Face Transportation Problem in Huge Acreage of 1944 Crops

By the Associated Press

A perplexing new problem—transportation from farm to market—faced the Government today as War Food Administrator Marvin Jones set a new all-time food and feed production goal for 1944.

After a series of State meetings with farm representatives, the War Food Administration fixed next year's wartime goal at 380 million acres—16 million above last year.

With a critical transportation shortage already existing, the WFA and the Office of Defense Transportation started work on plans to move the anticipated big crop to consumers.

WFA officials emphasized, however, they were not worried about any food rotting in fields or in farm storage. Jones said a partial solution of the transportation problem might be the manufacture of more farm trucks and making available additional rail facilities.

WFA suggested that more rail transportation for food products could be obtained if long cross-country hauls were reduced by dealers purchasing as much of their products as possible in their own States instead of from other sections.

The size of the problem the Government must solve before next year's harvests is shown in a report of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

"With the manpower and equipment situation for railroads becoming more acute and with the limitations on motor transportation, it may be extremely difficult to handle the peak load of traffic in the fall and winter of 1944," it said.

The bureau said the situation may be particularly difficult for West Coast fruit and vegetable producers, Maine and Idaho potato growers, grain producers in the West, and Midwestern cattle growers.

In announcing the 1944 farm program, Jones said higher prices should be paid to producers for some commodities. He did not designate which products.

Farmers indicated their 1944 plantings, Jones said, with the understanding that the Government would assist them through adequate supplies of machinery, labor, fertilizer and the continuation of the present price support program.

Builders' Nominators

James R. Skinker, J. Holt Wright and John Sharp have been appointed the nominating committee of the Master Builders Association, it was announced yesterday. The association, at its November 9 meeting, voted opposition to nonunion contractors using union subcontractors on jobs, or union contractors engaging nonunion subcontractors.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Baruch Appointment Cheers U. S. Employes

The appointment of Bernard M. Baruch as chief of the Government's postwar unit should be a relief to Federal workers here. It was Baruch who set a good example for Congress after World War I, when he personally paid the cost of transportation back home for his women employes. Congress eventually provided similar transportation costs for all low-paid employes. With Baruch making plans now to meet the postwar period there's every reason to believe that he'll include Federal workers in his studies. Most everyone here presumes that Federal employment will drop sharply immediately after peace comes. But that wasn't the case after World War I. On September 1, 1919, 10 months after the armistice, the Federal population here had declined only 2500. The period after the armistice did bring uncertainty and confusion among the employes.

KLUTTZ

A reemployment register was set up for furloughed employes who had served less than three years. The War Industries Board and the Food Administration were largely demobilized within 60 days after the war but Treasury and a number of other old-line agencies had to be expanded. The War Department demobilized gradually, laying off 2000 employes a month. Length of service was the determining factor in the furloughs. In June, 1919, Congress investigated "idleness" among War Department employes and a year later the Red Cross was called in to help furloughed employes get other jobs. The Civil Service Commission and the Budget Bureau both are making plans to take care of Government employes after this war and they're starting none too soon.

Lester Asher has been appointed to the National Labor Relations Board to do its contact work with other Federal agencies. He was brought here from the Chicago office . . . Benjamin Namm, the Brooklyn department store magnate, is expected to resign from the Office of Economic Warfare. He's chairman of the United States Purchasing Commission at Rio de Janeiro . . . Federal agencies have been ordered by the Civil Service Commission to stop pronto the use of photographs on applications for transfer. Photographs were banned several years ago when it was agreed that they led to race discrimination. Now some of the agencies have been requiring photographs on transfer applications.

Night Differential Voted

Its a deep secret, but the Council of Personnel Administration has voted in favor of a differential for all Federal employes who work at nights. The council didn't agree on a fixed percentage but it did insist that whatever percentage was agreed upon be uniform throughout the Government. Meantime, the Budget Bureau is trying to find out how many Federal employes work at nights and what differentials they get, if any. For example, skilled workers at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing get a differential but women printer assistants and all other classification act workers don't get it. The Navy pays its ungraded employes a differential of 6 cents an hour while the War Department gives its employes the prevailing local rates and there are scores of those.

Single girls—two or more of them—can join together and get a war housing apartment. Formerly their applications wouldn't even be accepted but employe counselors found this ban to be one of the chief grievances among single girls, so the way has now been opened for them to get their own apartments. But don't be too optimistic when you make application at the War Housing Center. The center has been swamped with applications since the eligibility rules on war housing have been relaxed and preference for the available family units will be given families.

Contrary to the general impression, people who came here before July 1, 1941, aren't eligible for all war housing projects. This date was waived, however, for these projects: Fairway (Montgomery County), Calvert (Prince Georges), Carry (Suitland), and Lilyponds, in the northeast section. These projects are managed by the National Capital Housing Authority. George Pickett Homes and Shirley, in Arlington County, and Hillwood Square, in Fairfax County—Federal Public Housing projects—also have lifted the July 1 restriction. In these projects the National Housing Authority has set aside 1290 units for War and Navy employes.

In a decision issued to the Federal Works Agency, the Comptroller General said the use of taxicabs at Government expense may not be accepted on the contention that public transportation cannot be used advantageously. . . . Federal agencies are in a quandary over the ban on Christmas leave. Many employes already have been granted leave and now it may be canceled. But before anything definite is done, officials and supervisors would like to get a definition of "extreme personal emergency." ODT Boss Eastman has okayed employe travel in emergencies.

'Sweet Pea' Talcum Can Proves Bomb; Carrier Seized

By Joseph Paull

A little talcum powder can labelled "sweet Pea" caused a furore yesterday in Municipal Court—for the little can was a bomb powered with half a stick of dynamite.

Police charged Gentlo Ramson, 34, Negro, of Groverton, Va., with three violations of the Deadly Weapons Law, and the evidence police said, was the bomb in workable order with wick fuse and cap, a 32-caliber revolver, and a switchblade knife.

Police later exploded the bomb and splintered several boards with it. They said it was 40 per cent dynamite and was powerful enough to blow the wall out of a good size building.

Police Private V. M. Reynolds brought the one-man arsenal and his weapons into court, saying Ramson was arrested after uneasy imbibers in a 7th st. nw. beer garden complained somebody was showing off a gun. Ramson carried the gun, he said, in his hand, the knife in his pocket and in a shoe box under his arm was the potent mixture of four bottles of brandy and the bomb.

Reynolds juggled the bomb and while everybody ducked, Judge Walter Casey ordered him to take it out of the court room.

Ramson pleaded not guilty. His attorney, Wesley Williams, explained the defendant carried the grenade to blow up a troublesome tree stump on a Virginia farm, the gun because of neighbors, but he never did explain away the knife, officials said.

"He really isn't guilty, you know" he said, "and besides, he's ging into the Army."

"The Ordnance Bureau, I presume," replied Judge Casey.

It was learned later that Judge Casey missed a chance to try the first case under the November 4 amendment to the Deadly Weapons Act which makes it an offense to carry unconcealed, as well as concealed, weapons without a license. The judge will get another crack at it today, however, when he is scheduled to dispose of Ramson's case.

Old Comrades Pay Tribute To MacArthur

By Hanson H. Hathaway

Reunited by Armistice Day, 14 members of the famed "Rainbow Division" of the First World War, paid tribute yesterday to an absent comrade, General Douglas MacArthur, and agreed he "should be this war's all-Army field commander."

Most of them wished they "could be with the old warrior" as they delved into memory to refurbish their picture of an old friend and commander.

Among the group was M. Manning Marcus, MacArthur's chief clerk in France 25 years ago, who made the original draft of MacArthur's order to the division to cease firing at 11 a. m., November 11, 1918.

"Mac is kicking the Japs around with variations of the same technic he used in the last war," said Capt. Thomas C. P. Martin, who was with the 165th Infantry out of New York, a part of the division.

A Front-Line General

MacArthur, all agreed, should be the war's all-Army field commander, recalling that MacArthur was a "front-line general."

"So much a front-liner that he was captured by a unit of the First Division two days before the armistice," related James H. Fay, Representative from New York. "The unit thought he was a stray German officer. He was far in advance of his own troops, making a lone reconnaissance of a fleeing enemy" Fay was also with the 165th.

Those who met yesterday were Congressman Hubert G. Ellis, 150th Field Artillery; Congressman Fay B. Carroll Reese, Congressman from Tennessee, also with the 166th; Colonels Chas. A. Dravo, division machine gun officer; J. Monroe Johnson, 117th Engineers; Davis G. Arnold, division zoning officer; Captain Martin, Marcus, James R. Daly, division headquarters, and four past presidents of the Rainbow Division Association, Walker H. Colston, Elmer F. Neagle, William H. Kay, Bernard V. Rhodes and Hogarth W. Colson, associate division member.

Finishing lunch and reminiscence the 14 filed out into chill air of the 25th Armistice Day and stood silently for a moment facing the distant West, as startled pedestrians look on.

In concert, they brought their hands smartly up in long disused salutes.

"Go get 'em, Mac," said Marcus.

Civic Groups File Protests Against Ihlder

Protests from two sections of the city were made yesterday against the National Capitol Housing Authority and its director, John Ihlder, as Negro civic groups in Southeast and Northeast Washington demanded reviews of condemnation orders and curtailment of Negro housing.

Charging "arbitrary" action, "without due consideration of all factors involved," in the NCHA's decision to abandon construction of 140 Negro homes in the Garfield section after complaints by the neighboring Congress Heights Citizens Association, Negro members of the Garfield-Douglas Civic Associations adopted resolutions asking that:

The NCHA reconsider its decision not to build the 10 units of public housing planned for the Savannah site;

The 40 homes to be built on 25th st. and Alabama ave. se. be occupied by Negro families;

Community leadership be consulted before new sites for Negro housing are chosen;

And Negroes be represented on the NCHA in its planning and building in their behalf.

The move to abandon plans for the Negro project was made by Ihlder without consulting civic associations representing the large Negro population in the area, Roy Garvin, president, stated yesterday.

Meanwhile, Northeast Negro citizens planned a protest meeting yesterday against dispossession by NCHA of about 35 families from a tract bounded by Division ave., 50th st., Foot st. and Washington pl. ne., to make way for a housing project. There are six other available sites, according to Howard D. Woodson.

Streetcar Conversion Authorized

Conversion of 52 streetcars to one-man operation has been authorized by the Public Utilities Commission in an order issued to the Capital Transit Co., Chairman James H. Flanagan announced yesterday.

The order will provide manpower for operating additional cars, according to the majority opinion, and also will save the company an estimated $104,000, it was said.

Commissioner Gregory Hankin concurred in the opinion, but said the company had discriminated against Negroes in the selection of manpower. He said he concurred only because it was necessary to reduce bus mileage to save buses, gasoline and tires by adding streetcar mileage.

Twice previously, permission to convert to one-man cars had been denied the company on grounds that manpower shortages were not serious enough and that such conversion would slow up traffic.

Testimony in connection with the latest request showed streetcar and bus service totaling only 950,000 miles a week as compared to 1,047,000 miles a week last May. This curtailment of service, it was said, is due largely to the fact that the company now has available 57 fewer platform men (operators and conductors) than were employed the week ending May 22.

During hearings opposition was registered to conversion of the cars by the Committee on Jobs for Negroes in Public Utilities, by James B. Blackistone and by the Washington Industrial Union Council. Hankin agreed with Chairman Flanagan and Commissioner Charles W. Autz, other members of the PUC, that conversion was necessary, but said it was by no means desirable.

Police Help Break Whisky Black Market

Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, has been requested by the District OPA to assign all the officers he can spare to the work of stamping out the black market in whisky, it was learned yesterday.

Reports indicate, however, that little headway has been made.

In this connection it was pointed out that the only violation in the District where the police could intervene would be that of sales at above ceiling prices—which sales are surrounded these days by a wall of silence. In event the whisky is bought by a person who intends taking it to Virginia, for instance, for resale at bootleg prices, this is a well-nigh insurmountable obstacle.

The purchaser naturally makes the offer of a higher-than-ceiling price and he will not complain. The dealer who sells to him is making himself liable to a $10,000 fine and a year in jail, and he, of course, would not file a complaint.

The only other mode of attack open to police is where the whisky is transported illegally across the District Line, seized, and the drivre of the car jailed.

This also presents a serious problem as the seizure would have to be made in the State to which it was taken illegally and a police officer of that State has no right to halt and search a car without reasonable suspicion that a crime is being committed.

As the whisky would have been sold legally, except for the possibility of paying higher prices, there is no way in which a suspicious car could be discovered by the State policemen, OPA officials said.

Another method of control is an effort to obtain cooperation of dealers in some form of self-policing. In line with this plan, it was pointed out that there would be a meeting of the District Liquor Dealers Association on Monday at 8 p. m.

A "nonpartisan" campaign to deal a death blow to American isolationism got under way yesterday when a Pledge for Peace Committee, headed by Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, called upon this Nation to "pay for a world without war by giving up two rights—that of waging war and that of secession from the organization" which is to become a world-wide peace enforcement agency.

Without trying to set up a concrete peace plan, Carl Carmer, committee chairman and president of the Authors' Guild of America, said the Pledge for Peace movement has been launched with the purpose of "mobilizing" American public opinion for the "necessity of a strong international organization."

Carmer hailed the Moscow agreements, saying that they "embodied about half of our peace pledge," as a "great step forward." He expressed his confidence that "Americans will gladly give up rights which until now they have valued if they may help to create a state of affairs in which all nations work for the good of all."

Justice Roberts, who is honorary chairman of the committee, warned against a repetition of "our failure to think and act when there was yet time" and called upon the "common men and women" to take "the fate of humanity, of posterity, in their hands."

"Our elected representatives," he declared, "do not determine national policy; they put it into law as our agents. The national policy is in truth the consensus of opinion of the majority of our people. Each of us can contribute his bit to the creation of sound public opinion and so to sound national policy."

The eight-point Pledge for Peace, which originated with the Writers' War Board, calls for a world organization consisting of "the United Nations and such neutral countries as may be admitted by them"; provides "that the Axis powers, their allies and their sympathizers, shall have the status of territories on probation until the world organization shall admit them," and envisages an international police force.

The pledge also contains two clauses which make secession from the world organization impossible and outlaw wars among its members. It formulates as "a primary goal the gradual abolition of economic and political imperialism" and postulates finally "that it shall be the first duty of the world organization not merely to destroy the military power of the Germans and Japanese but to formulate and carry into execution whatever measures may be deemed necessary to prevent them from preparing for a third world war of conquest."

The pledge, the committee said, has already been signed by an array of educators, writers, actors, editors and "thousands of others."

D. C. School Tuition Ruling May Undergo Test

An effort to seek a new interpretation of the District law governing nonresident school pupils was forecast as attorneys differed with an interpretation of the law as made by the Corporation Counsel's office.

The controversy came to public attention recently when nonresident parents complained that because their children were adopted or were stepchildren, the Board of Education had demanded tuition be paid or the children withdrawn from school. Twelve children were dismissed because of refusals to pay.

The law relating to nonresident students states:

"All pupils whose parents are employed officially or otherwise in the District of Columbia shall be admitted and taught free of charge in the schools of said District."

Ruling Called Narrow

Several attorneys queried said the interpretation placed by the Corporation Counsel's office on the word "parent" as meaning only the natural parent was narrow, and without basis according to the wording of the law. Others expressed the opinion the Corporation Counsel was entirely within his rights in making any interpretation he deemed proper.

One attorney, a former corporation counsel, said the term parent should embrace adoptive parents as well as natural parents, since the former execute all the prerogatives of the latter.

R. W. Holt, chief accountant of the Board of Education, said that there were 3000 nonresident children attending District schools. Of this number, only 100 are paying tuition, giving the District a revenue of between $5000 and $6000 annually.

He pointed out that most of the exempt students were children of District employes, Government workers (no matter where they live) and children of members of the armed forces, for which the law also provides exemption.

He said that practically all the children paying tuition were living in families other than their own.

Girl Barred From School

The controversy recalled the Kemp case of 1936 when the then superintendent of schools, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, refused to allow Lois Kemp of Arlington, Va., to attend Gordon Junior High School, on the grounds the school was overcrowded.

Attorney Robert Lynch, attorney for the girl, had argued that the wording of the law did not leave any discretion with the school officials. The United States Court of Appeals, where the case was taken by the Corporation Counsel, ruled that the word "shall" in the law was mandatory.

Lynch said yesterday it was his opinion that if the parents of some of the children refused admission to District schools except on a tuition basis took their cases to court, the restrictions imposed by the corporation counsel's office would be reversed.

Kin of Sousa Donates Music To Boys' Band

Jane Priscilla Sousa, daughter of John Philip Sousa, composer of popular martial music, including "The Washington Post March," last night presented eight pieces of orchestration to the Junior Optimist Club Band of the Boys' Club of Washington.

The band gave a concert in memory of the birthday of Bandmaster Sousa, who died 11 years ago.

Held at the gymnasium of the Eastern Branch, Massachusetts ave. and 17th st. se., the concert was attended by some 500 persons including the following members of Sousa's family:

His daughter, Jane, Edmund and Arthur Varella, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Geiger, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Varella, Capt. and Mrs. Osmund Varella, Miss Maude S. Varella, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Pugh, and Mrs. E. L. Pugh.

Joseph D'Urso, sr., led the band and Adelbert W. Lee, vice president of Eastern Branch, was chairman of the evning, which was sponsored by the Southeast Businessmen's Association.

13 Safes in District Looted Of $5000 Since September

Thirteen safe-cracking jobs have been reported to the police since the beginning of September. Ten safes were broken into and the contents removed while three were carted away.

More than $5000 in cash has been reported stolen from the safes. A large number of checks also have been taken. Included in one haul were gasoline coupons for 2200 gallons and in another a number of A and B coupon books were taken.

Of the 10 cafes broken into, two were owned by ice cream plants. At Breyer's Ice Cream Co., 1830 Bladensburg rd. ne., thieves broke into a large safe and removed an inner strongbox containing $188 in currency, in a delivery truck stolen from the same company. Cash totaling $1191, and a ring valued at $200 were taken from a safe in the Colonial Ice Cream Plant at 416 Canal st. se.

An unknown amount of Government property (bills, change and stamps belonging to the Postoffice Department) was taken from the Skyland Pharmacy at 2451 Good Hope rd. se., by forcing open the safe. Thieves recently broke into a safe, the property of War Ration Board No. 31, in the Dennison School at 13th and Allison sts. nw., and stole 450 basic "A" gasoline coupons and an unknown number of basic "B" coupons.

The Canteen Co., a merchandise store at 1218 Mount Olivet rd. ne., reported its safe had been cracked by the punch method and $768 stolen. The Walker-Thomas furniture store at 1031 7th st. nw. was entered, the safe was ripped open, apparently with a crowbar, and $600 in cash and $573 in checks were taken.

Cash amounting to $500 and checks totaling $3000 were taken from the Giant Food Shopping Center at 845 Bladensburg rd ne. Childs restaurant at 1423 Pennsylvania ave. nw, reported $200 in cash taken from its safe, and the Western Union at 3004 14th st. nw. was entered and over $787 in cash was removed from a safe.

Most recent victim of safe breakers was the Harry Kaufman, Inc., store at 1316 7th st. nw., where $785 was stolen Tuesday night.

Thieves took a small safe from the City Service gas station at 14th and Benning rd. ne., containing almost $178 in cash and 2200 gallons worth of gas coupons. A much larger safe, weighing about 700 pounds and containing $300 in cash and $500 in checks was taken from the Safeway Grocery Store at 419 13th st. ne., and one was removed from Walsh's restaurant, 3422 14th st. nw., with $300 in cash and $400 in checks.

BARNABY By Crockett Johnson

Barnaby is about to begin his most exciting adventure. . . .

Here's what's happened: Barnaby's mother read him a bedtime story about a prince with a fairy godmother. Barnaby went to bed. Through his window came not a fairy godmother but a godfather, Mr. O'Malley, with pink wings, a blue nose and a long cigar.

Promising to return, Mr. O'Malley exited through the window. A crash below followed immediately. It appeared that Mr. O'Malley's pink wings hadn't proved airworthy. Barnaby's parents said he must have been dreaming . . . But Barnaby found cigar ashes on the floor . . .

'Morning Mom . . . 'Morning Grandma . . . 'Morning Pop. Mr. O'Malley DID fly in my room last night. I found his cigar ashes!
He's my Fairy Godfather. He flew in my window and talked to me and he flew out into the flower bed . . .
Nobody believes in pixies any more, son.
Something DID get into the flower bed last night . . . Probably a dog.
But . . .
I suppose Mr. O'Malley runs into this attitude all the time. I wish he was here!

U. S. District Employes Take Holiday

By Margaret Davis

War or no war, some 15,000 District government employes took a holiday yesterday, presidential policy notwithstanding.

Armistice Day in the midst of hostilities was observed by service men and women at home and abroad as a working day and by all Government departments in Washington.

D. C. Offices Closed

The no-holiday policy in Federal offices was in line with a letter of presidential policy addressed to all administrative agencies and departments last May 12.. The letter said that "throughout the war period . . . with the exception of Christmas, all days normally considered as holidays should be considered as a regular work day."

The letter was issued by William H. McReynolds, administrative assistant to the President.

Yesterday McReynolds said the District government was not specifically included in the letter but that in its case "the principle is to be followed."

Nonetheless, District government offices were generally closed. Schools and school offices also were closed, releasing 5000 teachers and employes. The victory garden office was found "open by mistake," because a meeting had been scheduled and plowing was underway on one of the community plots.

Fred Z. Hetzel, War Manpower chief for the District, had no comment to make on the holiday, since Government offices are not under his control, but asserted, "we certainly worked."

Public Buildings Administration reported no other Government agency closed today. Although absentee reports were not available from the Federal offices yesterday, spot checks in Army and Navy offices indicated that leaves were at a minimum.

The Civil Service Commission pointed out that the District government is technically neither an executive department nor an agency but a form of municipal government, sometimes considered outside the pale of Federal restriction, although geographically and otherwise it may be considered Federal in character.

Capitol Hill Takes Ease On 'Holiday'

By Anne Hagner

The two-hour drone of "special orders" in the House, and the flapping of powder puffs on the newsgathering noses of Washington's distaff press corps were just about the only sounds audible yesterday on Capitol Hill.

For fundamentally it was a holiday and Congress was ready for a brief respite from its customary chores, in which it has been involved pretty steadily since September 14.

So 60-odd Representatives showed up on the House floor for the reading of the President's lend-lease message, then made a mass exodus in favor of the House restaurant. A few 10-minute speeches were delivered, but less than a dozen legislators remained until the two-hour session ended.

Scramble to Get Pretty

In the House press gallery, newspapermen scarcely could concentrate on interpreting the President's words because of the scramble made by their feminine compatriots for mirror space and combing room. You see, a Vogue Magazine photographer was on hand, complete with camera, to record the earnest faces of ladies watching the House at work.

Wagering about the gallery was 6 to 1 that the caption ultimately would read: "The House press gallery is jammed with newspaperwomen when Representative Luce (Republican) of Connecticut is scheduled to speak." However, as soon as the adjournment bells rang the men were shooed away while the pictures were taken (special permission of Speaker Rayburn).

Only Tourists on Hand

Elsewhere in the Capitol, only the patter of tourists' feet interrupted the holiday-like calm. The Senate (much to the disgust of irate ladies from Arkansas, who had thought that the wheels of Legislature were never stilled) was not in session. The Senate Judiciary Committee was not answering its telephone. The Senate District Committee had called "time out."

The brunette lovely at the airlines office prayed for more business. The House District Committee closed its doors at 1 p. m. All of the other House and Senate committees that felt called upon to hold sessions scheduled them for midmorning, undoubtedly with an eye to ending them as early as possible. You could get a seat at 1 p. m.—usually the peak of the rush hour—in the House restaurant. And you could order "Armistice layer cake" for dessert. It had pink, white and aquamarine icing; later interpreted as would-be red, white and blue.

Indian Relics Loaned

A beaded tinder bag once carried by Geronimo, Apache Indian chief, has been loaned by Lieut. Comdr. Delos H. Smith, jr., of 735 S. Lee st., Alexandria, Va., to the Arizona Pioneers' Historical Society for exhibit at the University of Arizona. The gift also included an Apache buckskin beaded bag and a leather knife sheath nd numerous documents and photographs of early Arizona.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 17, Who Freely Kisses All Her Boy Friends, And Whose Guests at Recent Party Devoted Evening To Kissing Games, Tells Anxious Mama It's Modern

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In my younger days, I was reared very strictly. I was not allowed to go to parties of any kind. Then I met the man who is now my husband. After two months, we married. Now I have a wonderful girl, 17 years of age, who is still in high school. She doesn't go steady with any boy; but she does go out with different boys, which I think is the right thing for her to do. The only fault I have to find is that she is very free with her hugs and kisses. She seems to expect and like this sort of thing. I am very much worried about it.

My husband tells me to leave her alone, because once I did stop her from kissing a boy; and I always get after her, telling her she should not be hugging and kissing boys the way she does. I say she may forget herself and be led into actions that she will deeply regret. She tells me I am old-fashioned; not up-to-date with the younger generation; and that I have bad thoughts in my mind. Last month, she asked my permission to give a party for boys and girls; and she wanted to serve beer to the boys, who were all about 17 or 18 years of age. Well, I let her get the beer, and while I didn't like it very much, I didn't say so to her.

For the party, we cleared one room for dancing, which many of them like. But during the whole evening, they only danced twice. After the boys got some beer in them, they started playing games; and of course it had to be kissing games. That was the entertainment for the rest of the evening. They all gathered in the living room and tried to put out the lights; and I had to make them turn the lights on again many times. I passed a tray of food every once in a while, thinking maybe that would break up the games; but it didn't help. In my opinion this kind of party, as well as the way she kisses her dates, looks very cheap. I have not told her how I felt about the party, because she would only say I was not up-to-date. I know she will want another party soon, so please advise me what to do. Should I let her continue such parties? And also, should I just forget about her kissing the boys she goes out with? W. P. S.

Term for Behavior Is Trashy Promiscuity

DEAR W. P. S.: When asking advice in a serious matter, one should have the forethought to supply his consultant with the clearest possible picture of the background. In this instance, it isn't clear whether the girl is your daughter or your stepdaughter;—a detail which has a vital bearing on what you could, or would be entitled, to do, by way of straightening her out. Your letter might be construed as explaining you had got married rather recently; and had thus acquired maternal responsibility toward this "wonderful girl," whose free-and-easy behavior with boys is a source of worry to you.

THIS INFERENCE is further supported by the thought that inasmuch as you were reared by strict standards, it seems hardly likely that a daughter of yours, subject from infancy to your conservative influence, would be callously and defiantly committed at 17 to loose and vulgar tenets of conduct; or that her father would deny you, if you were her natural mother, 100 per cent cooperation in firmly defining and upholding a right course of action for her to follow. It seems strange, indeed, supposing she is your daughter as well as his, that he would casually condone and even, I gather, debate with you to defend such trashy promiscuity on her part as you describe,—promiscuity which is not only dangerously offensive to the moral chastity and emotional integrity of the youngsters involved: but also, the most disgusting breach of social manners, which puts the youngsters who so behave practically on a par with monkeys.

Father Is Misusing His Vital Authority

SUCH CONDUCT habitually indulged, must inevitably coarsen her feelings, blunt her morally protective instincts and tarnish her reputation among boys, with the net result that she will be marked as easy prey by evil minded sex opportunists, and progressively deprived of the sensitive force of character to repel their insolent advances. Since I don't know whether you are her mother or her stepmother, I must bridge the gap in that information by saying,—If you are her stepmother, and denied her father's alert cooperation in taking positive steps to correct her foolhardy and ignorant laxity in association with boys, you are ethically absolved of responsibility for what she does; and for what may become of her.

IF HER FATHER is exerting his undeniable authority in the situation to lend endorsement, though only passively, to her woefully mistaken conduct, any attempts of yours to supersede his misused authority can only make bad matters worse. The most and best you can do, if such is the case, is to state your position of strong disapproval, quietly and emphatically, once and for all; and then figuratively wash your hands of the matter, by carefully refraining thereafter from trying either to manage her, or to wheedle her into line. If the question arises again, of giving your consent to parties in your home which offend your sense of decency,—tell her father it is for him to decide; and his the responsibility to police the consequences, if he says, "Yes."

Conduct Is on Par With Thumb-Sucking

IF THE GIRL is your daughter, my advice is to act your age and speak your mind coolly in relation to her. Stop pussy-footing about your thoroughly justified objections to her low-grade behavior. Shut her off sternly, when she ventures that ancient wheeze about your old-fashioned notions. Tell her that her crackpot ideas about "newfangled youth" are as old as the race itself. Since her friends' party conduct was a sickening spectacle in your eyes, tell her so. There is nothing in the least "up-to-date" about it. On the contrary, it amounts to a childish imitation of pagan revel, dating back to primitive man. Far from being sophisticated and modern, the entertainment described is just about as advanced as thumb-sucking. If she wants to have another party, give your consent strictly on condition that the guests behave like proper persons rather than apes. Tell her the minute a single light goes out, or a guest misbehaves,—by your standards,—the party will be over; and the company sent home. About her free-for-all kissing of dates,—maybe a study of these remarks will prompt her to renounce that self-defeating performance. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Women Aides Of Medical Body Have Luncheon

At a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Medical Society of the District of Columbia held this week, plans were made for a luncheon and "white elephant" sale, to be held at the Medical Society Building, 1718 M st. nw., on December 7. The luncheon, for members and their guests, will be for the benefit of the philanthropic fund. Mrs. John J. Shugrue is chairman of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Robert E. Moran, Mrs. Edgar E. Quayle, Mrs. W. Calhoun Stirling, Mrs. Leo Brison Norris and Mrs. G. Louis Weller, jr.

The meeting included a moving picture, "The Last Will and Testament of Tom Smith," shown through the courtesy of the Community War Fund. William R. Johnson spoke on "China." Johnson lived in China 37 years and was there during the seige of Hongkong. He was assistant director of American National Red Cross, China Relief Unit in Hongkong, and was interned by the Japanese. He returned to this country on the Gripsholm as an exchange prisoner.

Mrs. George H. Crofton was in charge of arrangements for the luncheon and Mrs. William J. Mallory and Mrs. Daniel L. Borden, past presidents, assisted.

Washington Club Hears Prof. Catsonis

Greece's refusal to yield to territorial demands of Italy has brought her great suffering and a tragic lot, but it has saved her soul and vouchsafed to her an honored place in the family of nations, according to Prof. Achilles Catsonis, adviser to the Greek Embassy, speaking before members of the Washington Club at a dinner meeting last night. He said:

"For six months the ill-clad, poorly equipped Greek soldier, whose strongest armor was the undisputed righteousness of his cause, drove the invader out of Greece and deep into Albania, vanquished and humiliated him, exposed him as an inflated braggart, irretrievably shattered his prestige and the morale of his people, gave to the Allies their first victory in a long series of defeats, and to the occupied countries, an encouraging omen of brighter days to come.

"Indeed, the Greek stand may well have given a decisive turn to the war, for time was of the essence, and Greece stole time from Hitler and gave it to the Allies. When she said 'no' to him as she had done to Mussolini six months earlier, Greece set back Hitler's timetable on all fronts, forced him to open a second front in the Balkans, delayed the attack against Russia by two months, gave the British time for a breathing spell and enabled them to strengthen their army in the Middle East, thus thwarting Axis plans to close the Suez Canal and the Red Sea, through which subsequently went endless convoys from America, and in due time reversed the picture and saved North Africa for the Allies."

Illinois Group Plans Season's First Gathering

The Illinois Society of Washington will gather tonight at 9 o'clock in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel for their first informal dance and get-together of the season.

Representative Evan Howell of Springfield, Ill., president, explains that the affair will afford those from Illinois an opportunity to renew old acquaintances and "listen to some good old Corn Belt talk."

It is estimated that 10,000 Illinoisans live in Washington and surrounding communities. Announcements have been mailed to several thousand.

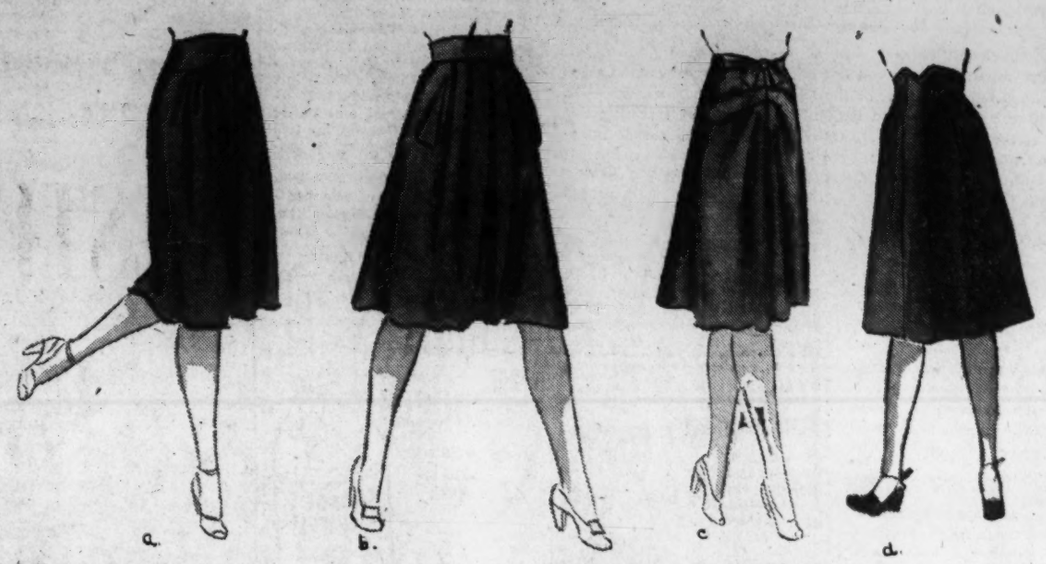
On the hospitality committee are: Senator and Mrs. Scott W. Lucas, Senator Wayland Brooks, Representative and Mrs. William A. Rowan, Representative and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Representative and Mrs. Robert B. Chiperfield, Representative and Mrs. Sid Simpson, Representative and Mrs. James V. Heidinger Representative and Mrs. C. W. Bishop, James M. Barnes, Lieut. William W. "Smokey" Downey, Lieut. John Shaheen, Dr. Mollie Rae Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. George Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. Delos James, Dr. and Mrs. Leason Adams, Mr. and Mrs. John DeLaMater, and James T. Nally.

Sudsing by the Bag

Save all scraps and slivers of toilet soap. When a half-cup has been accumulated put them into a four-by-four bag made of old bath towelling. Sew a strap across the back, and presto, you have an ideal soap mitt to use in the shower. A similar bag made with laundry soap odds and ends is very useful for washing out bathtubs, sinks, and washbowls.

POST DISCOVERIES—

Change Makers



Have you discovered yet what a good black skirt can do for your wardrobe?

It's a common denominator for all the odd blouses and sweaters you own. Wear a black blouse and you've got a dress effect or top it with a colored sweater—you can vary your ensemble as easily as you change your mind.

We like them and wear them because they're easy to live with. They'll gladly work overtime and yet very seldom beg to go to the cleaners. A quick pressing is practically all the maid service required.

Each one is dressy, but they don't look fussy in an office and they're not so efficient looking they scare your dinner date.

Soft front fullness makes them easy to walk in, easy to sit in. And of course you know that whether your size is 12 or 20, the consensus is that next to a rolling pin, black does the most to whittle down your hips.

Skirt (a)—Rayon crepe, $7.95.
Skirt (b)—Rayon crepe, $5.95.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The "sissy" boy who is effeminate because of an unusual glandular pattern is a heartache to any mother. Yet one has to remind oneself that sex is seldom absolute. Feminine and masculine characteristics cover a wide range and there are effeminate-type boys and masculine-type girls, who, despite their nearness to the middle of the scale, are able to carry on their sex functions as men or women.

WORRIED is regretful for having encouraged her 6-year-old boy to play with girls because they were less noisy and destructive than boys.

"Now, after playing continuously with them, he is so much like a girl he won't play with boys but only wants to play with dolls, dolls, dolls. Even his teacher sent me a note to say that everyone called him 'Sissy.' He doesn't want to be called one, but he won't play with boys. My husband and I are fearful that he is not normal. He isn't nearly as advanced as his two older brothers. What am I to do?"

By the time he is 8 he may be thoroughly disdainful of girls. Boys of his age do play indiscriminately with boys and girls. One has to guess that having had two boys, you longed for a girl and so have tried to fit him into a mold more in keeping with your desires.

Unfortunately, you have been too successful. One may imagine, too, that being the youngest of the three brothers your boy is somewhat imposed upon by the older ones and gets a more balanced experience in play by associating with girls who are neither belligerent nor domineering.

Time alone will tell whether his real sex pattern is more effeminate than masculine. It might be truly harmful to him to insinuate that he isn't a real boy. Give him more opportunities to be one and expect that this will be only a temporary slant.

At the moment he is largely the result of his environmental influences, for which you are to blame.

Be critical of the way he is treated by his brothers, seeing that his rights are protected. Take it for granted that if left alone he will outgrow his liking for female society and develop, as do most boys, into a little hoodlum who will have none of it.

You might be better satisfied if you had a mental examination made to determine his intelligence quotient.

Our leaflet, "The Timid Child," may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eidred in care of The Washington Post.

American Rooms To Be Exhibited

Mrs. James Ward Thorne's famous "American Rooms in Miniature" will be shown in three-dimensional color slides in the eighth-floor auditorium at Mayer & Co. today, by Miss Ruth Kain, well-known home stylist.

The slides reproduce in faithful detail the original miniature rooms in the Chicago Art Institute and will be shown at 3 and 8 p. m.

The rooms, which have been shown to large crowds in several Eastern cities, are viewed through glasses which lend a startlingly lifelike three-dimensional effect.

Showing of the pictures takes a little less than an hour, Miss Kain says.

More Rubber, But No Feathers

Civilians will get a little more synthetic rubber from now on, but no feathers. Some of that most exciting synthetic rubber—neoprene—will be made up into rubber gloves for civilian distribution.

But feathers are still needed badly for flying suits and sleeping bags for any of them to be released. So don't let the children run amok in their pillow fights these nights.

Use of Bacteria Warfare Considered Impractical Now

By Logan Clendenning, M.D.

A CHRONIC pessimist was expressing himself the other day about the future of civilization and the war in particular, and he advanced the idea that as a last resort Hitler would release germ warfare.

Let me quiet any apprehensions that may exist about this on the authority of Col. Leon A. Fox of the Medical Corps of the United States Army.

There are three ways that germs can be spread so as to infect an opposing army. One is by infecting water supplies and food supplies. One is by dropping them from airplanes onto the ground. And one is by infecting animals, such as rats, and loosing them in enemy territory.

Not Practical

None, however, is practical. We have a sanitary corps and the water furnished troops is boiled or treated, the food is treated before it is used. Even if this didn't happen, the most likely germs that could be used to infect water supplies and food are typhoid fever and dysentery, and our troops are immunized against them. And if you members of the civilian population who are afraid of bacterial warfare have not also been immunized at least against typhoid, I advise you to go and do so at once.

Air-spread infection has several difficulties. First, and most important, is that the wind might shift and bring the germs that are intended for the enemy back on those who released them. Second, the most likely germs to use are first, influenza, and we are not sure we know what that germ is, and second, pneumonia, and the air is so full of pneumonia germs anyway that we couldn't put many more in. Besides we can cure pneumonia almost 100 per cent with the sulfa drugs.

Bubonic Plague

The idea of releasing an army of infected rodents is not so terribly impossible. The disease that would be most feasible to infect these with would be bubonic plague. But, again, it is a little difficult to predict which way the rats would run. The chances are that they would infect the rest of the rat population before they endangered the human population. And again there is our sanitary corps who in the presence of such an event would get busy and eliminate the rat population.

Epidemics have done great damage and had great influence on wars before this. Thucydides ascribes the termination of the Péloponesian War to the plague of Athens.

Typhoid fever nearly broke up our Spanish war. Dysentery nearly disrupted the Union forces in the Civil War.

But all this was before the days of modern sanitation and the modern science of bacteriology. The possibilities that such a weapon could be brought into play now is so remote that we can with all cheerfulness dismiss it.

Mrs. A. A. Gore To Carry On For Husband

By Martha Rhyne

"Well, Representative Gore's being drafted is a big enough story, don't you think?" said his wife from her desk at the Eastern Area Red Cross in Alexandria. "And soon I'll have a full-time job on Capitol Hill managing his office. A lot of responsibility? I'll say!"

Young Representative Albert Arnold Gore of Tennessee, going on 36, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Gore, typical Tennessee farmers, who live near the little town of Carthage. Because of his job he's entitled to occupational deferment, but notified his draft board that he was ready to go into the Army when his number came up—and come up it did.

So Mrs. Gore and little Nancy will remain in Washington and carry on while father goes to war. Mrs. Gore has resigned her job as assistant to the director of personnel at the Eastern Area Red Cross headquarters in Alexandria, which she has held since April 1, and on December 1 she'll go to the Hill in a new capacity.

It's not as if it were a new assignment—she and her husband have worked side by side since their marriage in April, 1937. It was before that that they met in Nashville when he was a law student and so was she—they're both admitted to the Tennessee bar and she's a member of the bar in Arkansas, too. But she's a stanch Tennessean, yes, ma'am, the former Miss Pauline LaFon from Jackson, Tenn.

She's proud of his storybook career, which took him through a series of going to school awhile and teaching awhile—one school term spent as teacher of a one-room schoolhouse in the Tennessee mountains and another spent as county superintendent of education of Smith County, location of the aforementioned draft board.

When they first came to Washington the Gores lived at the Fairfax Hotel, but they're now comfortably settled in Arlington Village, which will be their official headquarters with the head of the family away.

Journalists From Nicaragua Honor Guests at Afternoon Fete

Cocktail Party by Nicaraguan Ambassador Is Held at Mayflower; Hostess Absent

By Marie McNair

Senora de Sevilla Sacasa, wife of the Nicaraguan Ambassador, turned up "missing" at the cocktail party yesterday afternoon given by the Ambassador in honor of the two Nicaraguan journalists—Dr. Pedro Joaquin Chamorro and Dr. Andres Largaespada, visiting this country at the invitation of the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

Illness prevented the pretty hostess from being present, but she sent as charming emissary, her mother, Senora de Somoza, wife of the President of Nicaragua, a visitor at the embassy, to assist in welcoming the guests.

Also receiving with the Ambassador was Capt. Luis Somoza, tall, handsome son of Senora Somoza.

The fete was held in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower Hotel, and the fiesta which "grew and grew" to number about 300, all told, went happily on till early evening.

Sharing honors with Dr. Chamorro and Dr. Largaespada were a group of Costa Rican, Dominican and Salvadoran newspapermen who have been on tour of the country and are making Washington their last stop before setting out on homeward trails.

Peruvian Envoy Arrives Early

The Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel de Freyre, on the way to becoming an inveterate party-goer, was in the early group of guests, finding Mrs. Dion Williams, wife of General Williams, a congenial conversationalist. The Mexican Ambassador, Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, was also there chatting in Spanish for a moment with Mrs. Adolf Berle, jr., wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, then making his way around the long flower-decked buffet table which held a staggering amount of food. Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, Ambassador of Ecuador, back on Wednesday from Ecuador, was holding forth in the center of a group of colleagues, and others there were the Ambassador of Chile with Senora de Michels and their daughter, Senorita Cristina, squired by a slim and pleasant US Navy lieutenant.

"We are leaving for home next Wednesday," said Dr. Troncoso, retiring Ambassador of the Dominican Republic, "and my wife is so busy she just couldn't come this afternoon." And so—with real regret—friends of this popular couple learned that an actual date of departure has been set.

The Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Aurelio Concheso, was accompanied by Senora de Concheso and also from the Cuban Embassy was the Minister-Counselor, Dr. Jose Baron with Senora de Baron. The Bolivian Ambassador was there with Senora de Guachalla; Senora de Recinos, wife of the Guatemalan Ambassador, and Senora de Caceres, wife of the Honduran Ambassador, were without husbands, both Ambassadors being in Atlantic City for the Relief and Rehabilitation Conference.

With the Ambassador of Panama was Senora de Jimenez and Senorita Anita Ramirez, Attache of the embassy.

Dominican Attaches In the Group

Bachelor Raul Diez de Medina, Financial Counselor of the Bolivian Embassy, was there in the gathering and still others were the Commercial Counselor of the Venezuelan Embassy and Senora de Coll-Pardo, Senora de Reyes Zelaya, wife of the Secretary of the Honduran Embassy; Major Salvador Cobian, Military Attache of the Dominican Embassy, and Carlos Alberto Ricart, Second Secretary of the embassy.

Gen. Stanley D. Embick was an able representative of the military, and threading their way through the throng I also glimpsed Mrs. Palmer Hoyt on her way to meet Mr. Hoyt for a dinner engagement; Dr. L. S. Rowe, Dr. Tomas Cajigas and Mrs. Cajigas, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mrs. Thomas Dawson and Miss Lilita Dawson.

Mary Lord Andrews and Fiance Feted at Buffet Supper

Concluding the week-long series of pre-nuptial parties for Miss Mary Lord Andrews and her fiance, Lieut. Thomas Nelson Coppedge, jr., USN., was the buffet supper last night at the Georgetown home of her mother, Mrs. Atherton Macondray.

The supper followed the wedding rehearsal in the Emmanuel Chapel, Seminary Hill, Alexandria, which will be the scene this afternoon of the wedding. Present at the rehearsal and buffet supper were members of the two families and the wedding attendants.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Nelson Coppedge, parents of the prospective bridegroom, arrived at the Mayflower yesterday from Memphis, Tenn. Others from out of town who are here for the ceremony are his grandfather, John Francis Davis of Memphis; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph P. S. Van Orden and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Collins of Connecticut; Dr. and Mrs. William Hetzel of Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. Porter Ogelsby of Chestnut Hill, Pa; Mr. and Mrs. James Cheek of Charlottesville; Mrs. William Schmeisser and Miss Mary Stewart Schmeisser of Baltimore and Lieut. and Mrs. John Jepson of Boston.

Following the 5 o'clock service this afternoon in Alexandria, a reception will take place at "Vauxclause," home of Mrs. Macondray at Seminary Hill.

About Washington . . .

MAN OF THE HOUR in Washington is definitely that intrepid returned traveler, that "gallant American eagle," Secretary of State Cordell Hull, whose popularity has reached a new high since the success of his mission to Moscow hit the headlines.

Six months ago, if you had told the Tennessee sage and statesman that a flying trip to the Soviet Union was in the cards for him, he probably would have said it couldn't happen. He had resolved never to set foot in an airplane . . . and he firmly held himself to that rule right up to the day that he took off to Miami and thence by air to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Now it can be told—that from San Juan, he went by ship to Casablanca, boarded another plane there; flew to Algiers, then Teheran, and then on to Moscow. Mrs. Hull, who didn't get a good night's' sleep the entire time her husband was away (she was that worried about him), is so happy to have him home that she hasn"t found it in her heart to chide him, even mildly, because he didn't bring back a couple of sables for her. Like every other wife whose husband takes off for Moscow, she mentioned that a new neckpiece would be welcome—if he found time to purchase same, and so on. But it seems he didn't see any sables or anything else in the stores; in fact, he didn't find any time to shop on the entire trip.

The report appearing somewhere that Premier Stalin was sending Mrs. Hull a gift by her husband seems to have been all wrong. Secretary Hull was asked about it the day he returned. "Why of course not—why should he?" was his reply. I never heard of such a thing."

FROM NEW DELHI, India, and a recent issue of the CBI Roundup comes a complaint in verse that the First Lady played favorites in choosing to visit Australia rather than India not long ago. The Roundup, as you probably know by now, is that lively newspaper published weekly by and for U. S. Servicemen in the China, Burma, India area—the Army forces under the command of Maj. Gen. Joseph ("Uncle Joe") Stilwell.

Written by Sergt. Smith Dawless, the poem is as follows:

We luckless sons of CBI
Are sure that life has passed us by,
For Mrs. Roosevelt, they say,
Will not be coming out this way;
What have the boys Down Under got
That Uncle Joe's GI's have not?
The Sacred Cow, it's all too true,
Plays second to the kangaroo.
The Burmese clubs all crave to date
Our President's well-traveled mate;
How wildly temple bells would ring
If she dropped in upon Chungking.
From far-off Punjab to Mysore
The soldiers clamor, "Eleanor!"
We'd gladly give a floating rib
To greet our burrah mem-Sahib;
For if she came, the Japs would go
Hot-foot straight back to Tokyo!

"OH, I'M NOT having any chic people—just my friends," caroled Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert when I talked to her over the telephone about her party yesterday afternoon. But when I dropped by a few hours later, I found that among the 60-odd guests assembled were a number of well-known "names."

The get-together, incidentally, was Evie Robert's house-warming in the residence at 2437 California st., recently purchased by her mother, Mrs. Harold Walker. Seems there's some plan afoot for Mrs. Walker to give the house to her daughter later—say, two years hence, or something like that—and Evie decided now was as suitable a time as any to give her first party there.

Among those who dropped in from 5:30 until several hours afterward were Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Author David Cohn, who were on their way to dine with Representative and Mrs. A. S. Monroney; former Gov. and Mrs. O. Max Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Mrs. Noyes Lewis, Mrs. George Pulver, Miss Margaret Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. William F. MacCracken, Mrs. George Mesta, Hampson Gary, Frank Russell, Mrs. Louise Atwill, William McEvcy, Lieut. George Abell, Mrs. Robert Maddox of Atlanta, Ga., house guest of the hostess, and James Moriarity, down from New York for a few days.

HEADLINE NEWS seems always to be breaking around the fabulous Henry F. Grady family. The only daughter of the household, Patricia Grady Davies, is now en route to India to join her husband, John F. Davies, who is Second Secretary of our Embassy at Chungking and liaison between the embassy and the U. S. Army forces in India.

Mrs. Grady, the dynamic Lucretia Del Valle Grady, is up to her pretty ears in plans for this season's United Nations lecture series that starts November 22 when Jan Masaryk takes the spotlight at Constitution Hall. Eldest son in the family, Capt. Reginald Grady, who served for a year in Egypt and then was General Maxwell's aide at Camp Ellis, is off to foreign duty again. Henry Grady, jr., is in the merchant marine, and is now at cadet school; and John, the youngest of the Gradys, is in flying school on the West Coast.

And now comes the news that Henry F. Grady himself, former Assistant Secretary of State and steamship executive, will soon be off to Italy with a staff of eight experts, to deal with government and economic questions in the liberated areas. The whole business links up, of course, with plans approved at the Moscow conference.

Mrs. Grady will remain in Washington for the time being, and will stay in her daughter's apartment in Georgetown. Mr. Grady will be off to California on a quick business trip this weekend, returning here next week to spend a few days before flying to his new post.

Kannie Ray Is Bride of Army Man

Harris & Ewing
MRS. VADER LOOMIS

On their wedding trip this week are Sergt. Vader Madison Loomis, AUS, and his bride, the former Miss Kannie Lucille Ray of Hyattsville, Md.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John Winton Ray, sr., and the late Mr. Ray. Sergeant Loomis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Clifford Loomis of Mannsville, N. Y.

The wedding ceremony was held in the First Methodist Church, Hyattsville, Md., recently. The Rev. Edgar C. Beckett officiated, assisted by the Rev. R. K. Nevitt.

The bride, attired in white satin with fitted bodice and full skirt with circular train and tulle veil, was given in marriage by her brother, Albert Bartow Ray. She carried white roses and gardenias. Selected as the matron of honor was Mrs. Jacques Abadie, who wore a rose taffeta gown and carried talisman roses. The best man was Corpl. Bernard Moran of Baltimore, Md.

The wedding reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Abadie, jr., of Chevy Chase.

Benefit Postponed

Due to unforeseen circumstances it has been necessary to postpone the American Newspaper Women's Club Poster Bond Benefit, which was scheduled to open tonight at 9 o'clock, at the Mayflower Hotel.

YouCan Dream Can'tYou? This One Came True

By Elizabeth Henney

It was a year-long dream but it came true last night, when Pvt. Roy Gurvey of a nearby camp in Maryland sat in a "down-front seat and heard Jeanette McDonald's Concert at Constitution Hall.

Last year he managed to get to the concert in Chicago, but this year, being in the service and stationed in Maryland, it seemed hopeless. But you can't get a Yank down. They're the guys who don't know when they're licked, and therefore, aren't.

Anyway, the first thing Pvt. Gurvey found out was that he couldn't get any leave, and the next thing he learned was that he couldn't get any tickets even if he could get the leave, because the tickets were all sold out.

So—he went to work on the project. He got permission from his commanding officer for a 12-hour leave, if he could get a ticket. Then he called this department of The Washington Post and explained that he just had to have one of those precious pasteboards. The department checked and found out there weren't any tickets. Undiscouraged, Pvt. Roy Gurvey said that was all right, he'd call back the following evening to see if one had turned up.

Within the next few hours, the Concert Bureau, upset at the thought of a serviceman missing the performance of his idol, persuaded someone to release a ticket. Private Gurvey was duly notified, collected his ticket, saw the performance, and as an extra thrill, was taken back stage after the concert to be presented to Jeanette McDonald.

Senora de Holger To Entertain

Two prospective Latin-American travelers will share honors at a farewell fete today.

They are Senora de Marino, wife of Admiral de Marino, retiring head of the Chilean Naval Mission in Washington, and Mrs. Walter Webb, wife of the American Naval Attache in Buenos Aires. Their hostess at the 4-to-6 o'clock tea will be Senora de Holger, wife of the Naval Attache at the Chilean Embassy, who has issued invitations to more than 70 friends of the honor guests.

Senora de Marino will leave for her homeland on November 17, and Admiral Marino will depart a few weeks later by plane. Mrs. Webb is scheduled to leave for the Argentine on November 19.

Miss Rankin Plans Visit Next Week to Friend in New York

Miss Annie Laura Rankin, daughter of Representative and Mrs. John E. Rankin, who is now a senior at Hollins College, will go to Penn-Yan, N. Y., next week to spend the weekend with a classmate.

It was erroneously reported on this page yesterday that Miss Rankin was to be married soon to Dr. Arthur Lankford. Her name was confused with that of her friend, Miss Harriet Whitehurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Whitehurst, whose wedding to Dr. Lankford will take place on Tuesday.

Princes From Arabia Give Fete in N. Y.

To say farewell to President Roosevelt, Prince Amir Faisal, Foreign Minister of Saudi Arabia, flew down to Washington from New York City Tuesday morning and returned to be cohost with his brother, Prince Amir Khalid, at a reception for 500 guests at the Waldorf Astoria that evening. To their guests the princes made the announcement that their country, Saudi Arabia, of which their father Ibn Saud, is King, hopes soon to establish in Washington, the first Arabian diplomatic legation ever sent to the United States. Details of this proposal are being carried back to their father by the princes, who have just finished a six-week tour of the United States.

Arabian business in the United States has been done heretofore by a special representative of the King while diplomatic questions were handled through the Iraq Legation. Official relations between the United States and Saudi Arabia were established in 1933 by a treaty signed in London.

Homer E. Uhland and Bride to Make Home in Hyattsville, Md.

Homer Edward Uhland and his bride, the former Miss Mary Blanford Burgess, of Spruce Pine, N. C., whose marriage took place last Friday in Spruce Pine, will live at the Prince Georges Apartment in Hyattsville, Md., after a wedding trip. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Edward Uhland of Chevy Chase, Md.

The ceremony was held at noon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Blanford C. Burges, with the Rev. A. R. Craig officiating. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gold wool frock brown feather trimmed hat. She carried a prayer book and a cluster of yellow roses.

Mrs. John G. Turner, jr., of Charlotte, N. C., was matron of honor for her sister, wearing an aqua frock with black accessories and a black hat with aqua feathers. She wore a corsage of orchids. Maurice J. Peterson, of Hyattsville, Md., served as best man.

The bride is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and also attended the University of Tennessee. Mr. Uhland is a research chemical engineer at the Bureau of Mines at College Park, Md. He is a graduate of the University of Maryland and a member of the American Chemical Society and of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

Wallace—Kehoe

Miss Ruth Josephine Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wallace of Warrenton, Va., and Lieut. J. Conway Kehoe, U. S. Army Air Corps, were married at the Warrenton Baptist Church on November 5 with the Rev. Thomas McLean officiating in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a green frock with deep brown accessories and a corsage of purple orchids. Miss Frances Wallace, her sister, was maid of honor and only attendant, and J. C. Kehoe, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Lieutenant Kehoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kehoe, is the grandson of the late Dr. Powatan Moncure of Bealeton, Va.

Merchant—Wheeling

Mr. and Mrs. Turner Wheeling, now on a wedding trip to New York, will make their home in Manassas, Va., when they return. Their marriage took place in the Grace Methodist Church in Manassas on Saturday, November 6. The Rev. M. F. Draper officiated at the ceremony, held at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Wheeling is the former Miss Elizabeth McClaren Merchant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Thornton Merchant of Manassas. For her wedding she wore a tan suit with brown accessories and a corsage bouquet of pink sweetheart roses. Miss Patsy Bolling Merchant, her sister's only attendant, was in a light brown suit and a shoulder corsage of talisman roses.

James N. Wilhoit, jr., of Charlottesville, Va., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Walter Merchant, brother of the bride, and Dr. John M. Waters, cousin of the bride.

The bride is associated with the Prince William County Welfare Department. Mr. Wheeling is a surveyor for the State Highway Department. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wheeling of Gordonsville, Va.

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

Plan Meals Ahead With Beef Pot Roast!

Wondering how some women manage such big meat meals on their ration allowance? Well, a lot of them start with a big, basic meat cut and use the leftovers for delicious follow-up meals.

Beef Pot Roast is a grand "basic" dinner. For with what's left you can fix meat pies, stews and other interesting meals later on.

Get a 3-4 lb. round-bone or blade-bone chuck roast. Try to get Armour's branded beef. For it's rich and fine flavored . . . a meat packed with essential proteins. Heat pot roast kettle 5 minutes. Place roast in kettle, cut side down, and brown very slowly all sides for 20 minutes. Add 1 onion, sliced, during last 10 minutes. Turn heat low, add 3 tsps. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper and 1½ cups boiling water.

Cover tightly and simmer 3½ hours or until tender. Remove roast, skim any excess fat from broth. Thicken gravy with 2 tbsps. flour mixed smooth with ½ cup cold water. Serve surrounded by noodles.

Fashion Note: Pies and Puddings Should Not Wear Upper Crust This Season if They Want to Be in High-Style

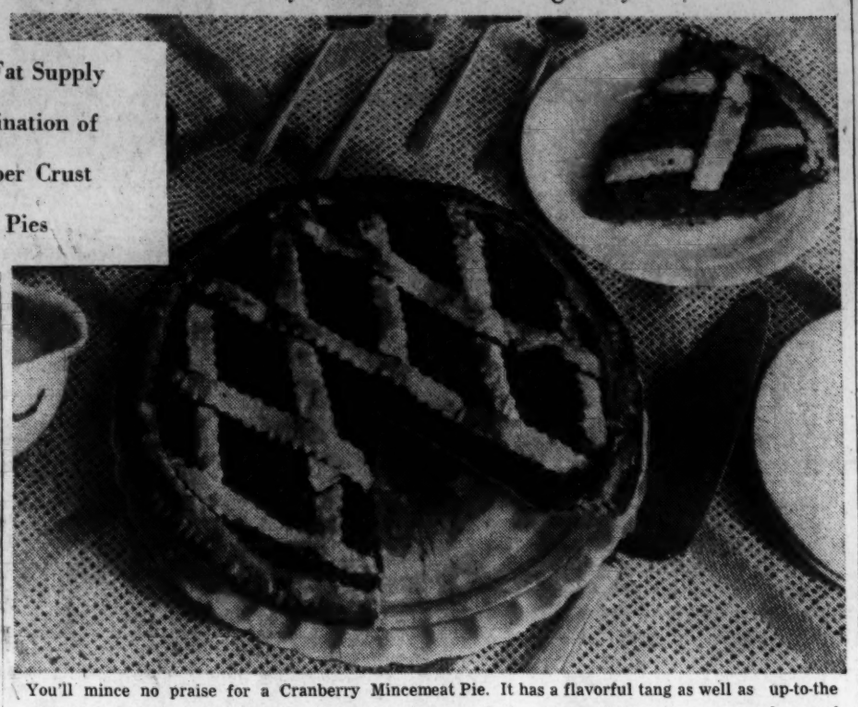
Martha Ellyn

Stretch Fat Supply By Elimination of The Upper Crust Of Your Pies



You'll mince no praise for a Cranberry Mincemeat Pie. It has a flavorful tang as well as up-to-the minute style. No upper crust caps the pie because it is not patriotic to use a top layer of pastry which necessitate more fat. The lattice work is made from the trimmed edges so the pastry is used to the last sliver. This is an additional way to make a contribution to the war effort.

The upper pie crust is another food item that is disappearing because of fat shortage. Butter, lard, margarine and cooking oils are war material. This means civilian supplies must be stretched to the elastic limit.

It is obvious that we can make two pies or puddings without an upper crust, to one topped with pastry. This switching to the open-faced kind is no sacrifice. Void of an upper crust, desserts are just as delicious and even more attractive. Then too they can be made in less time.

"Easy as Pie" was probably inspired by a pie made with a crumb crust. Crumb crusts include those made of corn flakes, all-bran, and graham crackers.

All you have to do to achieve a perfect crumb crust, is to roll cereal flakes or crackers until fine, add melted shortening (butter, margarine, cooking oil), and a dash of salt. A Honey Crumb Pie Shell is also something very meritorious. Make it this way:

HONEY CRUMB PIE SHELL

Roll 4 cups corn flakes into fine crumbs. Melt ¼ cup shortening in pie pan. Add 2 tablespoons honey and crumbs and mix thoroughly. Press evenly and firmly around sides and bottom of pan. Bake in slow oven, 325 degrees, for 10 minutes. Cool before adding filling. Makes one 9-inch pie shell.

Chiffon pies have an affinity for crumb crust. Lemons are plentiful—and healthful too—so why not a lemon chiffon pie?

Cranberries are flashing red in the markets. These saucy berries make delicious desserts such as pies and puddings as well as sauces, relishes and salads. But the tartness of cranberries must be muted or they will be a bit too nippy for most tastes.

Experiment has proven that corn sirup, maple sirup and honey can be used to sweeten cranberries. Here is the way you make substitutions for these sweetening agents.

Corn Sirup—Substitute one cup dark or white corn sirup for each one cup sugar up to half the sugar given in the recipe. Reduce liquid one-quart cup for each one cup corn sirup used. Dark corn sirup gives a fragrant, caramel flavor. The white variety tastes like sugar in the finished product.

Maple Sirup—Substitute one cup maple sirup for each 1 cup sugar up to half the sugar given in the recipe. Reduce liquid ¼ cup for each 1 cup maple sirup used.

Honey—Substitute ½ cup honey for each 1 cup sugar given in the recipe. Reduce liquid 2 tablespoons for each ½ cup honey used.

A delicious pudding without top crust is a cranberry one fragrant with this fruit. It is nutritious too, because it is made with enriched bread crumbs, eggs and milk. This is a way to turn a bread pudding into a special dessert. Here is the recipe:

CRANBERRY BREAD PUDDING

Pour 1 quart milk over 2 cups fine enriched dry bread crumbs. Blend 2 tablespoons melted butter, margarine or cooking oil with 1½ cups granulated sugar and add 3 well beaten egg yolks. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and mix with milk crumb mixture. Turn into buttered baking dish and bake in moderately slow oven, 325 degrees, until firm. Spread pudding with generous layer of cranberry sauce. Top with meringue made with 3 egg whites, dash of salt and 6 tablespoons sugar. Bake in moderate oven, 325 degrees, 15 to 20 minutes. Serves six.

If you want to make an especially attractive dessert—delicate pink color, heavenly of flavor, make a Cranberry Chiffon Pie using the Crumb Crust. This is the way to make this dessert de luxe:

CRANBERRY CHIFFON PIE

Place ½ can jellied cranberry sauce, canned or fresh, 1-3 sugar (or its equivalent), and 3 egg yolks in the top of double boiler and beat until mixed. Heat, stirring constantly until custardy, about 8 minutes. Add gelatin which has been softened in ¼ cup cold water. Add ½ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Cook until this mixture begins to congeal. Beat 3 egg whites until stiff and gradually add 1-3 cup sugar (or equivalent), beating until it has been thoroughly dissolved and mixture becomes a stiff meringue. Fold into cranberry mixture. Fill baked pie shell and chill until firm. If you must have whipped cream topping, then whip cream in the ways suggested previously in this column.

Lowly Soybean Achieves New Honor As Inexpensive Meat Substitute

Here's a question to whet the intelligence of homemakers: What vegetable rivals meat in essential nutrients and tomatoes in vitamin C, is high in protein and fat, and contains calcium, iron, and appreciable amounts of B vitamins?

Give up? Well, it's none other than the lowly soybean, now being given honors in the vegetable kingdom for its use as an inexpensive and nutritious meat alternate and meat extender, due to experimental work by Dr. Clive McCay of the Cornell School of Nutrition and others.

SOYBEAN DINNER IN ONE DISH

Combine: 1 cup cooked corn, 1 cup cooked soybeans, 1 cup lightly drained tomatoes, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, ½ teaspoon brown sugar and 1 teaspoon grated onion. Place in a greased baking dish. Sprinkle the top with bread crumbs, cheese or grated peanuts. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes. Serves four.

SOYBEAN LOAF

Saute until soft ½ cup chopped onion (or celery and green pepper) in 2 tablespoons butter or drippings. Add and bring to the boiling point 1 cup tomato puree. (You man substitute 1 cup cream sauce and serve the loaf with tomato sauce.) Stir in: 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 2 beaten eggs, 3 cups cooked, ground soybeans, 2½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon curry powder (optional), chopped parsley or dried herb. Place in a greased casserole. Bake the loaf in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes. You may serve it with gravy or other sauce. Serves eight!

Milk and Cream Saver

America's pioneer mother was a wizard with left-overs. She threw away nothing. When she emptied the cream pitcher she rinsed it with milk and used it. Now the English on wartime rations rinse the milk bottle with water and use it for the liquid in making gravy.

YOUR DOLLAR BUYS MORE AT THE ACME

Some Are Actually Allergic Others Merely Picayunish

By Ida Jean Kain

Like the man who downed seven martinis and then blamed the olives for upsetting him, a lot of you have some very odd notions of what is not good for you. Once you associate a digestive upset with a particular food, you are apt to look on that food with suspicion for the rest of your life.

If you have an idiosyncracy of that kind, maybe you "can't eat" eggs or tomatoes. Whether or not you have thought of it, the cause may have been the state of your digestive system. You may have been overly tired, or have just received bad news. Under those circumstances almost any food would have upset you. Once you get the notion firmly fixed in your mind that you can't eat a certain food, maybe you really can't. The power of mind over digestion is terrific.

Many pepole are convinced that they can't drink milk. They never go out of their way to get milk in soups, sauces, custards or beverages made with milk. Not that they think milk in these forms disagrees with them. They just aren't sold on the importance of milk.

This usually doesn't stop with one food. Some of these people take one food after another out of their menus until they wind up with deficiency symptoms directly traceable to the lack of these foods. But they seldom attribute these vague symptoms of indigestion, irritability or lassitude to the lack of anything in the menu. The reaction is to leave something more out of the menu rather than to add a green leafy vegetable, dried yeast tablets, citrus fruits, or milk, to furnish vitamins and minerals in adequate amounts.

There are people, however, who are allergic to certain foods. This group must make sure of taking some other source of the essentials furnished by the taboo food. Allergic people are not usually careful to do this and their nutrition suffers.

Many more food idosyncracies exist than actual allergies. To get over the notion you can't eat a certain food, stop expecting that it will not agree with you. If you go about it right you will have a good chance to get back into your menus all the foods that make a balanced diet. You are more allergic to a dietary deficiency than anything else!

"Guess My Age!"

New Kind of Face Powder Makes Her Look Years Younger!

ONCE this lovely girl looked quite a bit older. Some people actually thought she was rapidly approaching middle age . . .

For she was the innocent victim of an unflattering face powder! It was such an unkind powder—treacherous and sly. It showed up every tiny line in her face—accented every little skin fault—even seemed to exaggerate the size of her pores.

But look at her now! Can you guess her age? Would you say she is 20-30-35?

At last she has found a face powder that really flatters her skin—makes it look younger and more enchanting!

Why Lady Esther Face Powder Is So Flattering

Lady Esther Face Powder is extra flattering because it's made differently. It isn't just mixed, just sifted, in the usual way. It's blown by Twin Hurricanes—blended with the speed and power of hurricanes—to look clearer, smoother and more flattering on your skin!

Because of this patented, exclusive method of hurricane blending, the texture of Lady Esther Face Powder is much smoother and finer than ordinary powder. The first touch of your puff spreads a delicate film of beauty on your skin, hiding little lines, little blemishes. And Lady Esther Face Powder clings longer, too—clings four long hours!

But the most exciting difference is in the shades. Lady Esther shades have a subtle new quality—because the color is blown in by hurricanes. Many women say that the Lady Esther shades are so fresh and alive that ordinary powder shades seem dull and drab by comparison.

Living Proof—In Your Own Mirror!

Why choose a face powder because it is expensive, or because of a clever package? Judge it only by its appearance on your skin!

Try Lady Esther Face Powder! Get the smallest size box, if you like—but try it! When you see how much smoother and younger it makes your skin look—it's time enough to get the largest and most economical size. But to prove this is the most flattering powder you have ever used, get the small-size box today!

Peoples Drug Sales Up 8.5% In Ten Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., yesterday reported net sales of $28,070,174 in the first ten months this year, an increase of $2,192,914 or 8.5 per cent over the same period last year.

October sales of $2,980,701 were practically unchanged from the $2,956,309 in the corresponding month last year. The chain system, in common with other retail outlets, has found it difficult to replenish inventories in many popular lines.

Without adjustment for change in number of stores, net monthly sales of the firm compared as follows:

	1943	1942
January	$2,695,701	$2,458,264
February	2,698,354	2,343,969
March	2,832,430	2,446,954
April	2,871,433	2,499,902
May	2,854,184	2,606,099
June	2,796,578	2,563,752
July	2,867,721	2,630,952
Augusta	2,739,553	2,713,002
September	2,749,920	2,690,891
October	2,980,701	2,958,309

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

District Issue Awarded

Top bidder for an offering of $1,500,000 Washington Suburban Sanitary District (Maryland) bonds was the Union Securities Corporation of New York. The high bid was 100.555 for the 2 per cent issue.

The bonds are guaranteed by Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties. They are dated November 1 and mature in annual installments 1944 to 1983, inclusive. At the close of business Wednesday, all but about $500,000 of the issue was reported sold to the public.

Credit Firm's Net Rises

Commercial Credit Co., reports net profit after preferred dividends of $1,457,188 equal to 79 cents a common share for the quarter ended September 30, compared with $1,383,969 or 75 cents for the 1942 quarter. The report does not cover operations of the Pennsylvania Casualty Co.

Wholesale Index Gains

The Bureau of Labor Statistics Wholesale Price Index rose 0.1 per cent last week, largely because of advancing prices for fresh milk, onions, potatoes and apples. At 102.9 per cent of the 1926 average, the index was slightly above the early October level, 22.8 per cent above the corresponding week of 1937, and 10.1 per cent above the average for November, 1929.

New UAL Mileage Record

An all-time high for revenue passenger miles flown by United Air Lines was announced yesterday by Harold Crary, vice president in charge of traffic, in releasing estimated figures on the company's October operations.

Crary reported the company flew 35,058,300 revenue passenger miles last month for gains of three per cent over the 34,123,365 recorded in September of this year and 24 per cent over the 28,165,630 revenue passenger miles of October, 1942. Airplane miles totaled 1,940,890 as compared with 1,891,772 in October, 1942, a gain of nine per cent.

Digest of Earnings

American Viscose Corp., $5,099,747, equal to $2.43 a common share for nine months ended September 30, compared with $5,040,428, or $2.39 a share.

Ohio Oil Co.—Nine months ended September 30, $10,604,752, equal to $1.60 a common share, compared with $9,244,080, or $1.28 a share.

Gifford Is Optimistic

Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., does not agree with those who say a period of depression is inevitable in this country after the war.

"Defeatism has no place in America," Gifford said this week, in accepting the Franklin Institute's Vermilye award for industrial management. "I look forward to good times, to good wages, to a period that will create capital and well being.

"To expect widespread unemployment and the end of private enterprise is, in my view, not being realistic. It is more realistic, I believe, to expect plenty of employment and the abandonment of Government wartime controls, including taxes that discourage enterprise, as rapidly as practical, with resulting further progress in improving our standard of living, and in providing equal opportunities for all.

NAM Surveys Labor Needs

New York, Nov. 11 (AP).—The National Association of Manufacturers said its manpower committee is calling on members to make immediate and thorough surveys of labor needs.

The effort is to implement the management-labor-agriculture manpower agreement designed to avert National conscription of labor, the association announced.

Sumitted to members is a "check list" of 17 steps recommended for management to follow to achieve the fullest utilization of the manpower supply.

These recommendations include: "Proper planning of work schedules, personnel requirements, flow of work and availability of materials, maintenance of equipment, and coordination between all departments."

"Every company should maintain a labor inventory, and give full consideration to use of sound wage incentive plans," the committee recommended.

$125,000 Salary Of Pennsy Head Tops Rail List

M. W. Clement's $125,000 as president oof the Pennsylvania system topped American railroad salaries in 1942.

This was the only salary above $100,000 listed in the Interstate Commerce Commission's annual report, issued yesterday.

The New York Central System paid its president, Frederick E. Williamson $90,000.

A total of 1228 received salaries of $10,000 or more, the average being $17,316. This compared with 1158 above $10,000 in 1941, when the average was $17,302.

Among those receiving $75,000 was William M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific and its leased lines, who retired recently as rubber director. He continued as president of Union Pacific while holding the Federal post. The Union Pacific paid W. Averell Harriman $60,000 as chairman of its executive committee.

Others receiving $75,000 included C. E. Newton, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio; W. J. Jenks, president of Norfolk and Western; Edward W. Sheer, president of Reading Co., and E. E. Norris, president of Southern Railway System.

Three Farmers Elected To Chicago Grain Board

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP).—The Chicago Board of Trade, for the first time in its history, had farmer representation on its governing body today when three nonmembers of the exchange began active participation in the deliberation of the board of directors.

The three nonmember directors, whose names were submitted by President P. R. O'Brien and approved by the 15 member directors, are Milton T. Sonntag, of Plainfield, Ill., John G. Summer, of Sheldon, Ill., and S. W. Wilder, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

123,942 Civilian Trucks Will Be Made in 1944

Detroit, Nov. 11 (AP).—R. L. Vaniman, director of the automotive division of the War Production Board, announced here today that 123,492 civilian trucks will be produced in 1944. This is nearly four times the volume previously announced as the civilian truck production program for next year.

Vaniman made the announcement following a meeting here with automotive industry leaders. He said that nonmilitary truck manufacture next year was considered so vital to continued prosecution of the war that it would be given a top priority rating.

Int. Nickel Net Dips in Period

New York, Nov. 11 (AP).—International Nickel Co. of Canada, Ltd., and subsidiaries reported today net profit for the nine months ended September 30 of $23,205,451, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $1.49 a common share. This compared with $24,377,124, or $1.75 a common share, for the corresponding 1942 period.

Stock Tenders Invited

New York, Nov. 11 (AP).—A. G. Spalding & Bros., Inc., today issued an invitation for tenders to holders of about $100,000 of the company's first preferred stock. The company said tenders were to be filed with the Chemical Bank & Trust Co. on or before next December 3.

Marine Risk Rates Slashed

New York, Nov. 11 (AP).—Recent official United Nations reports as to improvement of the situation in the war at sea were confirmed by the announcement of drastic reductions in cargo war risk rates by Marine Insurance Underwriters, the information committee of the American Institute of Marine Underwriters said today.

Indicative of the downward trend in war risk rates during the last 15 months is the fact that the present highest published rate is now 9 per cent on shipments to and from Turkey beyond Mersin, not beyond Istanbul. Mersin is a port on the mainland of Asia Minor north of the Island of Cyprus.

In August, 1942, the published schedule included rates as high as 30 per cent, this rate being applicable on voyages between the United States and the East Coast of India. Rates on the East India voyage are now 8 per cent.

Reductions are particularly large on voyages between the United States and Canada and Pacific Coast Western Hemisphere voyages, where rates have been cut from a third to one-half. Reductions are not as large on longer voyages where cargoes are exposed to more risk from enemy action.

Increased Production Of Oranges Forecast

Production of oranges and tangerines for the 1943-44 season, exclusive of California valencias, was forecast yesterday at 64,240,000 boxes, against comparable production last season of 59,231,000 boxes.

The total grapefruit crop, exclusive of the California "summer crop" for harvest next year, was estimated at 46,716,000 boxes. It was 48,614,000 boxes last season.

The crop of Florida early and midseason oranges was indicated to be 21 million boxes, 1,900,000 boxes more than a year ago. Valencia production was expected to be 17,500,000 boxes, 600,000 less than last season.

Grapefruit production was estimated at 24,500,000 boxes, against 27,300,000.

Denver's Right to Tax Milk Upheld by Court

Denver, Nov. 11 (AP).—The Office of Price Administration has lost in Federal District Court its fight to prevent Denver from adding a 2-cent excise tax to the ceiling price of milk.

The city voted the tax, to be given to producers, after the latter threatened to halt deliveries unless price relief were granted.

Clem W. Collins, regional OPA administrator, said the court decision would be appealed, or criminal conspiracy charges would be filed.

Gen. Tire to Erect New Plant in Texas

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—William O'Neil, president of the General Tire & Rubber Co., announced today the company would begin construction of a four million dollar tire plant at Waco Tex., as soon as materials can be obtained. The plant would have capacity of 3500 tires daily. O'Neil said, the Texas location was chosen because the rubber city of Akron, Ohio, already is in a critical labor area.

Rail Loadings Decline

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that 714,724 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday. This was a decrease of $128,954 cars, or 14.6 per cent, compared with the preceding week; a decrease of 74,939 cars, or 0.1 per cent, compared with the corresponding week a year ago.

Victory Sidelights

Fighters Need 100,000 Pints Of Plasma

Blood—100,000 pints of it every week—are needed for the Army and Navy.

The need is increasingly great as our forces dig deeper into enemy territory, the Red Cross has announced.

A decline in blood donations, coincident with Allied successes which tend to lull the home front into apathy, can result in thousands of unnecessary deaths, Dr. G. Canby Robinson, national director of the American Red Cross Blood Donor Station, warned yesterday, calling for gifts of the vital plasma.

Pointing out Prime Minister Churchill's prediction that there would be "great loss of life" in the 1944 campaigns, Dr. Robinson said that blood plasma has been ranked as the foremost factor in life preservation in the field.

Dr. Robinson cited reports from the Surgeon General indicating that the death rate among wounded Americans in the current conflict is approximately 2½ to 3 per cent less than half the rate of the last war—but plasma is most needed when armies are advancing.

You can help keep our death rate low by visiting the District Blood Donor Center, 51 Louisiana ave. nw.

Paper Salvage Progress

Satisfactory progress in the paper salvage program was reported yesterday by salvage officials. It was indicated that monthly salvage collections will go over the 10-million pound mark for the first time since house-to-house collections were instituted.

The D. C. salvage committee added that commercial and industrial firms were doing an "outstanding job" in cooperating with the program.

Meanwhile, residents in the Northwest area were asked to prepare bundles of newspapers, magazines and corrugated boxes on front steps or porches before 9 a. m. tomorrow, when all homes in that section will be canvassed for salvage contributions.

Teacher Responsibility

The Nation's teachers will be responsible for molding opinion toward thorough understanding of national and international questions, Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday told students at Miner Teachers College in an American education week program.

The First Lady emphasiezd that one reason the nazism and fascism were accepted abroad was that citizens were ready to pass on the responsibility of deciding what should be done in the face of difficult situations.

Baby Among Four Bitten By Dogs in D.C.

A 10-month-old baby, Jerry Lewis, of 2515 13th st. nw., was bitten on the right arm yesterday by a dog in the apartment house in which his parents live and was taken to Children's Hospital where he was treated and discharged.

Another dog case was that of James V. Jones of 636 G st. se., who called police to kill his dog which, he said, was having fits.

Viola Clark, Negro, 31, of 43 Pierce st. nw., reported to police that she was bitten by a dog at the home of Mattie Crowder, 919 Union st. nw., where she was visiting. The woman was treated at Garfield Hospital and dismissed.

Lieut. Comdr. William Kilcoin, 47, USN, of 1421 Floral st. nw. reported that he was bitten by a dog belonging to Lieut. Comdr. Morris J. Bierman of 1401 Floral st. nw. Commander Bierman posted $5 collateral for not having his dog licensed. Commander Kilcoin was treated by a private physician.

Theodore Suydon, 14, Negro, of 2422 Ontario rd. nw. was bitten while walking in the 2400 block of 18th st. nw. by a stray dog. He was treated at Children's Hospital and dismissed.

President Gets Boy Promised Ride in Jeep

Verona, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP).—Through the intervention of President Roosevelt, the Army has recovered lost face.

"Somebody in the Army is slipping," 10-year-old Carl J. Buehler, jr., wrote the President after he had sold $5450 in war bonds, but failed to get a jeep ride promised as a reward. Carl got the ride yesterday, in a new jeep newly scrubbed in his honor.

He wrote to Mr. Roosevelt, October 23:

"Dear Mr. President:

"I am sending you newspaper clippings of my bond drives which I held the last two weeks. As you see in the clippings, I was promised a ride in a jeep. One paper even said I had a ride in a jeep, but I didn't. Somebody in the Army is slipping.

"I know you are very busy, but will you please see what you can do for me?

"Thank you very much.

"Respectfully yours,

"CARL J. BUEHLER, JR.

"P. S.:

"I will vote for you when I am 21."

The President sent the letter to the War Department, which relayed it to the Newark Army Air Base for action.

The whole student body at Our Lady of the Lake Convent School turned out to cheer as Carl started his ride.

Col. Lawhon's Funeral Today At Fort Myer

Funeral services with full military honors for Col. Zim E. Lawhon, 52, will be held at Fort Myer Chapel today at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Colonel Lawhon, commanding officer of Camp Reynolds, Pa., died at the camp Tuesday. A native of Texas, he has been in the Army since the last World War and was in Washington on various assignments since 1938. Colonel Lawhon was a Field Artillery officer and graduated from Command and General Staff School and the Army War College.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Lawhon, and a son, Maj. John E. Lawhon, jr., of the Chemical War Service. Honorary pallbearers include Maj. Gens. Joe N. Dalton, Miller G. White, Milton Reckord and John H. Hilldring; Brig. Gens. Russell B. Reynolds and Alden H. Waitt, and Cols. Willard Newbill, Frederic L. Hayden, Robb S. Mackie, Willard S. Renchaw, Conrad G. Follansbee and Charles C. Blakeney.

William T. Sherman Jackson

Funeral services for William T. Sherman Jackson, District school teacher for 35 years, who died at Freedmen's Hospital Wednesday after several weeks' illness, will be held at McGuire funereal home at 3 p. m. today. Burial will be in Lincoln Memorial Cemetery.

Mr. Jackson, of 1816 16th st. nw., was 75 years old. Until two years before his retiremenet in 1930 he was a mathematics teacher at Dunbar High School, known as the M Street High School before its location was changed in 1916. During his last two year's service he was principal of the school.

Born in Alexendria, Va., he obtained B. A. and M. A. degrees from Amherst (Mass.) College, where he was a star athelete in the years immediately following the late President Coolidge's graduation from the same school.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Viola W. Jackson, and a sister, Mrs. A. Tancil Thomas, of Chicago. Mr. Jackson's first wife, May Howard Jackson, well-known sculptress, died in 1931.

Capt. William B. Hubbell

Capt. William Bradford Hubbell, 41, former president of the New York Young Republican Club, was killed in an aircraft accident in the Alaskan theater, the War Department announced yesterday. He was an intelligence officer with the Eleventh Fighter Command.

Captain Hubbell, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Princeton University in 1924, was a director of the Greater New York Federation of Churches. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy T. Hubbell, two boys and a girl, of Bedford Village, N. Y., and his mother, Mrs. Catherine D. Hubbell, of New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. Marie Tailer

Mrs. Marie Stirling Tailer, 73, daughter of the late Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, sr., and sister of Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, jr., USN, retired, died yesterday following a short illness.

Mrs. Tailer, widow of J. Lee Tailer, sportsman, at the time of her debut in Baltimore, was described as one of the most beautiful women in the United States.

Mrs. Annette Whitney Dall

New York, Nov. 11.—Mrs. Annette Whitney Dall, 84, widow of Dr. William H. Dall, naturalist and curator of mollusks at the United States National Museum, died, Wednesday at her home in Cocoanut Grove, Fla., according to word received here. She was the oldest member of the Washington Club, a women's club in Washington, D. C,. where she formerly lived.

Henry G. O'Donnell

Henry G. O'Donnell, 36, former Special Assistant Attorney General in the Department of Justice, died Wednesday in Detroit where he was assistant general counsel of the Ford Motor Co.

In his capacity with the Department of Justice, Mr. O'Donnell successfully prosecuted the Government's first criminal case under the enemy agent registration laws.

Col. Roy D. Halloran

Funeral services for Col. Roy D. Halloran, chief of the Army Medical Corps neuro-psychiatry branch, who died Wednesday, will be held at 10 a. m. Monday in Memorial Chapel of the Army Medical Center. Burial, with military honors, will be in Arlington at 11 a. m.

JANE ARDEN — Jane Plays Santa Claus — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

JANE ARDEN— I'M THE GIRL WHO HELPED YOU AT THE— ER-ACCIDENT THE OTHER DAY—
WHO IS IT?
COME IN— YOU'LL HAVE TO FIND YOUR WAY HERE— I'M LOST WITHOUT REX—
THAT'S WHY I CAME— TO BRING YOU A DOG— AND HIS NAME IS REX, TOO—
NOT— NOT MY REX?
ANOTHER REX— BUT HE'S TRAINED, TOO— AND HIS HEART IS JUST AS LOYAL—YOU'LL LEARN TO LOVE HIM JUST AS MUCH!

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

THPECTACULAR! THTUPENDOUTH!
WHAT AN EXPLOSION! IF SUPERMAN LIVED THROUGH THAT---!
AND IF HE DIDN'T--!
HEAVENTH, WITH LOTH LANE I YOU'D THLIPPED MY MIND COMPLETELY!
NO WONDER THE DOUTS WERE AFRAID TO SHOOT THAT GUN! IF THEY HAD, IMAGINE WHAT WOULD HAVE HAPPENED TO THEM!!
WHAT BURNS ME UP IS— I'LL NEVER KNOW WHETHER A BULLET FROM THAT GUN COULD HAVE PENETRATED MY IMPENETRABLE SKIN AND THUS DESTROYED ME!

WEARIN' YER COAT?
YES YOU SEE·· SHE DIDN'T WANT TO BE·· OH, IT'S TOO LONG A STORY TO START AT THIS TIME OF NIGHT!
WELL, LET'S HEAD FER HOME! I GOTTA ROLL OUT EARLY TOMORROW, AN' START WORK AT TH' ARMOR-PLATE SHOPS, MARY!
I WONDER WHAT HAPPENED TO THAT POOR CHILD' BUT I SUPPOSE I'LL NEVER KNOW!

MICKEY FINN — A Decision — By Lank Leonard

WHY WOULDN'T OWNEY'S WIFE LET HIM HELP YOU, MRS. FINN?
WELL, UNCLE OWNEY WAS QUITE A GAMBLER BEFORE THEY WERE MARRIED, FLOSSIE!— AND SHE'S AFRAID IF HE STARTS AGAIN HE'LL NEVER STOP!
AND YOU REALLY THINK HE COULD HAVE STOPPED PHIL GAMBLING, IF HIS WIFE HADN'T SQUAWKED?
I'M SURE OF IT, FLOSSIE— AND I HAVE A FEELING THAT HE MAY YET! — HE GAVE ME A SLY WINK WHEN I WAS LEAVING!
NOW YOU NEEDN'T SIT THERE AND BROOD, OWNEY! YOU'RE NOT GOING TO GAMBLE WITH MY MONEY!
I'M NOT BROODING, DEAR! I'M THINKING ABOUT PHIL WORKING IN THAT GUN FACTORY, HELPING TO WIN THE WAR— AND ME SITTING HERE DOING NOTHING! IT MAKES ME FEEL LIKE A SLACKER!
YOU'RE TOO OLD TO WORK HARD, OWNEY!
I'M ONLY A FEW YEARS OLDER THAN PHIL!! FANNY— MY MIND IS MADE UP! I'M GOING TO DO MY BIT, TOO!

MR. AND MRS. — It Happens as Soon as You Throw 'Em Out — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

MOST OF THE OVERSHOES AND THINGS IN THIS CLOSET HAVE BEEN LEFT HERE GOODNESS KNOWS BY WHOM
YEAH AND WE GO ON KEEPING 'EM FOR YEARS
I SUPPOSE THERE'S REALLY NO SENSE IN KEEPING THEM
NOPE ANY LONGER LET'S THROW 'EM ALL OUT NOBODY'LL EVER CLAIM 'EM
(BUT NEXT DAY)
OH, VI, CAN I COME AROUND AND GET A PAIR OF RUBBERS I LEFT AT YOUR HOUSE A WEEK OR TWO AGO?
HELLO, VI! HAVE YOU SEEN ANYTHING OF A PAIR OF OLD GLOVES? MY HUSBAND SAYS HE LEFT THEM HERE

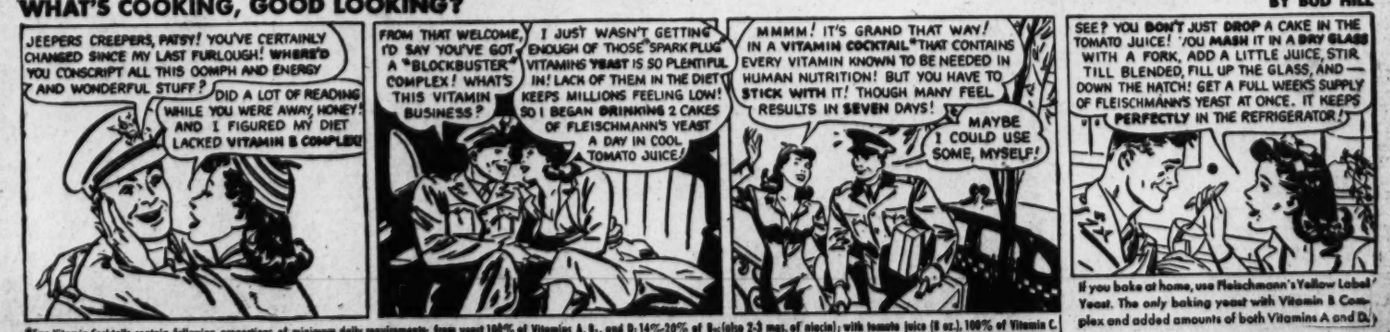
WHAT'S COOKING, GOOD LOOKING? — BY BUD HILL



JEEPERS CREEPERS, PATSY! YOU'VE CERTAINLY CHANGED SINCE MY LAST FURLOUGH! WHERE'D YOU CONSCRIPT ALL THIS OOMPH AND ENERGY AND WONDERFUL STUFF?
DID A LOT OF READING WHILE YOU WERE AWAY, HONEY! AND I FIGURED MY DIET LACKED VITAMIN B COMPLEX!
FROM THAT WELCOME, I'D SAY YOU'VE GOT A "BLOCKBUSTER" COMPLEX! WHAT'S THIS VITAMIN BUSINESS?
I JUST WASN'T GETTING ENOUGH OF THOSE SPARK PLUG VITAMINS YEAST IS SO PLENTIFUL IN! LACK OF THEM IN THE DIET KEEPS MILLIONS FEELING LOW! SO I BEGAN DRINKING 2 CAKES OF FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST A DAY IN COOL TOMATO JUICE!
MMMM! IT'S GRAND THAT WAY! IN A VITAMIN COCKTAIL* THAT CONTAINS EVERY VITAMIN KNOWN TO BE NEEDED IN HUMAN NUTRITION! BUT YOU HAVE TO STICK WITH IT! THOUGH MANY FEEL RESULTS IN SEVEN DAYS!
MAYBE I COULD USE SOME, MYSELF!
SEE? YOU DON'T JUST DROP A CAKE IN THE TOMATO JUICE! 'OU MASH IT IN A DRY GLASS WITH A FORK, ADD A LITTLE JUICE, STIR TILL BLENDED, FILL UP THE GLASS, AND— DOWN THE HATCH! GET A FULL WEEKS SUPPLY OF FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST AT ONCE. IT KEEPS PERFECTLY IN THE REFRIGERATOR!

*Two Vitamin Cocktails contain following proportions of minimum daily requirements: from yeast 100% of Vitamins A, B_1, and D; 14%-20% of B_2 (also 2-3 mgs. of niacin); with tomato juice (8 oz.), 100% of Vitamin C.

If you bake at home, use Fleischmann's Yellow Label Yeast. The only baking yeast with Vitamin B Complex and added amounts of both Vitamins A and D.)
